Carpenters Strike Today, Halting Area Construction

All Commercial Jobs Facing Shutdown as Mediation Talks on Wage Increase Fail

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Nation's Capital is faced with a tieup of virtually all commercial construction as some 5000 AFL carpenters go on strike today.

The walkout was scheduled to get under way at 7:30 this morning after last-minute mediation efforts failed to find a basis for settling the contract dispute between the Carpenters' District Council and the Master Builders' Association.

The absence of the carpenters by week's end will cause the layoff of approximately 15,000 other AFL building mechanics and laborers, according to industry authorities, thereby halting construction of projects in and around Washington costing an estimated 75 million dollars.

Conference Breaks Down

Commissioner James Holden, of the Federal Mediation Service, called representatives of the carpenters and builders together at 4:30 p. m. yesterday, but a two-hour conference failed to break the stalemate in contract negotiations.

The carpenters, who are getting $2.40 an hour, have asked for an increase of 10 cents an hour. The builders have offered to renew the present work contract for two years with no increase in wages. The old contract ran out April 30, but for the past month the carpenters have worked at the $2.40 rate, while the employers and union continued negotiations.

Because the carpenters are the largest and most important building craft, union sources believe the strikers will not find it necessary to set up picket lines. Other AFL mechanics and laborers are expected to report to work as usual. Some will be furloughed immediately; the great majority will be laid off by Saturday.

Effect of Strike

Work will halt immediately on all projects on which some phase of carpentry is under way and on tasks requiring supervision of an experienced carpenter. But even on work assignments involving the laying of concrete or steel, carpenters must be called in sooner or later to participate in the job, and at that point, all work is expected to stop.

Union sources said it was unlikely, despite rumors current yesterday, that other building trades unions would join the carpenters' strike. Any wage gains made by the carpenters probably would be obtained to some extent by other unions, it was pointed out. On the other hand, by going on strike themselves, the other workers would lose their eligibility for unemployment compensation.

Union officials refused to confirm or deny a report rife among members that 40 builders have signed a tentative contract with

Bradley Declares Military Pay Bill Vital to Security

The military pay bill now before Congress is "of vital importance to the security of the United States," Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, said yesterday.

"Bargain personnel seldom produces a bargain security. Yet our Government clings to the theory that it can deal forever in basement prices on the talents of men," he told the Political Study Club.

He added that "failure to provide persuasive career incentives is in danger of reducing us to an Army of second raters."

Senator Allowed Full Scope

Hickenlooper Faces Lilienthal Today With Atom Charges

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In the presence of Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) today will start outlining his "bill of particulars" in an attempt to show the commission chairman guilty of mismanagement and maladministration.

After a two-hour closed-door session of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) announced that Lilienthal had been requested to be present and that it had been agreed to permit Hickenlooper full scope to present his case.

The Iowa Senator later told reporters that it will take him several days to develop the evidence, most of which he said he had "repeatedly" brought to the attention of the commission.

Hickenlooper said he hoped to be through introducing his material—some of which is in documentary and some of which he indicated might possibly be developed through witnesses by the end of next week.

Chairman McMahon told reporters the full hearing may run three weeks and will run into all phases of the atomic energy program. Lilienthal had asked that the hearings not be confined to specific charges but cover all phases of the commission's work so that a fair evaluation could be made.

"My personal opinion is that it is going to be impossible to draw any fancy limitations on the hearings," McMahon said.

"When we get through, the committee has the task of writing a report and the American people are not going to be satisfied with

Joint Chiefs Oppose B-36, Banshee Test

Result of Duel Might Be Misleading, Congress Is Told

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson yesterday told Congress that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have recommended against a proposed test of the B-36 bomber against the Navy's Banshee fighter plane.

Johnson wrote Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee—which had proposed the interception test—of the Joint Chiefs' decision. He enclosed a letter from Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, opposing the move.

Denfeld, writing for the JCS, declared that tests are now under way to evaluate the worth of strategic bombers against all types of defenses, including jet fighters. He emphasized that many factors are involved in the interception of the B-36, which would make the results of the proposed test misleading.

"The Joint Chiefs consider that the test envisaged in the resolution . . . would serve no useful purpose except as they are a carefully integrated part of the entire general process of evaluation, Denfeld said.

"Vulnerability tests will be conducted as part of the general program, but such tests, standing alone, would be entirely inconclusive . . . and yet . . . subject to serious ministerpretation on the part of the public."

Declaring that the tests will of course be continued, the Navy chief said the "possession of this information (made public by the proposed test) by a potential enemy would be prejudicial to our national security. For that reason no public releases of results will be made."

This development came some hours after the House Armed Services Committee had voted to make a "full dress" investigation of the Air Force's B-36 bomber

Two Women, 10 Men Picked For Hiss Jury

Ex-Official Seems Confident as Trial For Perjury Opens

New York, May 31 (AP).—Alger Hiss came to trial in Federal court today on perjury charges.

Selection of a jury of 10 men and two women was completed 3½ hours after the case was opened. Foreman is Hubert E. James, a junior executive with the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

The Government's chief charge is that the former State Department official lied when he denied before a Federal grand jury he ever gave secret State Department papers to Whittaker Chambers, self-admitted former Soviet spy-ring courier.

The trial had been postponed six times.

Wife in Courtroom

Hiss, who advised President Roosevelt at Tehran and served as secretary-general of the United Nations Conference at San Francisco, stepped into court confidently as the session opened.

He smiled at his wife, Priscilla. They chatted and sat down together in the front row of the courtroom.

When the procedure got under way Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman asked if the defendant were present.

"Yes, sir," Hiss answered clearly. Rising, he faced the bench.

A panel of 60 prospective jurors craned their necks to see him, a dark, rather handsome man of 44 dressed in grey suit, white shirt and blue necktie.

Four Talesmen Excused

Selection of a jury was observed by Hiss' attorney, Lloyd Paul Stryker, and the Government's prosecutors — Assistant United States Attorney Thomas P. Murphy and Thomas Donegan, special assistant to the United States Attorney General.

By luncheon recess Judge Kaufman had excused four talesmen who said they had strong feelings against Communists or persons accused of communism.

He leaned forward to inquire

Policemen Accused

Bonaccorsy and Roche to Face Trial Board Over Summons

Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy and Detective Sergt. James Roche will face a trial board Friday on charges they failed to answer a Municipal Court summons, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said yesterday.

The summons involved a bootlegging charge against Gerald R. Barnes, 33-year-old cab driver, of 1244 Girard st. nw., who was arrested January 14 by Bonaccorsy and Roche.

The Corporation Counsel's office had declared it had an "ironclad" case against Barnes. However, the charge against Barnes was dismissed May 12 in Municipal Court when the arresting officers did not appear.

Wesley Williams, attorney for Barnes, had predicted such a result three months earlier, declaring Barnes had been "framed" as a coverup for the beating of another cab driver, James Rowell, at Thomas Circle.

Barnes was arrested about 45 minutes after Rowell had been beaten, and the scene of his arrest, 10th and V sts. nw, was about 13 blocks from Thomas Circle.

Major Barrett told a reporter later that he thought Bonaccorsy and Roche were guilty of the attack on Rowell but he couldn't prove it. Still later, a grand jury cleared the two policemen of any connection with the Rowell beating.

Barrett said charges against Bonaccorsy and Roche in the Barnes case were prepared upon completion of an investigation by Inspector Robert J. Bryant, chief of detectives, and Capt. Archie N. Winfree, commanding officer of the Sixth Precinct.

Barrett refused to comment further on the case, but said the two men are not under suspension at this time.

T-H Repeal Gets Priority Over Pact

Truman Assents To New Timetable Against Wishes of State Department

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Democratic leaders yesterday gave legislation repealing the Taft-Hartley Act right-of-way over Senate ratification of the North Atlantic Pact.

The decision was announced by Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) despite a State Department call for prior action on the treaty.

Lucas told newsmen the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is not ready as yet to proceed with the pact. He said President Truman "raised no objection" to calling up the labor bill first during a White House legislative conference yesterday.

New Schedule Arranged

The new Senate timetable was worked out at a meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee immediately following the White House talks.

It was learned that a combination of factors entered into the decision. Organized labor has been pressing for Senate action on the repeal measure ever since the companion House bill was recommitted.

The deciding factor was said to be a feeling on the part of Foreign Relations Committee leaders that by proceeding normally they can get a unanimously favorable report for the treaty.

Leadership spokesmen said privately that such a report would do as much or more than a speedup of treaty debate to strengthen Secretary of State Acheson's hand in current Big Four Foreign Ministers talks.

Debate Now Seen Harmful

Some sitting in on the policy conference were said to have argued that debate at this time might weaken our position at Paris, since a handful of opposition Senators will be the most vocal.

The State Department was reported resigned to this view after making every effort to speed up action on the treaty to clear the way for legislation providing arms for friendly countries.

Lucas told a press conference delayed Senate action on the North Atlantic Pact did not necessarily foreclose action later this session on the implementing arms bill.

"There is no doubt whatever the pact will be ratified," Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) told reporters.

Don't Worry, Connally Says

"It (the pact) will not be affected by a necessary delay in the Senate. Of course we are anxious to secure ratification of the pact as soon as possible, but the leadership has the real direction as to time. Friends of the pact have no cause for concern."

Connally declined to speculate on what effect the delay will have on the arms bill.

Lucas followed up his program announcement with a letter replying to CIO President Philip Murray's call on Congress to pass the Taft-Hartley repealer and other "key" Truman measures this session.

Lucas advised Murray of the policy group's decision to take up the labor bill "in the next few

Coplon Trial Given Secrets In Her Purse

Copies of FBI Data U. S. Says She Stole Placed in Evidence Along With Decoy

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

Twenty-two secret FBI data slips, found in Judith Coplon's purse when she was arrested with a Russian last March, were introduced as evidence yesterday in her espionage trial.

The slips were copies of top secret FBI reports on U. S. counter-espionage and the Government contends Miss Coplon made the copies.

One slip said that Ruth Gruber, once an aide to former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, was a "contact" of F. A. Garanin of the Russian Embassy. Miss Gruber promptly denied this.

Three other slips contained detailed descriptions of three Washington residents as "potential recruits" for the Soviet spy service.

Two Have Attended Trial

They were Lorraine Elkin Sinderbrand and her husband Alvin, of 247 Delaware ave., sw., both of whom have attended sessions of the Coplon trial, and Albert Boynton Stevenson, who once lived at 1635 N. Woodstock st., Arlington, Va.

A fifth document was a "deliberately false" report that a member of Amtorg, Soviet trading agency, was informing against Russia. This decoy report, according to the government, was intentionally routed to Miss Coplon only 10 hours before she was arrested in New York with a paraphrase of it in her possession.

The contents of the Coplon purse, the backbone of the Government's case, were introduced over the vigorous protests of her lawyer, Archibald Palmer, who has contended they were illegally seized.

Most of the slips were either original documents or "true carbons" according to Prosecutor John Kelley. The Government charges that Miss Coplon stole the secret information slips while she was working in the Justice Department's Alien Registration Section to give to Valentin A. Gubitchev, suspended United Nations employe.

The slip which mentioned Dr. Gruber was an excerpt from an FBI report on one Ursula Wasserman, otherwise unidentified. The slip said: "In March, 1946, subject had in her address book the name of Ruth Gruber. Gruber has been reported to have been a contact of F. A. Garanin of the Soviet Embassy, Washington. Gruber was secretary to Harold Ickes, Secretary of Interior."

Miss Gruber left the Government in February, 1946, one day before Ickes. In New York yesterday, she said, "I never knew or heard of the Coplon girl until her name appeared in the newspapers. I never was a contact person for anyone. My job was not secretary to Mr. Ickes, which might imply I had access to secret papers. I had none. I was one of the Department's field representatives working on several projects." She described herself as a free lance writer in New York.

2 'Ringers' Will Take Stage In Godfrey Show at Armory

(Ticket data on Page 17)

If you go to the Arthur Godfrey "Homecoming" at the National Guard Armory Saturday night you're going to see a couple of "ringers."

For appearing as "discoveries" on Godfrey's "Talent Scout" show will be Jane Russell, Hollywood star, and Bob Hope, of radio and movie fame. And if anybody has to "discover" talent in la Russell, the buxom brunette, or Hope of the prominent proboscis, well!

When the show gets under way at 8:30 p. m., there will be some surprises in it, too, for Arthur Godfrey. The impudent redhead, one of the funniest men in radio, is bringing his entire CBS radio and television cast for the show, ready for anything—even surprises.

Proceeds from the "Homecoming," and the National Celebrities Golf Tournament to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Army-Navy Country Club, go to charities engaged in boys' and girls' work in support of Attorney General Tom Clark's program to combat juvenile delinquency.

The plan is to have the show in two parts. The first part will be the same type of show that Godfrey does in the mornings for Chesterfield.

When Godfrey moves into the second part of his show, he is expected to discover some rather unusual talent scouts who, in turn, are going to turn up some very unusual "amateur" talent.

The talent scouts will be men from the highest branches of Government—perhaps Chief Justice of the United States Fred M. Vinson, United States Attorney General Tom Clark and other similar dignitaries.

The "scouts" are going to come up with Jane Russell, Bob Hope, Morton Downey, veteran Irish tenor, and maybe Sammy Snead, a guy who is quite a golfer.

Bond Rally Postponed Again by Julian Death

A bond rally, originally postponed because of the death of former Defense Secretary Forrestal, was again postponed—this time indefinitely—on account of the death Sunday of the United States Treasurer W. A. Julian.

The rally, first scheduled for May 25, then changed for today, was to be held in front of the District Building.

Home Rule Bill Provisions

The Senate-approved Washington home rule bill would:

1. Give qualified District residents a vote in choosing members of a city council and an elected school board. Nine councilmen would be elected—two appointed by the President. It does not provide a vote for President or Congressmen.

2. Group most District agencies into 12 major departments under a city manager selected by the council. Schools would be operated under the elected board.

3. Preserve basic elements of Congressional control over the District imposed by the Constitution. Major changes in District laws would be "proposed" by the city council. Its proposals would go to Congress. They could be disapproved by resolution of both Houses. If not disapproved in 45 days they would go to the President. He could disapprove. If he did not disapprove a proposal in 10 days it would become law. In addition Congress and the President could, without reference to the council, make laws for the District as they do now.

Western Big 3 Bar Soviet Zone Delegates

Action Expected To Interrupt Talk Of German Union

By Walter Kerr

Paris, May 31 (NYHT).—The three Western Powers refused today to hear a 22-man delegation from the German People's Congress of the Soviet zone as requested by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

They turned down an application received from Berlin and in doing so probably brought to a close further discussion of the unification of Germany at this session of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

The four powers are expected to go on Wednesday to the second item on their agenda—Berlin and the currency question.

This is a field where some progress may be made and where negotiation may reveal the limits within which agreement is possible in Paris.

Westerners Meet

It was in preparation for this second phase of the conference and to estimate the implications of the first phase that a private meeting was held at the Quai d'Orsay this morning. It was attended by American Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman. They have a number of proposals to make, including a demand for free access to Berlin from the western zones along all major highways and railroads.

Beyond this, they will seek free elections to a new municipal council for all Berlin in the hope of ending the present confusion. Vishinsky has said he wants the same thing and the only question is whether agreement can be reached on what the word "free" means and the method of conducting elections.

The financial problem may be more difficult. At present there are two currencies, one for the western zones of the country and the western sectors of the city, the other for the east.

Vishinsky Attacks Plan

At the afternoon session of the council today Vishinsky took 2½ hours of a 3½-hour meeting to continue his denunciation of the Western proposal for German unity based upon the principles of the Bonn constitution.

For the most part he repeated yesterday's objections that this basic law was undemocratic and contrary to the Potsdam agreement and that the Western Powers, through an occupation statute, were attempting to delay the preparation of a peace treaty.

Through Vishinsky's speech ran the thread of a thought that it was the Soviet delegation and not the Western Powers that desired the unity of Germany. His previous statements have given the impression he would settle for the political status quo and Western observers are still convinced that is his platform.

His request that a hearing be

Stock Decline Is Sharpest Since Fall

Shares Lose Billion In Value on Market; Commodities Also Skid

By C. Norman Stabler

New York, May 31 (NYHT).—Heavy liquidation and sharp price breaks characterized world securities and commodities markets today.

In the New York stock market the piercing of the earlier low for the year was the signal for new sales in volume, and the result was the sharpest break since November 9.

Reports from London and Toronto helped depress the market.

On the average the stock list was off 1.08 points, and the close was near the poorest of the day.

A total of 1,236,840 shares changed hands on the Big Board, the most since April 21. The last hour's turnover was 430,000 shares, when prices were their weakest.

[The declines represented a loss of more than a billion dollars in all issues traded, according to the Associated Press.—Editor's note.]

Technical Traders Sell

The Stock Exchange list recorded but eight new highs for the year against 234 new lows. A good part of the selling developed when the resistance point—that is the previous low for 1949—was broken. This gave the technical followers of the stock market a signal to sell. In the selected list of new highs were American News, Anchor Hocking Glass, Caterpillar Tractor new and W. T. Grant.

So sharp was the decline that it carried the market, on the average, to a new low since June 2, 1947. It was another confirmation to the technicians that the declining trend in business and finance have produced a bear market.

The trend in commodities was the same, with wheat off 2⅜ to 5 cents a bushel, corn down 1 to 2 cents, oats off 1⅛ to 1½ and rye down 3½ to 4 cents a bushel.

Record Production Indicated

The selling wave in wheat came when lower cash prices were quoted in Kansas City. Another factor was an estimate by the Santa Fe Railroad that indicated record or near-record winter wheat production in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Cash wheat prices were quoted at 10 cents a bushel under Saturday's closing figure. Combined with excellent spring wheat prospects in the United States and Canada, the market was unsettled from the start.

Cotton futures closed in New York with losses of $1.05 to $1.65 a bale.

It was much the same story in other world markets. London prices were heavy, with selling pressure accompanying word of the forthcoming Labor Party conference and the uncertain trade outlook. In Toronto, active market for mining share prices were hammered down in the worst break since March 16, 1948. Gold issues went to their lowest of the

Total Mobilization Ordered In Bolivia to Combat Strikers

La Paz, Bolivia, May 31 (U.P.)—The Bolivian government tonight decreed general mobilization of all able-bodied citizens between 19 and 50 to combat the labor and political unrest growing out of what the government has described as revolutionary strikes.

Dispatches from the provincial capital of Oruro reported that federal troops seized control of the Huanuni tin mines after a sharp clash with striking mine workers who hurled dynamite at the soldiers.

The troops liberated four foreigners, including an American mine superintendent, Howard Keller, who had been held as hostages by the strikers.

At least two miners and one soldier were killed in the battle between the dynamite-throwing strikers and the troops. A detachment of Bolivian troops from the Oruro garrison moved into the mines after routing the 2000 strikers.

The strikers, reportedly armed with rifles and other weapons, fled into the hills.

Reports from the provinces said mine after mine was closed down by strikes or by order of the management in fear of possible violence, and the evacuation of American engineers from mining centers was hastened.

The mobilization order instructed all able-bodied Bolivians in the 19-to-50 age group that they will be called by categories "in accordance with requirements" by the Ministry of National Defense.

The order followed a state of siege declared by the cabinet last night because of belief that the strikes were intended as the first step in an opposition attempt to overthrow the government.

49-27 Vote Turns Down Segregation Amendment

(Roll Call, Page 13)

Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday approved the Washington home rule bill by a voice vote and sent it to the House.

Passage of the bill came with dramatic and unpredicted suddenness at 2:33 p. m. Sponsors had feared a filibuster. None developed.

The Senate's final two hours' work on the bill went to debating and finally defeating, 49 to 27, a segregation amendment by Senators Eastland (D., Miss.) and Johnston (D., S. C.).

Called for Referendum

Their proposal called for giving District voters, through referendum, the final "yes" or "no" on any changes in Washington's pattern of racial segregation.

Defeat of the amendment was followed within a few seconds by approval of the bill in the form it was prepared by the Senate District Committee.

"It's a great day for the District of Columbia and for our Nation," said Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), head of the subcommittee which drafted the bill.

Finch Comments on Speed

"Did you ever see anything happen so fast in your life?" exclaimed Wilbur Finch, president of the Washington Central Suffrage Conference. He had watched progress of the bill from the Senate gallery.

"Passage of the home rule bill is really a milestone in the history of the District," said Finch. "It's the first time since 1878 that either House of Congress has approved any major legislation affecting reorganization of the District government and participation of its citizens in the Government."

Fate In House Is Question

Senate passage raised the big question of what the House will do with the bill. It goes to the House District Committee whose present leadership opposed last year's similar home rule bill. The House itself last year debated the home rule measure then sponsored by Representative Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and laid it aside as unfinished business.

Auchincloss yesterday received word of the Senate's action with this comment, "No kidding—it didn't take them long."

"I think it's great. I'm delighted.

Sparkman Studies Plan to Rid D. C. of Slums

A multi-million dollar, 20-year program to rid Washington of all its slums and replace them with low-cost housing is being studied by Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.).

The plan, involving construction of 16,000 low-income dwellings at a cost of between 112 and 138 million dollars, was drafted by John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority.

Sparkman said he had requested the draft from Ihlder as a preliminary step to calling public hearings before the Senate Banking Subcommittee.

Pay Jumps Ruled Unfair During Talks

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday declared it is an unfair labor practice for a company, while negotiating with a union, to suddenly raise wages more than the union has asked.

The unanimous decision involved the Crompton-Highland Mills, Inc., of Griffin, Ga., and the CIO Textile Workers Union. Justice Harold H. Burton wrote the opinion. Justices William O. Douglas, Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge, while agreeing on principle, differed on a question of procedure.

Company-union negotiations on wages and other issues had reached an impasse on December 19, 1945, but on January 1, 1946, the company suddenly put into effect, without telling the union, an increase of 2 to 6 cents an hour for most of the employes represented by the union.

Smaller Hike Asked

The union had asked for a smaller wage increase and had been offered 1 cent to 1½ cents an hour at the last meeting between the two sides.

The National Labor Relations Board charged the company with unfair labor practice and with refusing to bargain collectively with the union. The Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, however, ruled against the NLRB, but was overruled by yesterday's decision.

Justice Burton declared:

"We do not here have a unilateral grant of an increase in pay made by an employer after the same proposal has been made by the employer in the course of collective bargaining but has been left unaccepted or even rejected in those negotiations. Such a grant might well carry no disparagement of the collective bargaining proceedings. Instead of being regarded as an unfair labor practice, it might be welcomed by the bargaining representative, without prejudice to the rest of the negotiations."

The company, in the Circuit Court hearing, said it later had reached a tentative agreement with the union and had bargained on two additional pay increases. This, the company contended, constitutioned proper collective bargaining and the lower court agreed.

The Supreme Court decision sent the case back to the Circuit Court with instructions to issue the necessery decree to enforce the NLRB order against the company.

Other Court Actions

In other actions yesterday, the court:

1. Ruled unanimously that the OPA should not have made use of evidence volunteered by a businessman in one proceeding to bring another case against him. The case involved George Smith, a New York manufacturer, sentenced to three years in prison and fined $470,000 for illegal textile buying. The case now goes back to the lower court.

2. Refused to reconsider the case of Harvey Stemmer and David Krakower, convicted of offering bribes to New York Giant pro football players. The court already had upheld the convictions.

3. Ruled that the Interior Department may allow Alaska Indians use of tidelands as part of their reservation but may not grant them exclusive fishing rights there.

4. Canceled, by a 7-to-2 ruling, an $80,000 award to the Penn Foundry & Manufacturing Co. of Waynesboro, Va. The case involved a broken wartime contract and hinged on a letter sent by the Navy to the company giving a gun mount contract and a telegram received the same day declaring the letter a mistake.

5. Agreed to review an NLRB order requiring the Colgate-Palm-Olive-Peet Co. to reinstate 37 employes discharged from a California plant. The discharge was on demand of a CIO union, which alleged the employes favored a rival AFL union.

Appeals Court Voids Boeing Union's Rights

The U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday nullified the bargaining rights of a machinists' union local at the Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle, because it failed to file a 30-day strike notice as required by the Taft-Hartley labor-management law.

The court ruled, 3 to 0, that Aeronautical Industrial District Lodge No. 751 of the International Association of Machinists violated both the Taft-Hartley Act and its own no-strike contract by a 12-week strike at the Boeing plant last year.

The union gave only a 24-hour notice of intention when it struck April 22, 1948. The Taft-Hartley law requires 60-day notice of termination of a contract and 30-day notice of a dispute.

The Appeals Court set aside an order of the National Labor Relations Board that found Boeing guilty of an unfair labor practice for refusing to deal with the union since the strike began. The court said the company is free to treat the union as having broken its contract, and that Boeing is free to hire replacements for striking union members.

"The language of the act is simple," Judge George C. Sweeney said for the court. "And we conclude that . . . the union was not free to renounce its contract unless it complied with the act. There is no justification for excusing this union from the operation of the statute."

Carpenters' Strike Called the union providing for the 10-cent hourly increase.

The one-page contract, it was said, provides for the 10-cent increase asked by the union, but states the contract will be superseded in the event a contract is signed by the union and the Master Builders Association.

The Master Builders' Association represents some 40 builders, according to Holden, mediation commissioner. He estimated that about 200 builders are not members.

A union official told Holden 37 builders had signed by late afternoon, and that these builders employed 7 to 10 per cent of the 5000 District carpenters.

Union officials declined to state whether any builders who signed were members of the Master Builders' Association. Members of the executive council refused to talk after their late night meeting.

The carpenters' strike not only is expected to paralyze building operations in the Washington area, but will affect construction as far away as Annapolis, Md., and about half way to Baltimore; also as far as Fredericksburg, Va. Only home construction, built chiefly by non-union mechanics and labor, would escape the tie-up. Elevator-type apartment construction would feel the full brunt of the work stoppage along with bridges, school buildings, office buildings, tunnels, and the like.

Among the new structures and repair projects on which work would be stopped or hindered are the General Accounting Office, Dupont Circle underpass, Whitehurst freeway (K st. overpass) South Capitol st. and Fourteenth st. bridges, eight new District schoolhouses, a research building at the National Institute of Health, Bethesda; a wind tunnel at the Naval Ordnance Station, White Oak, Md., and a score of downtown and midtown office buildings.

Only 3 Workers Report At Buggs Island Dam

Castle Heights, Va., May 31 (AP). Only three of 143 second-shift workers reported for duty here this afternoon as AFL craft unions further applied their strike order against the 78-million-dollar Buggs Island Dam project.

The work stoppage, begun at 7:30 a. m., when 317 of 328 third-shift workers declined to go on their jobs, was described by Fred L. Geis, jr., Army resident engineer, as a "general strike."

Paul A. Askew of Norfolk, chairman of the AFL unions involved, said the unions have made three demands: Union recognition, higher wages and work conditions.

Self-Service Stations For Gasoline Banned

Trenton, N. J., My 31 (U.P.)—Governor Alfred E. Driscoll today signed a bill prohibiting self-service gasoline stations.

The measure, sponsored by New Jersey's organized filling station operators, bans them as fire hazards.

Ford Contract Parleys Set As 106,000 Still Stay Idle

Detroit, May 31 (AP).—Ford and the CIO United Auto Workers will open talks on a new contract Thursday, with most of the company's 106,000 workers in the midst of poststrike idleness.

The company and the union also announced their committees to pick an arbitrator to settle a key issue of the recent strike, charges of speed-up operations, and Ford disclosed tentative dates for reopening some of its plants between now and June 13.

To pick the arbitrator, or one member of a three-man arbitration board, Ford named M. M. Cummins, labor relations manager, and W. W. Aulepp and R. B. King, industrial engineers. The UAW appointed National Ford Director Ken Bannon, President Thomas Thompson, of Local 600, and Jack Conway, assistant to UAW President Walter Reuther.

This six-man group will meet for the first time Tuesday.

Contract negotiations had been slated to start May 15, but Ford refused to enter them while the strike continued. In the new contract to start July 15, the union is asking a $100-a-month pension plan, health and accident insurance, and some form of wage increase.

Only a limited number of men returned today to Ford's key Rouge Plant. It was left for Rouge to get into its full swing of parts manufacture before others among Ford's 49 plants could reach normalcy.

4000 Probe Reuther Case

Detroit, May 31 (AP).—Four thousand law enforcement officers bore down tonight on every known gambling den, hoodlum hangout and subversive headquarters in Wayne County (Detroit) in a renewed hunt for the would-be killer of Victor Reuther.

They were working on the theory that the shootings of Victor and Walter Reuther might have grown from the brothers' opposition to gambling in this city's auto plants.

Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy reported an underworld tip that the Ford Motor Co. strike had cost a gambling syndicate $250,000. The losses were in horse racing bets, numbers, pools and lotteries.

Meanwhile, Toy reported that only 20 of the shotguns of the type used in the Victor Reuther shooting were sent into Michigan by the Massachusetts manufacturer. All were delivered to a Bay City distributor, Toy said, who in turn sold them to retailers in Bay City, Saginaw and Flint. Toy said 15 of the 20 have been traced so far.

Lewis Assails 'Record of Horror' in Urging U. S. Bureau Authority to Close Unsafe Pits

John L. Lewis smote the coal mine operators hip and thigh yesterday, as he called on Congress to give the Federal Bureau of Mines authority to shut down unsafe mines.

For a full hour the United Mine Workers' chief denounced the mine owners and operators opposing proposed mine safety legislation as "polecats," "human leeches," men "with calloused hearts—if they have hearts," "sutlers and camp followers," who have "damned their souls to eternal hell."

During the past 19 years, Lewis charged, 1,259,000 miners have been "maimed, mangled or killed" in the mines for the lack of properly enforced safety standards.

"What a record of horror," exclaimed the UMW leader, thumping the table and raising his stentorian voice to a tremendous roar.

Compares War Casualties

Statistically, Lewis said, the record shows that every miner now in the pits has been injured or killed three times by mine accidents and explosions.

"Was there ever a war fought more decimating to the population?" Lewis asked.

During the first year and a half of the Second World War, he asserted, the casualties in the coal mines exceeded those of the armed forces.

Testifying before a subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee, John L. heaped his scorn, contempt and wrath on the coal industry, and called upon Congress to give "redress" to the miners.

If he only had the magical powers of Merlin, Lewis thundered, he would march the million and a quarter maimed and dead miners, "the quick and the dead," past Congress, with the injured dragging the dead behind them, flanked by the five weeping members of each miner's family.

Perhaps then, when the members of Congress had to stop up their ears and cover their eyes from the sounds and sight of this march "of death and agony" would Congress help the miners, Lewis cried.

Industry Opposes Bill

Lewis was the last scheduled witness to testify on a bill that would give Federal inspectors the right to remove miners from those coal mines in which the hazards were such as to place them in imminent danger. Representatives of the industry, and of the State mining agencies, have opposed the bill, partly on the ground that any such law would give the Federal Government unconstitutional police powers.

The Eightieth Congress, after the Central mine disaster in 1947, passed a law that permitted Federal inspectors to enter the mines, call for correction of hazards, and publicize the results. Lewis charged the law has been ineffective.

The UMW chief quoted the following statistics: In the past year, 2184 mines were inspected by the Federal agents; 1934 mines were reinspected to determine compliance with recommended corrections. It was found that 34 per cent of the hazards were eliminated; 15 per cent corrected in part; and no corrective action taken in 51 per cent of the cases. Seven State agencies ignored reporting to the Bureau of Mines. In Virginia, where 1661 violations were noted, only 2 corrections were reported.

The coal industry, Lewis said, showed its greatest year's profits in 1948, with an indicated increase of 25 to 33 per cent in the first quarter of 1949. The industry, he shouted, is "fat and able" enough to pay the cost of making the mines safe.

The industry, he hinted, is also "fat and able" enough to increase its present 20-cents-a-ton contribution to the miners' welfare fund, a subject much to be discussed in pending contract negotiations with the mine operators.

Britain and Argentina Conclude Trade Treaty

Buenos Aires, May 31 (AP).—Argentina and Britain agreed today to a five-year commercial treaty covering exchange of meat, fuel and other products in an amount expected to exceed 320 million dollars a year.

A joint announcement said the treaty would be drafted and signed shortly.

Details were not made public, but it is known this is the biggest treaty of any in the 126-year history of British-Argentine commercial relations.

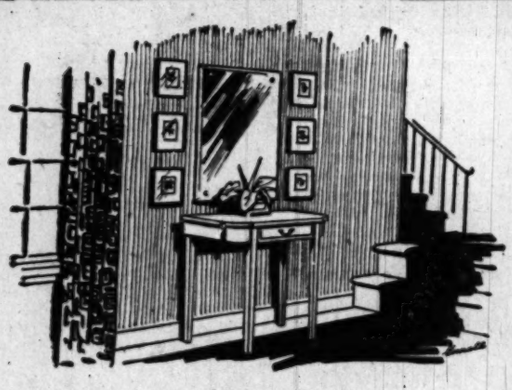
SPEAKING OF Furniture
By ELIZABETH GUYER



WALL DECORATION

A picture, no matter how beautiful and expensive, is just another picture if not properly placed. The same thing applies to mirrors and other wall accessories. Pictures that "don't belong" will throw an otherwise perfect room completely off balance.

In the above illustration, for example, it is easy to see what would have happened if only the mirror were used . . . it would completely dwarf the fragile drawer table. These two extremes have been brought into perfect harmony by the attractive arrangement of small prints, which tends to fuse and unify the group.

Of course, the picture itself plays an important part in any grouping. If its theme or design is not satisfactory, it will often lead the eye away. But this is easily corrected through the use of accessories. If, for instance, you are using profile portraits they should be hung facing each other.

Further emphasis may be secured by leaving ample free space around a picture or by mounting it on an over-sized mat. A clever lighting arrangement may also be used to advantage.

If you have a decorating problem you can't solve, please feel free to stop in and consult us . . . there is no charge.

German Rail Chief Bans Strike Talks

Berlin, May 31 (AP).—Hopes for an early settlement of Berlin's railway strike were chilled today. Willy Kreikemeyer, president of the Soviet-controlled German railway administration, rejected an offer of Mayor Ernst Reuter of west Berlin to mediate in the 11-day walkout of anti-Communist workers.

The railway president said he was recognizing only the Communist Free German Trade Union as legal bargaining agent.

The 12,000 strikers are demanding recognition of UGO, a west sector independent labor union, full payment of wages in westmarks and reemployment of strikers and employes fired for political reasons.

Kreikemeyer has offered payment of 60 per cent of wages in westmarks, but the strikers are holding out for 100 per cent.

Kreikemeyer's reply put an end to the optimism that rose yesterday when the Western Allied Kommandantura reported that negotiations might end the strike that has cost two lives and hundreds of injured, and paralyzed rail traffic.

The strikers said their walkout would continue. More than 40 Berlin-bound freight trains were idle on tracks in the Soviet Zone, because strikers occupy all installations in west Berlin yards. The Western-licensed press reported scores of trains bound for Russia also were tied up.

July 17 Set as Date For West German Vote

Frankfurt, May 31 (AP). — West German political leaders today tentatively set Sunday, July 17, as the date for the election of their first government since the Nazi era. They planned to make the final decision Friday at Bonn.

German voters will elect a parliamentary lower house or Bundestag, which will be chief lawmaking body for the 45 million or more persons in the United States, British and French zones. State governments will appoint members of the upper house, or Bundesrat.

2 German Generals Freed

Paris, May 31 (U.P.).—A military tribunal today acquitted two German generals of responsibility for the execution of hostages during the Nazi ocupation of France. The court decided Gen. Mariz von Faber de Faur and Gen. Edward von Rotberg were not guilty.

Prague, May 31 (U.P.).—Gerhart Eisler, chuckling at his escape from American "persecutors," flew here from London today, "delighted to be on free soil."

Eisler, reputedly the former top Communist agent in the United States, may report to the Communist Information Bureau (the Cominform), which is believed to be meeting now on Czech soil.

Eisler refused to comment on these reports, but he made no secret of his joy in outwitting the United States Department of Justice now that he was securely behind the Iron curtain.

"America's Biggest Fool"

"No judge in the United States would have set me free," Eisler said.

Asked about an alleged statement by United States Attorney General Tom Clark that Eisler was America's biggest Communist, he replied, "No, I am not; but Clark is America's biggest fool."

There was no official explanation of Eisler's presence here. In London he was granted a transit visa and on the Prague passenger list he was: "Eisler, G., stateless." He was whisked through customs.

Eisler admitted his departure from London was "sudden." He walked out on a Communist rally he was to address. He was driven swiftly to Northhold Airport in a closed limousine at 8:30 a. m. His name was not on the London passenger list. His ticket was nameless, his baggage not tagged.

His passage, Czech officials in London said, was arranged by a Mrs. Born, who traveled with him.

Worried About Wife

Eisler said he was worried about his wife, who is detained on Ellis Island at New York.

"I don't care if the United States fights against me," he said. "I'm their enemy—a Communist. But to take petty revenge against a wife is not the American way."

He charged U. S. authorities with seizing his wife as a "hostage—just like the Nazis."

Eisler said he had an uneasy feeling flying over the U. S. occupation zone of Germany.

"You never know what the Americans are going to do against you," he said.

He landed at Prague at 1:35 p. m. 7:35 a. m. EDT) and stepped off carrying one suitcase, a briefcase, an overcoat draped over his arm. Czech and Polish officials and two plain-clothes men greeted him.

Freed by British Court

The 52-year-old veteran German Communist jumped bail in the United States, where he was convicted of falsification of his passport papers and contempt of Congress. He fled to England aboard the Polish ship Batory, where, kicking and screaming, he was thrown in jail.

Eisler was freed by a British court last week when the U. S. attempted to extradite him on a perjury charge.

Eisler Loses Round In Supreme Court

Gerhart Eisler lost another round in his legal battles with the American Government yesterday—battles that have lost their meaning since his dramatic flight from the country.

The Supreme Court refused Eisler's lawyers extra time to file an appeal from his conviction on passport fraud charges.

At the same time, however, the tribunal took no action on a Justice Department recommendation that it dismiss an appeal filed by Eisler's counsel from his conviction for contempt of Congress.

The department said that since Eisler fled the country the court should throw out his appeal.

Western Big 3 Bar Delegates

given to the German People's Congress drew a prompt reply from Acheson.

"I do not believe for one minute," he said, "that the 2000 delegates (who picked the delegation which asked to come to Paris) were in any way representatives of the people of Germany or even the people of the Soviet zone. I do not believe this delegation could or would express any views whatsoever than those expressed by Mr. Vishinsky. I should rather prefer to look to Mr. Vishinsky for official expressions of Soviet views."

The Soviet delegate did not insist, and the Western ministers kept their record straight by saying duly elected German representatives should be heard when a peace treaty is being discussed and not before.

Sheik Pledges Fight Against Italian Rule

Tripoli, May 31 (AP).—The one-eyed Mufti of Libya said today he would lead his more than 700,000 Moslem followers in a fight to death if the United Nations reimposed Italian rule over Tripolitania.

"It would not be another Palestine," the 70-year-old Sheik Mohammed Bulas ad el Alem declared. "We would never leave the battlefield alive."

Rioting broke out here recently while the U. N. Assembly in New York was deliberating over a British-Italian plan to cut Italy in on a split-up of the African Empire Mussolini lost in war. The Assembly finally put over the question until its fall session and the former colonies remain under British military administration.

"We accept nothing less than complete independence as a constitutional monarchy with Emir Sir Sayyed Idris el Senussi of Cyrenaica as king," the Mufti said.

Turk Urges Mid-East Pact

London, May 31 (U.P.). — Husein Yalcin, member of the Turkish Parliament, today called for a "Middle Eastern pact" as forerunner to an eventual "Mediterranean pact."

Yalcin, here with a group of Turkish parliamentarians, said such a pact should include Turkey, all Arab countries south of Turkey, Iran, Israel and Egypt as "the gatekeeper of Africa."

He said such a pact was possible only if "we have peace in the Middle East first."

Yalcin emphasized his desire to have Israel in the group and said, "There should be no discrimination between Middle Eastern countries."

He said the time was not ripe for a Mediterranean pact.

Yugoslavs Rap Hungarians

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 31 (U.P.).—The Hungarian government has ordered the Yugoslav reparations mission to leave Hungary and has thus created a "state of dispute" with Yugoslavia, a communique said today.

The communique reviewed a six-month exchange of notes following Hungary's refusal to continue reparations deliveries last year. The exchange culminated in a Hungarian note May 25 ordering the Yugoslav mission out by noon, May 29. A sharp protest by the Yugoslav mission in Budapest was met with a flat rejection yesterday.

The communique said Hungary's action meant "the Hungarian government. . . . has gone another step further in its policy of ruthless violation of international obligations. The Yugoslav government states that a state of dispute has arisen and reserves the right to undertake such steps as it deems necessary for the protection of its country's interests."

Maneuvers of 3 Pact Nations To Test British Air Defenses

London, May 31 (U.P.).—Fighters, bombers and jets from the United States, Britain and The Netherlands will join in the world's biggest peacetime international air maneuvers this month to test Britain's defenses against enemy air attack.

The maneuvers, called Operation Foil, will be held from June 25 through July 3 in the south and east of England. They will be the first combined exercise carried out by the Atlantic Pact countries.

French and Belgian officers will attend as observers.

Royal Air Force bombers and jet fighters will carry out the night attacks, concentrated chiefly on Britain's east coast, while the Third U. S. Air Division Superfortresses will handle daylight raids.

British fighter command day and night fighters and one squadron of Gloster Meteor jet fighters from Holland will defend Britain. They will be supported by all antiaircraft units now in Britain and by 8000 members of the Royal Observers Corps, who will man more than 700 air raid spotting stations.

The air maneuvers will be followed July 4 through July 8 by combined British, French, Belgian and Dutch naval maneuvers in the English Channel.

Cleric Sees Red Talks Ended

Prague, May 31 (U.P.).—Archbishop Josef Beran has told Czechoslovak Catholic clergymen that it is hopeless to reopen negotiations with the Communist government for a church-state agreement, it was made known today.

At the same time Archbishop Beran threatened automatic excommunication of all priests who contribute articles to the government's new "Catholic Clergy Gazette."

Archbishop Beran said in a letter to clergymen that the government's announced intention to keep an iron grip on all education in the nation, and confine it to Marxist lines, "makes all other efforts at negotiations hopeless and in vain."

Minister of Information Vaclav Kopecky told the Communist congres Sunday that the state claimed the right to direct all education in the spirit of "Marx-Lenin teaching." The Archbishop's letter was a direct reply to that statement.

The Archbishop made his most violent attack thus far against the government-sponsored "Catholic Clergy Gaette," published by the Ministry of Education.

He threatened all priests who wrote letters or stories for it with automatic excommunication and called on them to disregard it as an organ for "official church announcements"—which it claims to be.

Reds Closing On Changsha, Canton Says

Canton, May 31 (AP). — Southbound Chinese Communist troops today were reported closing in from the north and east on Changsha, the Nationalist stronghold 400 miles north of Canton.

Central News Agency said the Communists were reinforcing at Changshu, 180 miles east of Changsha, for a drive from the east.

The agency predicted a big battle. It said Nationalist troops also were being reinforced at positions about 30 miles west of Changshu.

Meanwhile the Legislative Yuan, China's parliament, rejected the nomination of 73-year-old Chu Cheng for the premiership. It was believed the main objection was Chu's age. He is a veteran member of the Kuomintang, the Nationalist party.

Possible candidates for the premiership are Marshal Yen Hsishan, the old North China warlord, or Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, whose 250,000-man army is the best force left to Nationalist China.

U. S. Forced to Close Mukden Consulate

By The Associated Press

Six months of Chinese Communist pressure has led the United States to close the American consulate at Mukden, its principal official outpost in Manchuria.

The State Department announced yesterday that orders have gone out for the recall of Consul General Angus Ward and his staff of nine. They have been denied communication with the outside world since last November 18 and are reported to have been kept virtual prisoners.

Coplon Trial Given Secrets From Purse

Maryland farm, Ickes commented explosively to the Associated Press:

"If that's a test of the accuracy of the FBI, they better disband.

"Some fool writes her (Miss Gruber's) name on a slip of paper and they try to smear her. If she's a Red, I'm a Hottentot."

Ickes said he knows Miss Gruber well and "she's a damned able person."

"But the Interior Department has no secret information, anyhow," he said. "What do we have to do with atomic bombs?"

He said Miss Gruber came to him "highly recommended" by Mrs. Mary Simkhovitch, director emeritus of Greenwich House in New York, and by Mrs. Mary Beard, wife of the late historian, Charles A. Beard.

"She worked for me on war refugees from Hitler and Mussolini," Ickes said. "Before that, she wrote a book called 'I Went to the Soviet Arctic' and she lived up there several years.

DR. RUTH GRUBER
Named in document

"This is just a smear. They'll be smearing me next."

In 1946 a House Appropriations Subcommittee investigated reports that Dr. Gruber was on the payroll of the Alaska Railroad at $6000 a year just before she left the Department. She is the author of two books, "I Went to Soviet Arctic" and "Destination Palestine."

The material on "potential recruits" presented to the jury described Lorraine Sinderbrand as a high school classmate of Miss Coplon's, with "progressive political leanings," 26 years old, a former WAVE, a former Patent Office employee who "deplored her reactionary colleagues" and who was "considering going to a psychiatrist."

"She remembers me as a Communist," the document said, "and I think she is confused as to whether I still am a C. (and if so, why I continue to work for the Government at Washington), or if I've 'sold out.' I think her opinion is that I am somewhere between the two; that is, that I'm a neurotic."

Alvin Sinderbrand was described in the document as a 26 or 27-year old law student, who once worked for the Patent Office, more "politically mature" than his wife, and "financially comfortable."

A document described Stevenson as a civilian employe of the Signal Corps, 29, and "pro-Communist, albeit a bit of a 'wishy-washy' idealist, and politically naive."

His political affiliations were not mentioned but he was described as a member of the American Veterans Committee, and an associate of Community Education, Inc., and the Washington Bookshop, on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

AVC headquarters said they had an "A. B. Stevenson, 1635 N. Woodstock st., Arlington, Va.," listed in their records, but that he was dropped from membership in May of 1948, after failing to pay his dues for four months. He could not be reached for comment.

The "deliberately false" document routed by suspicious Justice Department officials to Miss Coplon's attention and produced in evidence yesterday said: "Bureau using two highly placed Amtorg as informants. One is Needleman with whom bureau maintains a rather indirect contact through an intermediary . . . Bureau has recently learned through an informant that Amtorg has been in contact with the Geophysical Research Corp., re geophones. The fact that these are used for the purpose of making blast measurements at Alamogordo and other testing points is highly restricted but Amtorg must apparently have some knowledge of their use."

This document was written in long-hand, the only one of the 28 introduced not typewritten.

The Government said most of the material was contained in two homemade plain white envelopes sealed with transparent tape and inclosed in a hosiery envelope, also taped. The handwritten message was inclosed in a plain white sheet of paper, folded into a 2-inch-by-1-inch package and marked with an arrow, according to the Government

The papers were introduced during direct testimony of T. Scott Miller, jr., an FBI agent, who told of examining Miss Coplon's purse after her arrest with Gubitchev on the night of March 4.

Judge Albert L. Reeves denied without comment a long-pending motion by Palmer to suppress the evidence.

At the Brooklyn home of his father-in-law, Sinderbrand told the Associated Press:

"It was a complete shock for us to find the sketches even existed. It is, of course, a deeper shock for us to find them made public in the trial since the Justice Department told us that they doubted their introduction would be necessary because they were satisfied we were innocently involved.

"We were shown the papers by the Justice Department the day after the Coplon trial began.

"Our connection with Miss Coplon has been purely a social one. My wife attended high school with her."

Sinderbrand said his wife joined him in Washington after their marriage in October, 1947. He is studying law at Georgetown University, he added.

"Since we didn't know too many people in town," Sinderbrand went on, "my wife got in touch with Miss Coplon—one of the few people we knew. It had been four or five years since my wife saw her previously.

"Because of her position, Miss Coplon was quite cautious about discussing politics. In fact, she intimated quite early in our acquaintance that politics was something she didn't care to discuss because of her job with the Justice Department.

"Miss Coplon had never at any time approached us with a view of doing spy activity or to feel us out on our political views . . .

"My wife, Lorraine, never was a Communist, nor was her sister, Sophie. We cannot imagine how Miss Coplon achieved such vivid imagination."

Sinderbrand recalled that his wife once sold tickets to the tenth anniversary dinner of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, but said "it was something she did in 1946 when most people considered it was quite a proper thing to do."

He said he met Carl Marzani once bu they discussed only "real estate in New York."

Sinderbrand says he is scheduled to be graduated from Georgetown in July. He is 27, his wife 26. Their Washington address is 247 Delaware ave. sw., Apartment 306.

Hiss' Trial Opens . . .

order program and the military worth of strategic bombing.

In a unanimous 22-to-0 roll-call, the group called for a "searching" inquiry of "all facts" surrounding the purchase of the giant Consolidated-Vultee plane, including rumors of "irregularities" on the part of high defense officials.

Asks Subpena Powers

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.)—author of the resolution—was directed by the committee to ask the House for subpena powers and $50,000 to hire special counsel and conduct the investigation.

"This involves big issues," said Vinson. "It deals with the reputations of great men and of the National Military Establishment.

"We'll let the chips fall where they may. There'll be no whitewash."

Vinson introduced his resolution after Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.) demanded that a special House committee be named to inquire into "ugly rumors" involving the B-36 program, Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington.

Large Additional Orders

The Pennsylvanian said the Air Force, after deciding to cut back B-36 orders a year ago, placed large additional orders last fall and winter. He declared that Floyd Odlum, who controls Consolidated-Vultee, made large contributions to President Truman's campaign, and that Secretary Johnson was a director and counsel for the company before taking his present post.

Van Zandt also charged that he has heard reports he "could not ignore" that Symington plans to resign soon to head a large plane building "combine" in which Odlum would be a leading figure.

The Air Force Secretary has branded the stories as false, and says he welcomes the opportunity to prove it. Johnson has declared that he has had nothing at all to do with the aircraft orders.

Vinson's resolution calls for a searching investigation "into all phases of the B-36 bomber, including, specifically, all facts relating to when this bomber was purchased, why it was purchased, how it was purchased, any cancellations of other aircraft procurement that may have resulted from such purchases, and any and all other collateral matters that such inquiries may develop."

Van Zandt's "Innuendoes"

The committee chairman said that by "collateral matters," he referred to the "innuendoes" in Van Zandt's speech.

"We're going to clear up this smearing, if there's been any smearing," he added.

Van Zandt said he'd fully support the committee's probe and would withdraw his resolution for a special investigation group.

especially of falesmen if their occupation had any connection with Time, Inc.

Chambers resigned as an editor of Time and went into seculsion on his Maryland farm in the midst of the sensational investigations of his charges.

Later, Hiss, who denied all Chambers' charges, was replaced at his own request in his $20,000-a-year post as head of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

To prove its charges of two perjury counts the Government must produce two witnesses. Maximum penalty for conviction is a $2,000 fine and five years' imprisonment on each count.

[The United Press said it was learned the Government had subpenaed as possible witnesses three women who were baby-sitters for the Hisses in their Washington home in the late 30's.]

The grand jury charged Hiss lied before it in denying he gave classified Government papers to Chambers and that he talked with Chambers in February or March, 1938.

With the jury selected, Stryker moved to dismiss the indictment against Hiss. Judge Kaufman reserved decision.

The defense attorney argued that Hiss' testimony was given to the New York grand jury only a few hours before its term expired last December 15.

Therefore, Stryker said, Hiss' testimony could not have "delayed or obstructed justice," which he called the test of perjury under Federal law.

Furthermore, Stryker contended "the espionage—if any" was more than three years ago—the statutory period during which a crime may be prosecuted.

Before adjourning until tomorrow, Judge Kaufman estimated the trial would take from two to three weeks.

It was indicated the first Government witness would be a member of the grand jury before which Hiss testified.

anything less than a full report and a fair one."

Meanwhile, another Senate committee—this time the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee handling the Atomic Energy Commission's multi-million-dollar appropriation bill—also swung into action yesterday.

Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said the subcommittee will write an amendment into the commission's annual money bill requiring a full FBI loyalty investigation of all atomic fellowship applicants regardless of whether they are engaged in secret or nonsecret work.

O'Mahoney said the committee would try to restore an appropriation of approximately $2,200,000 which the Civil Service Commission and the Budget Bureau had asked for the FBI which had been cut out by the House.

Sees Parallel Case

He suggested to reporters that if the Bureau of the Budget and the Civil Service Commission found loyalty investigations necessary for government workers the committee could see no reason for not requiring them for research scientists supported on the government dollar.

O'Mahoney's announcement was made after the subcommittee had spent the afternoon in executive session with Rear Admiral John Gingrich, former security chief for the commission. Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Neb.) told reporters he wanted to reemphasize his statement of last week that "atomic security must be overhauled."

The loyalty amendment was precipitated by the disclosure that at least one acknowledged Communist had received an AEC fellowship for study in the field of non-secret work.

Could "Name Names"

This disclosure also was one of the factors touching off the Joint Committee Investigation.

Hickenlooper said he hoped he would not have to "name names" to support his charge that individuals with Communist leanings have infiltrated the atomic program. He said that of course he was fully prepared to do so if necessary.

"My case is entirely one of administrative and management control of policies of the commission under Mr. Lilienthal's direction," Hickenlooper said. "It is not a case of the Manhattan District against the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The case has nothing to do with any issue of military versus civilian control," he added. "Civilian control of atomic energy is a policy of this Government and one which I have supported."

Volpe Named Counsel

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday announced appointment of Joseph Volpe, jr., as general counsel. Formerly associate general counsel, Volpe succeeds Adrian S. Fisher, who has been nominated by the President as legal adviser to the State Department.

Volpe has been connected with the U. S. atomic energy project since 1944. While serving as a private in the U. S. Counterintelligence Corps, he was assigned to do special work for the Manhattan Engineer District, the branch of the Army which then had charge of the atomic energy program.

Later, Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves appointed Volpe as a special assistant on his staff. He served in this capacity until 1945.

Consultant to Baruch

Volpe participated in the negotiations of the important international arrangements between the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada in connection with the wartime development of the atomic bomb.

The recipient of several honorary awards, Volpe was assigned after the war to be special assistant to the Undersecretary of War on matters concerning atomic energy legislation. In 1946 he served as consultant to Bernard M. Baruch, United States delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

The hearing will be televised over WNBW from 10 a. m. till approximately 1 p. m. today.

Career Man May Seek Sen. Hickenlooper's Seat

Albert J. Loveland, Undersecretary of Agriculture, reportedly is flirting with the idea of running for Senator from Iowa against Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper next year.

Loveland was in Iowa over the Memorial Day holiday, and plans to return on June 12 for a meeting of Democratic Governors, Senators, Congressmen and party officials. Sixteen States are scheduled to take part in the two-day session.

Loveland formerly was Iowa director of the Production and Marketing Administration. He was named Undersecretary of Agriculture by President Truman last June 27, to succeed Norris E. Dodd, Director-General of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Hickenlooper, who defeated Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa), in 1944, will be up for reelection a year from November. Iowa primaries are the first week in June. Iowa politicians report Hickenlooper may be opposed for renomination by former Gov. Robert Blue.

New Probe Ordered In Bridges Case

Attorney General Clark said yesterday he has ordered a grand jury investigation into reports of tampering with Government witnesses in the Justice Department's proceedings against Harry Bridges.

The Attorney General said the matter has been placed in the hands of F. Joseph Donohue, his special assistant on the West Coast.

Donohue was in charge of the grand jury at San Francisco which indicted Bridges, the CIO Longshoremen's leader, and two other union officials last Wednesday.

Passport Fraud Is Charged

The indictment accused Bridges, who has twice sucessfully resisted deportation, of employing fraud in obtaining his American citizenship in 1945. Bridges is a native of Australia.

The indictment also charged Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, other officials of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, with making false statements in the naturalization proceedings.

The indictment specifically accused Bridges of having falsely denied that he had ever been a member of the Communist Party.

Concerning the alleged tampering with Government witnesses—presumably those who appeared before the grand jury—Clark said in a statement:

Innocent To Be Protected

"Any persons that engages in an attempt to influence witnesses will be speedily and fully prosecuted. Persons having any knowledge of purported attempts are urged to convey the information to Mr. Donohue at the United States Attorney's office.

"The issue in the case is whether the defendants violated Federal statutes. Neither their labor nor their political affiliations are in any way involved, nor were they considered. I am sure this is well known by honest and faithful labor leaders and patriotic workers.

"The cases will be tried in the courts of our land, and not elsewhere. As in the 50,000 or more other criminal cases handled by the Department of Justice and the United States Attorneys a year, the guilty will be vigorously prosecuted and the innocent as vigorously protected."

LAFF-A-DAY

"He's friendly enough . . . it must be just a rumor about his being a woman-hater!"

First Red Witness Testifies for Fifth Day in N. Y. Trial

New York, May 31 (U.P.).—The first defense witness in the Communist conspiracy trial testified for the fifth day today. Court observers said that if the other 10 defendants testify at such length the case will not reach the jury for more than four months.

The witness, John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, told the court that a 1947 encampment of Communist veterans in Washington showed "we did not stand for overthrow of the Government by force and violence."

He said the Communist Party staged its encampment after Lewis Schwellenbach, the late Secretary of Labor, proposed that the party be outlawed. He said the encampment was "the party's answer to Schwellenbach", and that FBI agents had been admitted to it to "observe the proceedings."

Defense Attorney Harry Sacher attempted to place a written report of the encampment in evidence. The court sustained a Government objection, saying it was a "self-serving declaration."

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina said he had learned that William Z. Foster, a defendant who won a separate trial, was still in such poor health that he was unable to give testimony by deposition.

The report was made by Mason Bigelow, an attorney appointed by Medina to obtain the deposition from Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party.

Petition Asks Red Bill Vote

Annapolis, Md., May 31 (AP).—Opponents of Maryland's new anti-Communist Act filed today almost enough petitions to force it to a referendum.

Four representatives of the Citizens' Committee Against the Ober Law deposited petitions they said bore 8461 names in the Secretary of State's office.

The papers had been signed by persons asking that the law be placed on the ballot at the 1950 general election.

Ten thousand signatures must be delivered by June 30. Today was the deadline for half that number.

Louis Shub, chairman of the committee executive board, asserted the number of names already filed "demonstrates that people in Baltimore City and the counties either definitely oppose the act, or want to have it put on the ballot so they can pass on it."

The law, signed into effect by Governor Lane a month ago, makes it a felony to belong to an organization that promotes overthrow of the Government by force.

It calls for a special assistant attorney general to handle enforcement, grand jury probes of Communist activity, and loyalty checks of public employes and school teachers.

Widow Describes Tin Strike Savagery

By Luis Zavala
(Copyright 1949 by United Press)

Oruro, Bolivia, May 31 (U.P.).—Five hundred sweating, grimy workers came out of the Veinte Siglo (Twentieth Century) tin mine Saturday. They were told that their union leader and idol, Senator Juan Lechin, had been arrested as a revolutionary plotter and deported to Chile. They went berserk, back to their Indian savagery.

The story of a tragedy in which two American mine engineers were killed, others terribly maltreated and women were attacked mercilessly was told to me today by the widow of T. J. H. O'Connor, South Pasadena, Calif.

Mrs. Helen Casanova O'Connor, Mexican-born, told me the story as she lay on an iron cot, her face drawn with suffering.

"It was 1:30 Saturday afternoon," Mrs. O'Connor said. "I looked out the window of our cottage and saw Jack, my husband, with Wilbur Cook (who was wounded) at Cook's house.

Saw Crowd Running

"I saw a crowd of men running past our house and making for Cook's cottage. I ran out. The men were dragging out Cook and Jack. I clutched by husband's arm and went along.

"We were taken to union headquarters building near the mine and set up on the speaker's platform.

"Soon another American was brought in roughly by the angry miners. He was Floyd Erickson.

"The mob started shouting: 'You dirty gringoes!'"

"Miners crowded into the building with Joseph Bessett. Then they brought in Richard Ellett, a fifth American, and then Argentine Alberto Huesser. Finally they brought in Patrick Greene.

"There was much shouting among the miners. One little fellow kept going to the telephone. I heard him say once:

"'All right. Then everything is ready. We shall begin here at Catavi. Next will come Huanuni and after that we shall move on to the rest of the country.'"

(The Bolivian government charges that the tin mine strike is the first in what opposition elements plan to be a national general strike and then a coup d'etat to seize power.)

Arm Gashed Deeply

Mrs. O'Connor said a miner attacked her husband with a broken bottle and she shielded him. Her left arm was gashed deeply. O'Connor and Cook realized that the miners meant to kill them, she said, and a furious struggle started. She said she got up on a chair and in desperation started haranguing the crowd in her native Spanish not to molest the Americans.

She saw Heusser, a radio expert, trying to rig up a radio transmitter at the request of some of the strikers. He was shot through the side as he worked, she said.

"A Bolivian (mine executive) in the room fell over on a table, his head smashed by a bullet," she continued.

"I was talking all the time, talking on and on until my throat closed up and my lips got dry.

"Then I saw one of the strikers push a rifle through the window, aiming at me. If Jack had not seen that I should not be here talking to you and perhaps Jack would be telling you all this. But Jack saw it.

"He rushed toward me and pulled me down as the sniper's gun went off. The first bullet caught Jack in the side.

"All of us in that little room then began to crouch and run on all fours to keep from the bullets of those madmen.

Dragged With Husband

"The strikers in the room with us rushed for Jack and in a horrible struggle they forced him outside. I threw my arms around him and was dragged with him.

"They fired more bullets into him and Jack said: 'Let me go, Helen.'

"They dragged me off and those beasts then stuck their hands under my skirt and were brutal. But all I could think of was Jack.

"I knew after a while they had killed him and all the fight went out of me."

She said they killed Albert Krefting (of Seattle, Wash.) and mutilated his body.

"But not as badly as they mutilated Jack," she said.

"They took out my husband's eyes. They cut off his fingertips. They chopped off his ears.

"One young man whose name I do not remember took me away through a labyrinth of alleys to his home and left me there with his wife, his mother and his sister. I did not care about anything any more. All I cared for in life was gone."

Druggists Pledge $3500 To Jewish Relief Fund

Members of the Washington Druggists' Division of the United Jewish Appeal last night pledged $3500 toward the District's $2,500,000 goal in relief funds for European Jews, Chairmai Morris Rodman announced.

The amount brings the total to nearly one and a half million dollars pledged in the District, Rodman said.

days" and said the leadership "has lost none of its determination to try again to obtain action on the civil rights program."

"If the time consumed by debate on the major measures which are still to be considered makes their passage impossible by July 31, the time fixed by law for adjournment, we shall extend the length of the session until we have dealt with the most urgent proposals of the President," Lucas wrote.

Murray, in joint letters to Lucas and House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.), had protested that civil rights and other Truman measures would be shelved if Congress adjourned by July 31.

Lucas in his reply recalled session-opening efforts to so tighten the Senate's cloture rules that civil rights legislation could be brought to a vote. He said no civil rights measure has since reached the Senate calendar.

Pledges Effort Despite Rule

Said Lucas:

"Many of the supporters of the President's civil rights proposals do not feel that the rule which was adopted by the Senate at the close of the recent filibuster will be effective in obtaining action on this legislation, but we intend to make every effort to accomplish our objective in spite of that rule."

As to other key Truman points, Lucas noted the Senate already has passed housing, aid-to-education and school-health bills and the next move is up to the House. He said the House also must originate legislation expanding social security.

He added that wage-hour legislation is still in a Senate committee but "it is on our program for this session and it will be covered before the session ends."

Points to Accomplishments

Lucas detailed all of the major measures cleared by the Senate this year, ranging from rent control extension to Marshall Plan appropriations, and said of the rest:

"I am just as anxious as you are to obtain speedy action on the humanitarian program of the President. But I am sure that you understand that we have unlimited debate in the Senate and no enforceable rule of relevancy. Therefore, we can move only as fast as the determination and the endurance of the opposition will permit . . ."

The Senate is expected to call up the Taft-Hartley repealer late this week or early next. Lucas said the Senate meanwhile will consider the Myers basing-point bill and "possibly" the international wheat agreement. If extended controversy develops on either, he said, they will be bypassed for the labor bill.

Deputies Favor Pact

from Catavi, scene of ferocious fighting over the weekend in which two American and four Bolivian mine executives were killed.

The strike started as a protest against the arrest and deportation of Juan Leching, a powerful labor leader and head of the tin mines union. Lechin and about 50 other union leaders were exiled on government charges that they planned to call a general strike and then essay a revolutionary coup d'etat.

Troops occupied several villages in the area south of here, as well as the 20th Century Mines where the violence first erupted.

The Oruro advices reported that a striker in the Catavi outbreak said the plan was to start action there, strike at Huanuni and then spread the tieup to the rest of the country.

Catavi was reported calm today, after the burial of the victims of the fighting. Estimates of the number of dead ranged from 33 to 150. Miners were said to have expressed satisfaction at the Patino company's action in granting food as advances against future salaries.

Railroad workers at Oruro walked out in sympathy with the miners.

Preparations were made today by James Espey, charge d'affaires of the American Embassy here, to fly a C-47 plane to Catavi to evacuate all remaining Americans.

Gen. Kenner Heads Columbia Hospital

Appointment of Maj. Gen. Albert W. Kenner as medical director of Columbia Hospital was announced yesterday by the board of directors.

The appointment will become effective in June, on General Kenner's retirement from an Army medical career begun in 1916, when he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps.

A native of Washington, General Kenner was theater surgeon in Germany in 1945 and attended Gen. George S. Patton after he was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

Gen. Kenner assumes a new post at Columbia which was created following the death of Superintendent Col. Norman L. McDiarmid, and promotion of his assistant, John D. Martin to administrator handling the business affairs.

Gen. Kenner was educated in Washington public schools, and graduated in 1910 from George Washington University with the degree of doctor of pharmacy. Five years later he won his M. D. at G. W. U.

In the Army Medical Corps he saw service in the Philippines, Africa and Europe, with duty at Walter Reed Hospital, and the U. S. Military Academy.

General Kenner served 2½ years in France and Germany in World War I. In World War II he landed at Casablanca as chief surgeon for General Patton's western task force. Ordered to the United States after the Tunisian campaign, he joined General Eisenhower as chief medical officer of the Allied Expeditionary Forces staff. He returned to the United States in 1946 as a member of the Secretary of War Personnel Board, from which he will retire soon.

Decorated by several foreign nations, General Kenner has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, and many other honors.

In 1921 he married the former Mlle. Raymonde Minard. They live at 4925 Rodman st. nw.

Health Bill Called 'Leap' to Welfare State

By The Associated Press

Dr. Paul R. Hawley said yesterday the Truman compulsory health insurance plan would be a "long leap into a welfare state" and might wreck the United States treasury.

The one-time medical chief of the Veterans Administration urged Congress to create a fact-finding commission to explore the health problem before acting. He testified before a Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee studying various health plans.

He emphasized that he was not saying whether a welfare state was "right or wrong."

"This is a decision that each citizen must make for himself," he said. "But no one should be deceived, either by himself or by others, as to the nature of the program presented in this bill."

On the other hand, Nelson H. Cruikshank, director of social security activities of the AFL, said the federation strongly supported the bill. He continued:

"It is the only proposal which has been brought forward which provides a way by which the American people through their Government can meet the many-sided problem of providing for their health needs.'

Hawley said: "The cost of . . . prepaid personal health insurance benefits (under the Truman bill) will be prohibitive in all but periods of maximum employment and production. It will threaten the military security of the nation through forced reduction of funds for defense; and it holds the promise of wrecking the solvency of the Government.'

He asserted that "deficiencies" exist in the Nation's present health program, but he declared they are not so extensive as proponents of the compulsory plan contend.

"To state categorically that these deficiencies can be remedied only through a drastic change in the present system of payment for medical care," he said, "is to display a colossal lack of understanding of the task before us.

Star Reporter Wins $100 News Award

Newbold Noyes, jr., 31, Washington Evening Star reporter, will receive the top Front Page Award for "distinguished reporting of the local scene during the past year," the Washington Newspaper Guild announced yesterday.

He will receive the $100 prize at the Guild's Front Page Ball Thursday night in the Shoreham for his "The Story of Dorothy Bailey," about a Federal employe who could not prove her loyalty to the Government.

Five other $50 awards, the Guild said, went to:

Richard L. Coe, 33, drama editor of The Washington Post; Arthur Ellis, 37, photographer of The Washington Post; Harry Gabbett, 39, reporter of the Washington Times-Herald; John Keats, 29, reporter of the Washington Daily News, and David Reque, 31, sports writer of the Washington Daily News.

Called "in Public Interest"

Noyes' "The Story of Dorothy Bailey" appeared in the Evening Star of March 27. The judges said the story was "written in a detailed and dispassionate manner. It put the spotlight squarely on the weaknesses of the Federal loyalty investigation system without casting doubt on the need for such a program and provoked wide comment, very little of which was derogatory. It was an example of fearless and intelligent coverage on a difficult and explosive subject and was in the judges' opinion, an outstanding instance of reporting in the public interest."

Coe won the award in the classification of public service, "for his deft, effective and consistent work in keeping before the public the basic senselessness of the theater situation in Washington and for his encouragement of all those who seek to establish a legitimate theater which all races can attend."

"Ellis' award, the judges said, was for his "outstanding news picture, 'Blue Boy,' . . . and for his consistently imaginative and perceptive handling of news shots." "Blue Boy" showed a 13-year-old Mountain Falls, Va., victim of a heart malformation, with his parents. It was taken after neighbors offered to raise the funds for the delicate operation (postponed by doctors later) which might cure him.

Gabbett's award was for humorous features, "for his story of how Undertaker W. W. Chambers offered his famous 60 services free to Joe Stalin, 'on the single condition that the Russian leader make immediately available,' and for his zany page 1 weather shorts without which no District inhabitant could survive the climate."

Human-Interest Story Honored

Keats was accorded the honor "for his human-interest story, 'The Impersonal Case of the Missing Feet,' which led the paper February 1." It dealt with Pvt. Joseph Suggs, who lost both feet from frostbite suffered in solitary confinement at a United States Army prison in Germany, and was later a witness at court-martial proceedings over alleged mismanagement of the prison.

Reque's "series of exclusive and effective articles on the mismanagement of Washington's public golf links" won him the sports award.

The judges also voted honorable mentions to these reporters:

Henry Altman, News; Nicholas Blatchford, News; Elsie Carper, Post; James Cullinane, Star; Conrad P. Harness, Post; N. S. Haseltine, Post; Herbert Lansner, Times-Herald; James O'Neill, jr., and Gene Thomas, News.

The judges for the awards, who considered 42 entries of over 700 individual items, were: Herblock, The Washington Post cartoonist, chairman; Malcolm Lamborne, jr., the Evening Star; John MacLeod, the Washington Daily News; William Pryor, the Washington Times-Herald, and Dorothy Rockwell, the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Tydings Urges 5% Congress Pay Cut

By The Associated Press

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) said yesterday Congress members ought to be willing to take a 5 per cent pay cut if they order all Federal expenses cut by that amount.

He expressed that view when urging the Senate Expenditures Committee to approve an economy resolution he has introduced. Unless the lawmakers took a pay cut, he said, they might be subject to criticism.

Tydings' resolution would direct the President to make an over-all cut of 5 per cent in expenditures under the $41,858,000,000 budget for the year starting July 1.

The President could work out the cut any way he liked, but could not cut any agency's funds more than 20 per cent.

Tydings said he did not think the resolution should cover Congress and the courts, but that Congress should do its own cutting of its budget.

Congress members recieved $12,500 a year. They also get a $2500 tax-free expense account.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, who had been scheduled to testify today, told the committee in a letter he thinks it would be "improper" for him to appear.

Nourse said that if he testified he might be asked questions to which he could not reply with "complete frankness." For that reason he asked to be excused.

He said, however, he was turning the committee's invitation over to other members of the council if they wished to appear.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder also is scheduled as a witness today, but committee clerks said he may send a substitute.

Allies to Ask Bids

I. G. Farben Unit to Go On Sale Soon

Frankfurt, Germany, May 31 (AP). A major step toward breaking up the I. G. Farben chemical empire will be taken soon by offering one of its units for sale, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays said today.

Plans for breaking up the huge concern which monopolized Hitler Germany's drug and dye industry were disclosed by the deputy United States Military Governor at a news conference.

He said the British, Americans and Germans have agreed on setting up three major units—each self-sufficient—out of the sprawling Farben combine. Which one of these units will be sold has not yet been determined.

Won't Estimate Value

Hays refused to estimate the value of any of the three units, all of which are located in the American zone.

Hays said Farben property in the British zone has not yet been divided into units which would offer a prospective purchaser a self-sufficient operating entity.

Hays estimated it would take five or six weeks to work out technical procedures and advertise for bids. He said Farben stockholders would be invited to sit in consultations before the sale.

First Sale to Be Test

He said it was planned to sell the rest of the Farben property in the British and American zones after the first sale. The first sale would be in the nature of a test, he said.

Asked whether the so-called Ferguson report to Congress criticizing delay in decartelization was a factor in the decision to start selling the chemical empire, Hays said: "It might be and it might not."

U. S. Offers Farmers Fee To Hold Corn

The Agriculture Department yesterday offered to pay farmers 10 cents a bushel corn storage fee, if they will extend their price support loans on last year's corn.

A similar on-the-farm storage plan is in effect for wheat, but it hasn't been applied to corn since before World War II. The plan is designed to slow down the movement of grain to the market.

At the same time Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan asked Congress to extend rigid production control powers to more farm products. New commodities coming under his proposed control powers are hogs, cattle, lambs, poultry, whole milk, butterfat, eggs, hops, honey, bees, barley, oats, rye, grain sorghums, flaxseed, soy beans, dry edible beans, grass seed, vegetables, potatoes, and fruits.

His proposal is in line with the new farm program Brannan outlined to Congress last month.

Production Cut

Labor Strife Clogs British Transport

London, May 31 (AP).—Spreading labor unrest piled up rail shipments, held cargo boats idle at their docks and cut production in the British motor car industry today.

Meanwhile leaders of union coal miners in Scotland threatened to "get tough" in their demands for better working conditions.

Railwaymen at London's big Nine Elms freight depot and at Manchester refused to handle baggage on piece rates or work overtime beyond their normal 44-hour week.

Their spokesmen said they sought to support demands for a $2 a week pay raise and "to prove that a railwayman must work overtime to make a living wage."

Ford Workers Idle

At Dagenham, 1000 workers suspended by the Ford Motor Co. yesterday for joining a "go slow" movement showed up at the factory today and spent the morning idling at the gates. The men staged their slowdown to enforce resumption of negotiations for a new wage scale.

The Ford Co. said 11,000 workers refused to join the strike.

Dock workers in Britain's western harbors began the third week of a walkout which has halted the unloading of nearly 40 food ships.

Dispute Over Canadian Ships

Strikers at Liverpool and Bristol said they would go back if two Canadian ships, centers of the dispute, were moved from the harbor. The men have refused to unload the Canadian ships because they were involved in a seamen's strike against the ship companies.

The coal miners "get tough" threat came from Abe Moffat, president of the Scottish area, National Union of Mineworkers, at their annual conference.

The miners are dissatisfied with failure of the National Coal Board to meet demands for a two-week annual holiday, pensions and a seven-hour day. The mines have been nationalized by the Labor government.

Senate Unit Approves Bill, Urges Economy

The Senate Appropriations Committee went formally on record for economy yesterday in approving an 859-million-dollar money bill to help run the Government until June 30.

The measure, second deficiency bill of the current session, carries 188 million dollars more than voted by the House. Main item in the increase is 136 million dollars more for veterans' pensions than originally estimated.

The committee also added 14 million dollars for relief of Palestine refugees under a United Nations program, but advised United States delegates to submit such projects to Congress for approval in advance next time.

"In approving an appropriation of 14 million dollars, the committee desires to call attention to the necessity of retrenchment in governmental expenditures, both domestic and foreign," the report accompanying the bill said.

The bill contains 43 million dollars to carry the Berlin airlift through to June 30—the full sum asked by the Air Force before ending of the Berlin blockade. The House already has voted this amount.

New items added by the committee are $15,841,000 to repay the Army, Agriculture and Interior Departments for expenses of "Operation Snowbound"—relief of the West from the severest winter on record—and an extra $1,500,000 in grants to States for maternal and child welfare.

Italians to Get Income Tax on U. S. Pattern

Rome, May 31 (NYHT).—An income tax similar to that in America soon will be put into effect in Italy, the Finance Ministry disclosed today.

The announcement followed complaints by American investigators over the amount of tax-dodging and antiquated tax-collecting methods. American observers of the progress of the European Recovery Program let Italian officials know they considered tax reform important.

In the past tax collecting to a notable extent was a game between the collector and the taxpayer, in which the former deliberately overcharged the latter on the assumption that the taxpayer would not make an honest statement. American investigators found evidence that reputable business firms kept three sets of books to foil collectors.

Until now there has been no unified income tax in Italy. There has been one tax on land income, one tax on building income and another on earnings, but all direct taxes have covered less than a fourth of tax revenue. Taxes on gasoline, salt, sugar, motion pictures and several dozen sources of indirect revenue have made up the rest.

Stock Market Dips Sharply

year and oils soon followed the trend.

On the New York Stock Exchange the break in prices was encouraged by news of business and industry which reflected a continued tightening of the situation here at home.

Steel production, for instance, will be 91.8 per cent of capacity, the seventh in a row for reduction in the weekly rate. It is the first time this year the rate has been below the similar 1948 week. The latest report of the Federal Reserve Board, covering April, showed the fifth straight monthly drop in industrial production, and the decline continued through May.

The old stock of United States Steel Corp. sold at its lowest since 1947, with a break of more than two points. A block of 10,000 Radio Corp. changed hands at the former low, and then the stock sank to set a new minimum, off ⅝. Patino Mines, beset with labor violence in the Bolivian tin strike, was down 2 points, and stockholders were advised that an early resumption of operations is doubtful.

Rome Orders Vaccination

Rome, May 31 (U.P.).—The city health department today ordered every resident of Rome to be vaccinated against smallpox by the end of June. The order followed reports of outbreak of chickenpox and smallpox.

Maryland Tax Loss on U. S. Claim Figured

Baltimore, May 31 (AP).—Maryland revenue collected from State income taxes would be about a third less if deduction for Federal income taxes were allowed on Maryland returns, a survey report indicated today.

The argument that State income taxes represent a tax upon a tax, often has been voiced by proponents of a move to permit deduction of Federal income taxes by State tax payers.

A survey to obtain accurate figures on what effect such a deduction allowance would have, has been completed for the State comptrollers office.

Experts, headed by Walter J. Kennedy made the study and prepared the report, which, incidentally, disapproves of deducting the Federal levy.

They examined 320,985 State income tax returns. On these, taxes totaling $15,406,904 were levied.

Computing the payments from these returns as if the taxpayers had been allowed to deduct Federal income taxes, the experts found there would have been a reduction of $4,346,000 in taxes paid to the State.

Regarding proposals to make the Federal levy a deductible item, the Kennedy report held that benefits would be overbalanced by disadvantages, and pointed out that the Federal tax is imposed at graduated rates. If this item were allowed as a deduction on the State return, taxpayers in the higher income brackets would receive State income tax reduction benefits far greater proportionately than those in the lower income groups."

Almond Believes Party May Insist On Loyalty Oath

Richmond, Va., May 31 (AP).—Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., today expressed the informal opinion that no candidate may qualify to enter a Democratic Party primary without signing the pledge of loyalty required by the party.

Almond said this means any prospective candidate for the primary this year must sign and file with his declaration of candidacy a statement that he voted for all Democratic nominees in last November's general election.

The matter was brought up in Norfolk by W. Carl Spencer of Ocean View, a candidate for the House of Delegates who announced his intention of seeking to enter the Democratic primary without having signed the party pledge.

Spencer said he voted for J. Strom Thurmond, States' Rights candidate, for President, Republican Walter E. Hoffman for the House and Democrat A. Willis Robertson for the Senate.

A new destroyer will be named in honor of Admiral Marc Andrew Mitscher of World War II fame.

Honors Bestowed In G. W. Ceremony

Peter John Martin, 25-year-old GI student, yesterday became the first recipient of the annual Jesse Frederick Essary Award in Journalism at George Washington University's Award of Honors ceremony in Lisner Auditorium.

The award was established last year in memory of the late J. Fred Essary, former chief of the Washington bureau of the Baltimore Sun, by his widow, Mrs. William J. Murphy. It will be presented annually to a student who has given promise of sound citizenship and ability in "forthright reporting" in student publications.

The award was presented by Richard Wilson, president of the Gridiron Club. Each year the Gridiron Club, which Essary once headed, will designate a member to officiate.

'Honorary Presidents'

Both Wilson and Joshua Evans, who presented the Joshua Evans 3d Memorial Award, were declared "honorary presidents" by University President Cloyd Heck Marvin for the occasion. Dr. Marvin said he recently had uncovered an old ordinance of the institution which stated that only the president could confer honors.

Martin, a junior and member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, lives in New York. His local address is 2146 I st. nw. A veteran of the Thirty-sixth (Texas) Division, he is studying political science. He is a member of the senior staff of the University Hatchet, the International Students Association and the Colonial Boosters.

Joshua Evans Award

The Joshua Evans 3d Memorial Award to a graduating senior who has demonstrated signal ability in social and political sciences and has given promise of ability in good citizenship was won by Robert Lee Burns of 6521 32d st. nw.

Burns is the son of Dean Arthur E. Burns, of the university's school of government.

In an unscheduled maneuver, Dr. Marvin summoned Dr. Gilbert A. Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society and university trustee, and Miss Virginia Kirkside, director of women's activities, to present awards to the man and woman senior who had done the most constructive work in student activities.

Additional Awards

Other honors bestowed were as follows:

The Omicron Delta Kappa Award was won by William C. Warner, 1500 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, president of the student council, and the Pi Beta Phi Award went to Miss Elizabeth Ann Painter, 309 Tennessee ave., Alexandria, president of Mortar Board.

Jack Linwood Kenny, Louisville, Ky., won the Alexandria Wilbourne Weddell prize for the candidate writing the best essay on "the promotion of peace among the nations of the world."

The John Bell Larner Award to the senior student with the highest scholastic standing in the school of law was won by William Fred Hyer, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw.

Leighton Eggerston Cluff, Salt Lake City, Utah, received the John Ordronaux Award for highest scholastic standing in the School of Medicine.

Edith Rita Venezsky, 4719 8th st. nw., received the Mortar Board Award, to "that student in the sophomore class having a scholastic standing of B or higher and the most outstanding record in student activities."

Mildred Ann McDowell, 510 Nicholson st. nw., received the Alpha Delta Pi Award to that woman member of the junior class with the most outstanding record in scholarship, extracurricular activities, and service to the university.

Arnold Martin Toxen, 1431 Somerset pl. nw., received one of the Alpha Chi Sigma Freshman Awards in chemistry, one of the Phi Eta Sigma Awards to the beginning male student attaining the highest scholastic average in his first full term of work, and the Sigma Kappa Award in chemistry.

Ralph Bennett Neal, 6324 Wilmer st., Hyattsville, and Robert D. Sly, 1254 Lawrence st. ne., received the other two Alpha Chia Sigma Awards. Richard Langford Peppers of Belleville, Ill., received the Phi Eta Sigma Award.

LeGrand Gerard Van Uitert, Salt Lake City, Utah, received the Alpha Chi Sigma Senior Award in Chemistry, the Byrne Thurlell Burns Memorial Award in Organic Chemistry and the Willie E. Fitch Award in Chemistry.

Edmund Theodore Baxa, Wayne, Kans., the Alpha Kappa Psi Award in Commerce.

Earl Reddish Yowell, Vienna, Va., American Institute of Chemists Award in Chemistry.

Mrs. Vonette Brosan Locraft, 67 W st. nw., the Chi Omega Award in Social Studies.

Joyce Marguerite Wilson of Chicago, Ill., the Colonial Barnes Award for an essay on Colonial History.

Leonard Wainstein, Jamaica, N. Y., and William Charles Keller, St. Marys, Pa., John Henry Cowles Award in Government.

William Winsor Sherwin, 1803 Fern st., Arlington, the DeWitt Clinton Creissant Award for an essay on drama or the theater.

Benjamin Hallie DeMott, 588 18th st., Arlington, E. K. Cutter Award in English.

Herschel Hancock Helm, 1841 Columbia rd. nw., Daughters of the American Revolution Award for an essay on American history during the period of the American Revolution.

Charles Henry Krebs, Sheboygan, Wis.; Earl William Borcherding, Platteville, Wis., and Ann Pasternack, 1109 North Pitt st., Alexandria, Isaac Davis Awards in public speaking.

Evelyn Smalling Davis, 4348 North Herndon rd., Arlington, Va., Delta Gamma Award to that woman member of the graduating class with the highest scholastic standing.

William Everett Maloney, 4414 Quarles st. ne., Delta Zeta Award in botany.

Charles Lloyd Good, 2109 Dayton st., Silver Spring, Ellsworth Award in patent law.

Doris Hahn, 4930 Auburn ave., Bethesda, Elton Award in Greek.

Harvey Nelson Pitton, 2600 Leslie ave., Alexandria, Alice Douglas Award in American literature.

James Cecil King, Uniontown, Pa., Edward Carrington Goddard Award in French.

Charles Randolph Wolfe, 1235 North Quinn st., Arlington, Va., James Douglas Goddard Award in pharmacy.

Richard Paul DeCamara, 847 North Jefferson st., Arlington, Va., Morgan Richardson Goddard Award in commerce.

Mrs. Doris Morgan Olszowski, Baltimore, Md., Gardiner G. Hubbard Memorial Award in United States history.

Paul Brech Bulow, jr., 912 South Veitch st., Arlington, Kappa Kappa Gamma Award in botany.

John Sestokas, Exeter, Pa., Phi Sigma Kappa Award to the winner in a freshman oratorial contest.

Russell Martin Brown, 6517 Maple ave., Chevy Chase, Ruggles Award in mathematics.

Myron Zinn, 6323 Luzon ave. nw., James McBride Sterrett, jr., Award in physics.

Charles Frederick Campbell, 312 West Alexander ave., Alexandria, United Daughters of the Confederacy Award in the history of the Southern States.

57 Midshipmen Receive 80 Of Highest Annapolis Awards

Annapolis, Md., May 31 (AP).—Midshipmen most likely to become admirals marched in the June Week limelight today.

As the blue-shirted brigade stood at attention under a roasting sun on Worden Field, 57 of them stepped forward to receive the Naval Academy's most coveted awards.

They collected wrist watches, binoculars, cameras, medals and just letters of commendation for scholastic, technical and athletic achievements.

Eighty prizes were passed out before the smartly drilled brigade marched in review past the sharply appraising eye of Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, Chief of Naval Personnel.

Midshipman Lionel M. Noel, 24-year-old first classman from Elizabeth, N. J., whose first billet will be aboard an escort carrier, walked off with enough loot to overload his sea bag.

As honor man of the graduating class of 791 middies, Noel automatically received two awards. He earned four others for special ability in leadership, marine engineering and ordnance and gunnery.

MIDSHIPMAN LIONEL M. NOEL

The Academy announced only this morning that Noel ranked at the head of his class with an academic score of 1055.47. The maximum is 1140.

Second in line was William L. Bryan, 21, of Clarks Green, Pa. He outdid his dad, Rear Admiral George S. Bryan. The Admiral stood eighth among the 117 midshipmen commissioned at Annapolis in 1906.

Thomas J. Walters, 23, of Muncie, Ind., was third man.

Both Bryan and Walters received four prizes. So did John C. Barrow, of New Bloomfield, Mo., commander of the brigade and top athlete of his class.

Lee Chambers of Baltimore, high scoring lacrosse attackman, won the Academy Athletic Association prize for excellence in athletics. He also received the Stuart Oxnard Miller Memorial lacrosse cup.

The real show comes tomorrow when color girl Marie Badecker of Teaneck, N. J., hands the Stars and Stripes and the academy standard to her husband-to-be, midshipman George M. Benas, jr., of Utica, N. Y. Benas commands the 22d Company, rated the best among all 36 in the brigade.

The color parade is set for Worden Field at 5:30 p. m. (EDT).

Bill to Increase Judges Advances

The House Judiciary Committee yesterday approved an omnibus judgeship bill to allow two additional judges on the District Court bench and three on the Coourt of Appeals here.

The Byrne Judiciary subcommittee last week had voted to give only two more judges to each court.

Appeals Court officials had urged increasing the number to three to permit two, three-panel tribunals to sit simultaneously.

Falls Church Plot Rezoned For Business

The Falls Church City Council last night approved a plan to rezone the southeast corner of West Broad and West sts. from residential to commercial use.

This move was described by opponents as the first step toward invasion of residential areas by business.

The rezoning request came from Noble McDaniels. The lease on the gas station he owns on West Broad st., in the business area, will soon expire and he plans to erect a $30,000 service station on the property he asked to be rezoned.

City Attorney Larue Van Meter announced at the council meeting that County Judge C. G. Quesenbery will render a decision Thursday morning in the pending suit over the status of the public schools.

In 1942 the county took over control of the schools from the city. Recently the city filed suit to have them returned to its authority. Judge Quesenbery has been studying the suit for over two months.

Navy Officer Asks Congress For Promotion

By The Associated Press

A regular Navy commander who served throughout the war without a promotion went to Congress yesterday in quest of a captain's stripes.

He is Comdr. Edward White Rawlins, presently attached to the Central Intelligence Agency, for whom Senator Tydings (D., Md.) has introduced a private bill to provide the promotion.

Rawlins testified before a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee to the effect that the bill would "rectify an injustice" which came from the Navy's wartime system of promoting officers above the rank of lieutenant.

He said the "panel' system, by which senior officers passed upon the performance of juniors for promotions, "prejudices the rights" of officers.

Commendations Cited

He failed to win a promotion before four panel boards, he said, although his record is "unblemished" and contains a number of commendations, including the award of the Bronze Star.

His personnel jacket, he said, did not contain all of his record at the time panel board officers considered him for promotion.

A graduate of Annapolis in 1924, he has been on active duty for 25 years, specializing in communications.

Bespectacled and whitehaired, Rawlins presented a group of senior officers to testify to the effect that he is "professionally qualified" for promotion and that "there are many captains who are not as well qualified as Rawlins."

Rear Admiral F. C. Denebrink, military counsel to the munitions board, said he felt "personally responsible" for the failure of Rawlins' jacket to contain a recommendation for promotion. "It was an oversight because we were in a busy business, you know."

Admiral Backs Him

Rear Admiral E. E. Stone, Chief of Naval Communications, said he regarded Rawlins "worthy" of promotion.

Hanson W. Baldwin, military analyst for the New York Times, told the group he was a lifelong friend and Annapolis classmate of the commander.

"Looking at it from the outside," Baldwin said, "I rate him highly competent as a naval officer."

Asked by Senator Johnson (D., Tex.), subcommittee chairman, if he knew naval captains of less ability, Baldwin replied with a smile, "Certainly."

Rear Admiral J. W. Roper, deputy assistant chief of staff of Navy personnel, said the department opposed the bill on the grounds it would disturb "the orderly promotion of officers."

Rawlins told the committee that the 1947 Naval Register showed that he was the only member of the 210 members of the class of 1924 who had not advanced beyond commander.

Powell had been head messenger in the land division since 1909 and had sick leave only twice in his entire service

Montgomery Council Enacts Nine Laws in Final Session

Passage of nine laws for Montgomery County yesterday highlighted the final session of the first annual legislative meeting of the County Council.

A total of 38 bills was introduced this month. Thirty-three saw final passage, and action was deferred on five until next May, beginning of the next annual legislative period prescribed by State law.

Among bills passed yesterday was one enlarging the area in which such suburban services as street lighting and others not enjoyed by rural residents of the county are rendered.

At present, a special tax of 31 cents per assessed $100 valuation of property is levied in the suburban districts to finance the services. County Manager I. G. McNayr has proposed the tax be reduced beginning July 1 to 20 cents.

Included Areas Listed

Loosely, the extension would follow these lines: On the east, Hillandale; on the north, Burnt Mills Hills and Village, Glenmont, the remaining portion of Viers Mill Village; and on the west, Cabin John and Seven Locks.

Also specifically included in the new area are: Capitol View Park, North Kensington, Ken Gar and Kensington View.

Although all bills passed this month become effective August 15, the suburban tax cannot be imposed on newly affected property owners until July 1, 1950.

Other bills passed yesterday would:

Authorize the County government to take over refuse collection and equipment from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Spell out clearly the functions of the county finance department and make a "balanced budget" mandatory in the future.

Provide for appointment of a juvenile court committee of flexible membership to study juvenile delinquency and a supervisor of social work under civil service. The law also stipulates that juvenile court hearings shall be closed to the public but not to certain county officials.

Authorize adoption of laws to control eats and dogs.

Abolish the police civil service commissioner and the Police Trial Board and transfer their functions to the County Personnel Board.

Repeal an obsolete provision limiting the amount of jail fare to 35 cents a day. County governing bodies have in the past winked at the old law.

Authorize municipalities to contract with the County Government for construction work, if county equipment and workmen are available.

President Frederic P. Lee announced the council's "coomplete sympathy" with legislation for a $500,000 publiic parying lot program in Bethesda requested by the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce.

He said there was insufficient time this year to pass laws on the subject, but that delaying the legislation until next year would not hold up the long-range project.

Grand Jury Meets

Wife Cleared In Slaying Of Husband

A District Court grand jury yesterday ignored charges against Mrs. Mary Agnes Lane, 45, who had been held responsible by a coroner's jury for the fatal stabbing of her husband in the Lane's home, 5407 1st st. nw., May 6.

Mrs. Lane had been free on bond. Yesterday's action cleared her of charges.

Lane was found stabbed to death with a steak knife in the kitchen of the house the day following a violent argument with his wife. Mrs. Clara Blakeney, Mrs. Lane's mother, told the coroner's jury that Lane had hit and kicked his wife. She said she heard Lane say to Mrs. Lane, "I ought to kill you," followed by "you take the knife and kill me!"

Testimony before the coroner's jury had brought out that Lane, an unemployed war veteran, and his wife had been quareling ever since his discharge from the service. Mrs. Lane is the mother of three children.

Five Indicted on Sex Counts

Five men were indicted for sex offenses against girls ranging in age from 6 to 10, as the grand jury found true bills in 31 cases and ignored charges in 5.

A sailor, Louis J. Lazar, 24, assigned to the Naval Gun Factory, was charged with carnal knowledge involving a girl, 10.

The child told police she and her 9-year-old sister saw Lazar coming out of a saloon in Anacostia and asked him for a ride in his car. The sex offense occurred after Lazar parked his car on M st. se., at the Anacostia River, the girl charged.

The same girl was involved as a complainant in the indictment of William J. Payne, 59, of 718 I st. se., who was charged with one coount of carnal knowledge of the child on September 15, 1948, and three counts of "performing unnatural and perverted practices on three other girls aged 9 to 10. The man gave the youngsters money to gain acquiescence, it was charged.

Says She Made $1 in 3d Case

Another man, Frank Haven, 62, no address, was indicted on carnal knowledge charges brought by the same youngster who was involved in the Lazar and Payne cases. The child charged Haven gave her $1 and had sexual intimacies with her in a store at 821 Va. ave. se., where he worked last April 14.

Howard G. Malone, 34, of 716 Florida ave. nw., was indicted for "taking immoral, improper and indecent liberties" with two 6-year-old girls.

Charles J. Garris, 29, of 1732 Corcoran st. nw., was indicted for the same offense, under the recently adopted District sex law. The indictment charged indecent liberties with his 6-year-old daughter while the mother was out working.

Indicted in Howard U. Thefts

Charles A. Porter, 1311 Stevens rd. se., and William McKeever, 18, of 24½ Hanover st. ne., were indicted for housebreaking and larceny stemming from thefts of a safe containing $404.26 from the office of Howard University last March 27.

Two men were indicted for second-degree murder. Clarence Mack, 48, of 118 Browns ct. sw., was accused of stabbing to death Eddie L. Taylor, 43, of 355 McLean av. sw., during a fight last March 28; and John S. Harris, 42, of 42 Myrtle st. ne., was charged with second-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of Henry J. Hurst, 17, of 101 I st. nw., April 23.

Harris told police he fired after Hurst and a number of other youths beat him in an attempted robbery.

Only about 20 per cent of the 45,000 eligible voters in Prince Georges County will vote for or against legalizing cash payoffs for slot machines and pinball games Thursday, one Republican and one Democratic official predict.

John R. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee for the county, made the prediction to a reporter yesterday and Charles S. Early, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for the county, concurred. Fletcher is opposed to and Early favors the measure.

In a recent swing through the county, Fletcher, an attorney of Cheverly, found "people are not familiar with details of the bill and don't care much."

Says Few Would Bother

"It's difficult enough to get people to vote in a regular election," he said. "Most people don't want to bother standing in line to vote in a referendum—they say 'Let George do it.'"

Early, of Brandywine, agreed there was little public interest. He said he had "no idea how it will come out."

Fletcher believes the vote will be very close and "may result in defeat of the proposal."

Fred F. Mooneyham, president of the Prince Georges Hotel and Restaurant Association, sole group to speak up for the proposal, also expects "a light, close vote." He believes "there's a good possibility we'll lose."

The association, he said, is canvassing voters and circulating leaflets and posters "stressing merits of the bill." Advocates claim license fees will yield $200,000 to $250,000 to the county for roads and schools and to reduce taxes.

Doubt Revenue Estimates

Opponents, led by the clergy and civic groups, argue the measure would produce less revenue than predicted, would tend to demoralize the community, would threaten political control by gambling interests, and would depreciate property values.

The Rev. Roy H. Stetler of the Cheverly Evangelical United Brethren Church, has charged proponents of the measure with "gross deception" in the wording of the referendum ballot. It omits all reference to "slot machines" or "pinball games," he asserted, and does not state that an affirmative vote would legalize cash payoffs.

The ballot, after stating the Maryland legislature's bill authorizing the referendum, asks voters to check either "for licensing certain amusement devices" or "against licensing certain amusement devices."

When informed of the deception charge, Mooneyham replied: "People wouldn't go to the polls anyway if they didn't know what they were voting on."

10-Day Order Bars Removal Of TV Aerial

A television set owner yesterday was granted a court order that restrains his landlords from taking down his aerial for the next 10 days.

The restraining order was signed in District Court by Judge Matthew F. McGuire after John T. Bonner, Washington attorney, had said loss of his television would cause him "extreme embarrassment and humiliation."

The 10-day period will give both sides time to prepare arguments for a hearing on Bonner's request for a permanent injunction against his landlords.

Bonner lives at 4204 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, Md. His suit identified the five coowners of the apartment building as Abram and Minnie Kay of 4800 17th st. nw.; George Wasserman of 816 F st. nw. and Louis C. and Celia K. Goldberg of 3421 Garrison st. nw.

Bonner, whose suit was filed by Attorney T. Emmett McKenzie, claims that Albert J. Knott, agent for the owners, gave him permission last March to erect a television aerial on the roof of the building.

On May 28, Bonner says, Knott informed him he must remove the aerial by June 28 or the apartment house management would do so.

"Due to the type of television he bought," declares the suit, "it will be impossible for the plaintiff to operate the set if he takes the aerial down."

The suit also claims removal of the aerial would be "willful destruction of private property."

Weekend Death Toll Is 413; 253 Killed on Highways

By The Associated Press

The summer season's first big weekend was the last for 413 Americans.

That number lost their lives in accidents on the highways, at the beaches and resort cottages and in miscellaneous observances of the three-day Memorial Day holiday. The period covered by the survey extended from 6 p. m. in all time zones Friday until midnight Monday.

As usual traffic was the big killer—253 persons dying on the highways. The toll surpassed the advance estimate of 215 by the National Safety Council.

Eighty-seven persons drowned and 73 lost their lives in fires, falls, airplane crashes and other holiday tragedies.

The total deaths compared with an unofficial 404 over the three-day Memorial Day holiday of 1948.

Man Held for Jury Following Inquest Into Shooting

Osten Murphy, 22, 107 L st. se., was held for action of the grand jury at a coroner's inquest yesterdy on a murder charge arising from the fatal shooting Friday of William M. Timberlake, 27, 943 M st. nw.

Murphy, who had been sought by police since the shooting, appeared voluntarily at the Second Precinct Station early yesterday. The coroner's jury handed down its verdict a few hours later.

Police said Murphy, an employe of Government Services, Inc., shot and killed Timberlake during an argument at the latter's home. Timberlake had protested attentions Murphy was paying his sister, according to police.

Archdiocese Bars Marriage Of GI Student

Boston, May 31 (AP).—A young Roman Catholic GI student who has taken sides against the Boston archdiocesan authorities in a controversy on church doctrine today said the chancellor of the archdiocese had denied him and his intended bride permission to wed with the church's blessing.

Thomas H. Sennott, 26, said he and his fiancee, Miss Doris M. Coulombe, 22, accompanied by James R. Walsh, former Boston College teacher, went to the chancery to request church rites for their marriage. Last week Miss Coulombe said a parish priest had referred her similar request to the archdiocesan office.

There, according to Sennott, Miss Coulombe and Walsh discussed the issue with Msgr. Walter J. Furlong, the chancellor.

"Unless you sever your connection with St. Benedict's Center you cannot be married," Sennott said his fiancee was told by the priest.

Sennott said they had no intention of doing that but would not be married outside the church. Monsignor Furlong withheld comment.

Plea of Unwed Mother for Son Rejected

The Supreme Court refused yesterday to hear a plea from Dawn L. Allen, an unwed mother, for help in recovering her 2-year-old son from a Virginia couple to whom he had been given for adoption.

Miss Allen, who now lives in Arlington, Va., declared she was in a state of "emotional agitation" when she agreed to the adoption. At the time, she was a nurse in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Stanley Litsinger, 1506 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md. Miss Allen said an unnamed Army officer was the child's father.

The child was adopted by the Litsingers' nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Litsinger of Tappahannock, Va. Miss Allen told the court, in asking for the child's return, that "the fertile imagination of a small town as a breeding ground for malicious gossip is well known."

'Dead' Man Digs Up His Past, Finds 2 Wives, Disappears

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Mrs. Mary Martino "No. 1." | Antonio Martino "Dead" | Mrs. Dotty Martino "No. 2"

New York, May 31 (U.P.).—Anthony Martino, a former GI believed dead for five years, apparently was sorry today that he tried to rediscover his past.

The Staten Island cab driver, who says he is an amnesia victim, learned that he has two wives and three children and that the Army considers him AWOL.

Martino promptly disappeared. Neighbors said they saw him this morning, but then he vanished.

So did Mrs. Martino No. 2. Neighbors said the pert blue-eyed blonde, her 3-year-old son and an unidentified man climbed over their back fence with a suitcase this morning and disappeared down a railroad embankment.

Mrs. Martino No. 1, meanwhile, set out from Waterbury, Conn., to claim the father of her two children. But she became car-sick en route and returned home.

First Army public relations said late today that Martino was "still missing." In Washington, Army officials said that since he had reported back to the Army he possibly could be considered still on "active" duty and therefore AWOL.

Until three weeks ago, Martino's life was a reasonably simple one. He had a pretty wife, an attractive son who often was photographed by a modeling agency, and had worked as a cab driver for four years.

But three weeks ago he quit his job and asked Army authorities to help him learn his true identity.

"I'm not sure who I am," he told an Army recruiting sergeant. "Would you mind giving me my Army status."

The Army checked its files and Friday an officer telephoned the first Mrs. Martino that her husband was alive.

She said she married him in 1933 and that he was a toolsetter.

"We had no marital disagreements," she said.

The attractive brunette, who has an 11-year-old son and a 7-year-old daughter, said she last heard from her husband in December, 1944. She said she was notified soon afterward that he had been blown from a foxhole in France and wounded and later that he was missing and presumed dead.

In Time of Need a Friend Indeed
...guards Them Night and Day

Why is Nickel such a good friend of this young mother and her child?

You'll find the answer in the all-important word Cleanliness.

For, just a century ago, a crusading young doctor named Semmelweis made the vital discovery that immaculate cleanliness was necessary to check the dreaded childbed fever.

Since then, the way has been marked by names like...Lister!...Koch!...Pasteur!...milestones on the road to health through sanitation.

Your hospital follows their lead and protects your health by making sure its equipment is absolutely sanitary. It uses sterilizers and heavy-duty washing machines made of Monel. And milk formula equipment made of Stainless Steel. Both are alloys of Nickel.

These Nickel alloys resist corrosion. They can be kept gleaming bright and sanitary. They are smooth, hard metals that will not rust or pit to harbor microbe marauders.

That's why Nickel, the "white" metal, is a real friend of the "men in white."

And why Nickel is your friend. In fact it is usually Your Unseen Friend because, combined with other metals, it serves you in so many ways you seldom see.

Triumph Of Principle

The Senate said a resounding and thrilling yes yesterday when the home-rule bill finally got to the floor. There was a brief flurry when Senator Eastland introduced his amendment to require that any change in the local segregation setup be submitted to the people in a referendum. But this ill-considered scheme to limit the powers of the proposed District Council went down to defeat by a 22-vote margin. Then the bill went through without a roll call. It was amazingly easy. When actually confronted with the great issue of restoring local suffrage to the District, the diminished opposition had no arguments worth making. And not a single member of the Senate would stultify himself by going on record to deny Washington the home-rule rights that every other American city enjoys.

The sweeping nature of the victory does not, of course, detract from the excellent work done by sponsors of the bill. Rather, it is a tribute to the thorough preliminary efforts of Senators Kefauver, McGrath, Holland, Taft and many others. Their intelligent leadership commands the warmest appreciation from this voteless community. Yet we are firmly convinced that the nature of the issue itself was in large measure responsible for this historic triumph. Men of reason and of sound political judgment are reluctant to put their necks out when confronted with a measure so thoroughly in keeping with American tradition and principle. Negative votes on the record would have been almost equivalent to repudiation of the principle of popular representation through which Congress itself exists.

For this reason we suspect that the bill will sail through to victory in the House if it gets a chance. The question is whether it can be gotten out of the House District Committee, where it has heretofore encountered a good deal of hostility. The House would do well to recognize, however, that the measure which the Senate has passed was built on the groundwork laid in the House at the last session by Representative Auchincloss and his colleagues. Indeed, a similar bill came close to passage in the House and was sidetracked only for want of time.

With such a favorable start, it would be tragic if the House should now fail to follow through. The initiative should not be left to the District Committee. The policy reflected in this bill is one to which the Democratic and Republican Parties are both pledged. The time has come for President Truman to take a hand by urging the House leadership to make certain that the bill will be brought to a vote. The principle involved is so vital that the House cannot afford to remain aloof.

Hiss-Chambers

One of the strangest dramas of our time began moving toward a climax with the opening of the Alger Hiss trial for perjury in New York yesterday. The immediate issue before the court is relatively insignificant. It is simply a question of whether Mr. Hiss lied under oath. But the evidence in the case penetrates deeply into the great dilemma of the age in which we live—the dilemma of a free society in collision with conspiratorial communism.

The big question, so far as the public is concerned, is whether the judicial process can untangle a dramatic, even melodramatic, combination of charges, allegations, contradictions and mysterious circumstances that led to this charge of perjury. The people are little concerned over whether Mr. Hiss lied before the grand jury that indicted him. What they wish to know is whether this former high official in the Government passed out confidential State Department documents to a Communist spy, as Whittaker Chambers has accused him of doing. Unfortunately, the statute of limitations forbids the prosecution of Mr. Hiss on this basic charge, as it also forbids prosecution of Mr. Chambers for his admitted acceptance of confidential State Department documents while he was a Communist hireling. The trial, based on a side issue, may or may not satisfy the public yearning for a definitive answer to the larger issues, but it is likely to come nearer to doing so than any other proceeding has done.

One must not forget the court's major concern with meting out justice to the individual defendant. It must not leap to conclusions with the agility of the Committee on Un-American Activities. It must keep the trial centered on the perjury charge. For the sake of clarifying current issues as well as keeping history straight, however, it is to be hoped that in the process of doing justice to Mr. Hiss the truth underlying the microfilms that were found cached in a pumpkin on Mr. Chambers' farm will be laid bare.

The Hiss-Chambers controversy has profoundly shaken our complacent and trusting free society. Only clear-cut findings of fact in the cool detachment of the courtroom can lift this case out of the mystery, confusion and politics now surrounding it and transform it into a meaningful and constructive influence upon policy. If the trial serves this general purpose as well as the specific purpose of determining Mr. Hiss' innocence or guilt, the country will be in a much better position to wrestle with its problem of reconciling liberty and security.

Mr. McCarran's Bogeys

With the aid of experts in the Library of Congress, Senator McCarran has conjured up a bevy of rather terrifying bogeys intended to frighten Attorney General Clark and Assistant Secretary of State Peurifoy into surrendering confidential files to his Senate Judiciary Subcommittee. They appear in a memorandum he has circulated. If the 168 files which he has demanded under subpena are not forthcoming today, the full Judiciary Committee (also under Mr. McCarran's chairmanship) could ask the Senate to issue a warrant directing its sergeant-at-arms to bring Messrs. Clark and Peurifoy before the bar of the Senate. Should they still refuse to yield the files, they could be held in custody. Presumably, the cases would then be thrown into the courts by petitions for writs of habeas corpus.

Even if the courts should uphold the executive officials in their determination to keep secret these files on subversive activities, Congress could unlimber some big artillery against that policy. It could withhold appropriations from the State and Justice Departments. It could abolish the office of Attorney General and Assistant Secretary of State. It could even abolish the two departments and transfer the FBI to congressional control. In short it could quite easily bring all government to a standstill, as Senator McCarran darkly implies.

Meanwhile, however, the executive branch would be far from helpless in the fight. It could have the disputed files transferred to the custody of the President, where, as a practical matter, they would be beyond reach of the Senate. Any effort on the part of the Senate to use force could be resisted by calling out the Army, of which the President is Commander in Chief, though, of course, the President might be impeached before he got to this stage of these horrendous proceedings.

To mention these extreme measures is merely to emphasize the absurdity of the controversy. It is not to be supposed that the Senate is going to take the Attorney General and Assistant Secretary of State into custody. Nor will the Senate abolish their positions or take any other foolish action.

Surely the time has come for all the parties in this perennial disputation to act like reasonable men and in the spirit of our laws. It has long been recognized that our system of divided powers leaves an area of unenforceability in our laws—an area which the founding fathers expected to be bridged by common sense. What is needed is not a showdown, as Senator McCarran suggests, to see which branch of the Government is supreme in this sphere but a sensible accommodation that will serve the purposes of both.

The Senate is entitled to complete information as to the extent of subversive activities in the country. In this instance it is not on a fishing expedition. The McCarran committee is trying to shape legislation for keeping subversives out of the United States and deporting those who are here. It cannot legislate in the dark. As a matter of sound public policy, the Administration is under the clearest sort of obligation to give the committee all the data that will contribute to a complete and well-rounded understanding of the problem.

This newspaper does not think, however, that this necessitates the disclosing of the personnel records of Government employes or the divulging of the FBI's sources of information. Agencies in the executive branch have as much right to maintain conditions under which they can work effectively as Congress has to demand full information—at least, until Congress changes their methods of operation by law. It is high time for the leaders of Congress to sit down with representatives of the President and work out a sensible policy on the transfer of information that would protect both these legitimate objectives.

Lilienthal Hits Back

After his curious willingness to assume guilt in the uranium scare of several weeks ago, Chairman Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission has again taken a firm stand in his retort to Senator Hickenlooper. Mr. Lilienthal's anger and emotion are understandable. Without a bill of particulars, Senator Hickenlooper's blanket charge of "incredible mismanagement" of atomic energy has seemed unfair and of questionable motivation—though hardly warranting the epithet "un-American" which Mr. Lilienthal applies to it.

The Iowa Senator now has the opportunity, in open hearings of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy beginning today, to produce the evidence which so far he has kept to himself. We hope with Mr. Hickenlooper that the inquiry will proceed "in an orderly way upon an examination of the facts"—and we accentuate "facts." Certainly there is no room for mere catcalls or spite work, or a renewal of the political ganging up against Mr. Lilienthal. For the importance of the hearings goes far beyond personalities or a vindication of Mr. Lilienthal. It is concerned with the entire future direction of atomic energy development.

It will be up to Mr. Hickenlooper to do more than merely reiterate the history of the lost uranium or the fellowship granted to an admitted Communist. The delay in reporting the loss of U-235 to the FBI certainly shows a weakness that should be corrected; but the delay was itself a violation of commission regulations and does not prove mismanagement on Mr. Lilienthal's part. Whether persons of Communist orientation should receive fellowships is a debatable political question which Mr. Lilienthal sought unsuccessfully to discuss with Congress before the storm broke; but it has nothing to do with either security or commission management. Nor will Mr. Hickenlooper's vague intimation that the commission is shot through with Communist sympathizers stand, in view of the elaborate clearance procedure, unless he can document the charge specifically.

Where an inquiry can be helpful is in an examination of the business details of the Atomic Energy Commission—whether the organization is functionally efficient, whether contract procedure is proper, whether the commission has consulted the congressional watchdog committee on major decisions, whether there has been enough emphasis on release of nonsecret information. Either the hearings can provide a valuable spotlight on a program over which there is altogether too much mystery, or they can develop into a mere sideshow to embarrass the Administration. The key is in Senator Hickenlooper's hands.

East-West Sparring

The fencing at the Paris Conference has produced an odd situation. The Western powers have made it clear that they would rather keep Germany divided for the present than abridge any of the existing liberties in the western zones. The Russians have made it equally clear that they would rather keep their eastern zone in Communist hands than merge it with the west on Western terms. As if to prove that no political concessions can be expected from the Soviet side, the "People's Congress" in the eastern zone has just adopted a constitution ideally suited to maintain Communist control. At this rate one wonders why the Soviet government was so anxious to have a four-power meeting, why it insisted upon a meeting as the price of lifting the Berlin blockade, and why it laid down such an advance barrage of propaganda. Some observers in Paris now think the Russians want only a limited agreement which would maintain two Germanys—one Communist and one democratic—but would also revive East-West trade across the dividing line.

It is too soon even to guess with certainty that this is the limit of Soviet aims at Paris. At most conferences with the Russians there has had to be a clear and unmistakable deadlock before any signs of concession could appear. But if it develops that the Russians really want no far-reaching agreement now, we are in the presence of a situation that has arisen very seldom since the end of the war. The temporary solution that seems to suit Soviet purposes is also the one that suits Western purposes. The temptation in Western Foreign Offices will be to look askance at this queer state of affairs; to assume that if Russia wants something there must be a catch to it. Prudent diplomacy will look for the catch but will also welcome the opportunity to reach any genuine agreement, however limited it may be.

To hear some of our cold warriors talk about the Paris meeting, one would imagine that the West could afford to push the cold war indefinitely—until, one fine day, the flag of free enterprise is hoisted over the Great Palace of the Kremlin. The fact is, of course, that the cold war has hurt western as well as eastern Europe, necessary and unavoidable though it was. The West now needs two things above all from the Paris discussions. One is to know that it can go ahead uninterruptedly with the great task of reviving western Germany and integrating it with the rest of the western European community. The second is to relax the political and economic tension that spreads insecurity everywhere and acts as a drag on European recovery. From the Western standpoint it would be worth while to reach an amicable agreement-to-disagree with the Russians; to keep Germany divided for a stated period; to establish some kind of four-power mechanism, without a veto, and perhaps with the participation of Germany's smaller neighbors, to push trade between East and West.

If the negotiators at Paris can also put a damper on propaganda and break the log-jam over the Austrian treaty, their meeting will be a triumph. If they can do no more than reach a very limited agreement, they will still have done something worth while. Neither West nor East can afford a repetition of the angry breakdowns of 1947 which led to the edge of disaster.

CHERRY TREES

My cherry trees bear fruitage now
On every firm uplifted bough—
A peasant woman's strong brown arm
So lifts to hold her child from harm.
In dew-drenched grass, my cherry trees
Wear green skirts bound about their knees;
Their bare brown feet press deep in earth;
They smile at toil and welcome birth,
And pity the willow trees by the wall

Atomic Criticism

It is difficult to find a sound basis for current criticisms by Congress of the Atomic Energy Commission and Mr. Lilienthal. Is the mislaying of three grams of partially enriched uranium so very serious? Is it appreciated that this quantity is only about the size of a head of a pin, or that any country can produce minute amounts of enriched uranium by means of an ordinary mass spectrograph?

No one, during the invasion of Europe, would have asked for General Eisenhower's resignation because of loss of a hand grenade. Perhaps we should congratulate the AEC on having lost only a pin head quantity—out of the innumerable tons of valuable materials handled by thousands of men working for two years at different sites throughout the country.

How far will the people let Congress go in demanding FBI investigation of scholarship recipients to be given only public, nonrestricted information? Would it be a long step to requiring FBI clearance of children seeking Government-financed education in our public schools, or of incapacitated persons seeking social security benefits?

When secret data are involved, FBI investigations are essential; but when no secrets are involved, hands off! Let us not follow in totalitarian footsteps; let us keep ourselves free to think, speak, and vote as we will. What else has contributed as much to our present strength?

"Limited Preference"

Your May 24 editorial, "Limited Preference," stated both a "theoretical" and practical answer to the question of the preference of veterans in Government service. It seems to me that in this case the theoretical answer—no preference to veterans in a career merit system—is also the practical one.

According to the principles of Selective Service, the type of service to be rendered by each citizen was a matter to be decided by a group of his neighbors, the local Selective Board. If this board decided that John Doe should serve in a civilian capacity in the total war effort, then is it equitable or just to penalize him?

You recommend that the decision concerning veterans' preference be reached "rationally" rather than "in response to political pressure." However, I am convinced that a rational decision is improbable until the civilian defenders of America, the citizens who fought on the home front and in civilian clothes and who supplied the arsenals of democracy, are organized into a pressure group as strong as our combined veterans' organizations.

This Government owes nothing to those who fought in or out of uniform if they are now physically able to support themselves. To the disabled it owes much more than even the most absolute of preference in Government employment.

Eisler's Release

Once again the Justice Department and American jurisprudence have emerged as the laughing stock of the civilized world via, this time, the Commie Eisler case. The last such notorious spectacle was the mass sedition case which still hasn't been tried after seven years.

What an example of infantile tutelage it was to witness the British Bow Street magistrate lecturing our august American Attorney General on just what is extraditable law! But it was no less elementary than the advice-from-the-grave Earl Birkenhead gave Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws that once a political case has been allowed to enter the courts the prosecution therof must continue his prosecution until the end.

But, of course, the Justice Department and the District Court chose not to take the counsel of the great British authority on political cases who sent Sir Roger Casement to the gallows. Therefore, after seven years, three indictments and a mountain of litigation, they invented new law. Likewise. Tom Clark chose not to bone up on British law in the Eisler case.

It would take a series of "Pacts" to restore the American international prestige which has been sadly dissipated by these two strange judicial fiascos.

Public Men

Much has been said about the hard criticism directed upon our public servants by the people who vote them into office and pay their salaries, including traveling and other expenses paid out of the Treasury of the United States. I do not believe anyone is harder on our public servants than their contemporary colleagues, who, it seems to me, never fail to insinuate that those who bore heavy burdens during our emergency periods were in some obscure way involved in unfaithfulness in office. Politicians are notoriously cold and heartless in attempting to destroy by malice those they consider, for some political or personal reason not communicated to the people, not suitable for their position.

Portrait Of Aly Khan

I had a nodding acquaintance with Aly Khan for some considerable time before I realized that he was a direct descendant of the Prophet Mohammed. An unassuming, average-looking, preoccupied, but pleasant individual, he was often seen riding around Cannes in an inexpensive station wagon.

What drew my attention to him mostly was the bald patches on his "frontal eminence" and his fluffy electrified hair which formed a V in the middle of his scalp. Or perhaps it was the very informal but glorified stable boy effect which he cultivated in his dress. Otherwise there was not much more to distinguish him from the many young sports who make the Cote D'Azur their happy hunting ground.

He usually wore a gaudy sport shirt open at the neck, and a silk scarf tied in a knot, a sport jacket of somber hue, long tight "horsey" pants, and rather shabby suede sport shoes. I really got to know him when I discovered that he could break, with impunity, the strict rule of the Casino (patrons are required to wear collars and ties) and was admitted without question.

He liked to gamble and visited the Casino frequently. His favorite game apparently was chemin de fer, and was a good gambler except for the fact that he would continue when the luck cycle was against him.

From my observation, like everybody else, he wanted to win and did not particularly like to lose. He definitely lost more frequently than he won, he played average stakes and I never saw him in a really big game. He would take about 50 thousand francs to the table (less than two hundred dollars, not a large sum for gamblers), and when that was gone he would go to the "Caisse" and cash a check for a similar sum, which of course was all too readily granted.

A nice fellow who would talk to anybody, especially about horses, and who looks more like you and me than a Persian or Mohammedan prince. He would probably snap his fingers at the mythical assumptions of the fabulous feminine conquests attributed to him.

Alternative To The Atlantic Pact

The undersigned charter members of the Fellowship of Reconciliation believe that the Senate should reject the North Atlantic Pact by proposing a positive program for peace as a substitute for it. We propose the following:

a. The complete freeing of Germany without the imposition of any indemnities;

b. The transfer to the United Nations of the responsibility for seeing that Germany never rearms;

c. The organization by the United Nations of an international inspection force functioning in Germany to see that Germany does not arm. Such a force could not only demonstrate to the world that an inspection force would work but it could serve as the nucleus for an expanded force when the United Nations adopts a proposal for universal disarming. An appropriate police force, organized by the United Nations from the personnel of any or all of its members, could deal with any violation reported by the inspection force.

d. The study by the United Nations of what police force it estimates it may require from each nation to handle attempted rearmament in Germany or any other threat to world peace.

e. Preparation for the liquidation of all other military establishments by all members of the United Nations under such time schedule as the United Nations shall elect.

f. To consider further what steps the members of the United Nations may take to assist one another in repairing the ravages of war.

The Fellowship of Reconciliation is a religious peace organization of 13,000 members in the United States. It has branches in more than 25 nations, including all of the nations subscribing to the North Atlantic Pact. The Fellowship of Reconciliation began in England in 1914, and was extended to the United States in 1915, as a movement of Christian protest against war and of faith in a better way than violence for the solution of all conflict.

We believe that love, such as taught and exemplified by Jesus, must serve as the true guide of conduct under all circumstances, and that it is the effective force for overcoming evil and transforming society into a creative fellowship.

Facing The World Of '49

By Malvina Lindsay

Youth's Adjustment

IT HAS BEEN nearly a decade since boys and girls coming out of high school and college were harassed to any extent by the anxious thought: "Will I get a job?"

This year the world is not reaching out so eagerly to receive them. Talent scouts from business firms are not so active on campuses. Even engineering graduates have to "look around" a little. Girls are finding glamour openings diminished, and science and technological pursuits becoming again a man's world. High school graduates will have to begin on lower rungs of the ladder than last year, though opportunities were beginning to slow up some then. Competition has increased for summer jobs, expected to be sought by about 300,000 youths and housewives.

The end of the job boom means readjustment for eager and inexperienced youth, always one of the first groups to feel the employment pinch. Hence youth must do some looking at hard facts this spring.

ONE OF THESE is that it must not get panicky even though jobs are not handed out on silver platters. Vocational authorities say there probably will be enough jobs for all well-prepared young persons, even though a record number of graduates are coming off campuses. However, jobs will have to be looked for, even hunted. Bosses will interview applicants, do the picking and choosing—not vice versa.

Another is that employers, for all their talk of "practical knowledge and common sense," tend to choose first the top tenth in rank in college classes. High school graduates also will find good school records useful in these days when personnel departments are getting more choosy. In addition, many firms will look into work attitudes of applicants. Industry, cooperation, responsibility—such character traits are becoming as important to some employers as technical skill.

Girls will find that their old vocational standbys, teaching, nursing, home economics, secretarial work, hold the widest opportunities. Young women with high-flown ideas about glamour careers also should give thought to the public's mood of thrift and down-to-earth living. Also girls of today need to prepare both for marriage and careers as the increasing trend is to combine them. Three out of four women, it has been found, have worked at some time in their lives.

ANOTHER point to be considered by youth is that the salesman seems to be coming back. A big demand for college men interested in receiving training for sales careers is reported.

It is even possible that another golden age of the salesman, such as existed in the 1920s, is in prospect. If, as some economists predict, a long-term rise in business should follow the present recession, the salesman would be the man of tomorrow. At any rate, increasing competition and sales resistance are raising his status. And a new concept of his work is developing. The caricatured jittery, hard-driven, go-getter of the past was responsible for many college men turning from sales careers. Firms now are trying to show college youth that sales jobs lead neither to nervous breakdowns nor thrombosis, but to solid achievement.

Finally youth will have to revise some of its job attitudes. While its aims should continue to be high, it will need to recapture some of its old prewar willingness to start at the bottom and work up. The easy success young people had in industry in war and early postwar years created among many beginners an impatience with lowly and routine tasks. Chief complaint of placement and vocational authorities who handle college graduates is that so many expect to go places too fast. They are not willing to put in the years of struggle that lie behind those at the top whom they want to emulate. Many high school graduates likewise have these occupational delusions of grandeur.

The class of '49 will probably benefit in the end by finding its way a little rugged. Its wits will be sharpened, its backbone strengthened by the competition it will face. But society should see to it that youth does not again, as in the early 1930s, have to leave school without expectation and confidence and go into a world of futile and frustrating pavement pounding.

"Dangerous Franchise"

Harry F. Klinefelter's letter of May 27 warning against "too many votes at the very seat of Government" contains arguments which are as applicable to the suffrage policies of the 48 States as they are to the District of Columbia. His logic, if acted upon, would produce the following results:

1. All citizens residing in the capital of a State would be disfranchised. "Too many votes at the very seat of Government," y' see.

2. Wherever one-third or more of the population has a skin color other than white, the entire community would have to be disfranchised. Otherwise, y' see, "a Negro (or other non-Caucasian) balance of power" would result, and that would be calamitous.

Mr. Klinefelter's position, whatever else may be said for it, is incompatible with representative government.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Office Market

THERE IS an excellent chance that the London Embassy will shortly be sold for cash on the barrelhead. The purchaser, if the deal goes through, is expected to be the present Ambassador to the Argentine, James Bruce. President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson have not finally settled the disposition of the valuable London property, which will probably be vacated soon by Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, who is ill. But the sale to Bruce has strong support, according to insiders.

The foregoing paragraph could well have appeared in the real estate columns of this newspaper, with a few names changed. It raises an issue which everybody in this country ought to begin thinking about.

The particular case of James Bruce can be dealt with rather briefly. He is a banker and a Democrat. He has only two visible qualifications for the embassy in London. The one that carries weight is the money he gave and raised for the last presidential campaign. The one that will be publicly mentioned is his "success" in the Argentine, where he has been a "good" Ambassador in the sense of establishing close relations with Juan and Evita Peron and their flashy, totally corrupt inner circle.

BEING on a cozy footing with Evita Peron seems rather poor preparation for doing business with the glacially virtuous Sir Stafford Cripps and his colleagues in the British Labor government. And the London job has never been more important.

The Western united front against the Soviet Union hinges upon Anglo-American cooperation, which is about to be severely tested by the need to evolve a constructive Far Eastern policy. The success of the Marshall Plan hinges upon British recovery, which is already in danger from the world trade recession. Yet James Bruce's backing for London is so strong that it almost prevented the appointment of his brother, David K. E. Bruce, as Ambassador to Paris.

The case of David Bruce is precisely the opposite of the case of his brother. He was not a Democratic contributor, but as ECA administrator in France he had already proven himself brilliantly well equipped for the Paris Embassy.

Even so, the Paris place would probably have gone to another large party contributor, Stanton Griffis, the former Ambassador to Egypt, if Averell Harriman had not pressed David Bruce's claims. And what gave Harriman the right to intervene was not his great services to the country, but his own large party contributions, which the White House vaguely feels have not been sufficiently rewarded.

JAMES BRUCE'S political friends wanted Griffis for Paris instead of David Bruce, because they thought the appointment of one brother would rule the other out. Possibly this same theory will still prevent James Bruce from going to London. Whether he goes or not does not affect the issue that is raised.

The truth is that the public auction of major offices, which at least used to be done in a shame-faced way, is beginning to be regarded as a matter of course.

It was openly cast up as a crime against James Forrestal that he had not participated in the auction in last campaign. All the President's pious statements after Forrestal's death cannot conceal the fact that members of the President's own staff participated without punishment in this cheap attack. Even today, failure to lay the dollars on the line is being cast up as a crime against Ambassador Douglas, another of those who have given the best service to the President and the country. The President has voiced no indignation.

INSTEAD, he has just given the Secretaryship of the Navy to a certain Francis P. Matthews. It is well known that this dim figure has been fished from his native obscurity because of his handiness with a checkbook. This winter, he gave the vital Secretaryship of Defense to Louis Johnson. Whatever Johnson's other qualifications, it is well known that financial services rendered were a major consideration. And in the same way the other large contributors—Griffis, Lawrence Steinhardt et al.—will ultimately receive as their rewards posts in the gift of the American people.

The truth is that this traffic has reached a shockingly dangerous stage. It is by no means limited to the highest offices of state. There is also the fact that the large businessman and large corporations who make contributions are always suspected, frequently correctly, of seeking Government favors. The whole system is inherently, irremediably pernicious. The whole country should be indignant about it. And Congress should begin at once considering the long-bruited plan for public financing of political campaigns, which would stop this squalid barter.

Home Rule Sponsors Cheer Victory in Senate . . .

The Washington Post

Senate Passes Home Rule Bill for District

I'll take it up at the next meeting of the District Committee (scheduled for Monday) and ask what the committee will do about the bill. I'll ask for prompt action."

District Committee Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) was reported en route here from South Carolina and was not reached for comment.

Rep. Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the House District Judiciary Subcommittee, shares with District Committee Chairman McMillan a record of opposition to home rule last year, and a key position in handling the bill this year. His subcommittee earlier was given custody of home rule matters, handled in the last Congress by a special District subcommittee headed by Auchincloss.

Harris said he would see what is the attitude of the full District Committee before deciding what to do. He said 12 or 14 bills are awaiting action of his subcommittee.

He expressed concern over the Constitutional aspects of the home rule bill, and "I don't believe that under the Constitution Congress' legislative authority over the District can be delegated."

Congressional and civic backers of the home rule bill both voiced concern about the future of the bill in the House. Even though the measure has passed the half way mark, they suggested, the hardest part of the battle for final approval may still be ahead.

Finch Notes Difficulty

Finch predicted that if the bill comes to a vote in the House it will pass, but that the difficulty may arise in getting it before the House. Auchincloss pointed out that failure to act this year would not kill the bill; the Senate-approved measure would still be before the House next year.

Finch warmly praised the Senate handling of the bill. He said it felt all along that the best way to handle the home rule measure was for the Senate to act on it first. He said that now the measure has an improved chance of going through the House since it carries the prestige of Senate approval.

Kefauver said its passage was made possible only through bipartisan support. He cited the backing given to the bill by Senator McGrath (D., R. I.) chairman of the Senate District Committee and of the Democratic National Committee; and Senator Taft (R., Ohio) chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Bipartisan Backing Cited

He cited, too, the bipartisan group of District Committee members listed as coauthors of the bill. These include McGrath and Kefauver, Senators Hendrickson (R., N. J.); Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.); Hunt (D., Wyo.); Miller (D., Idaho); McCarthy (R., Wis.); Neely (D., W. V.), and Schoeppel (R., Kans.).

Kefauver said that District organizations had also given valuable help in preparing the bill.

"I'm certain that when the bill is passed by the House and is enacted, we'll have a better District government," said Kefauver.

Senator Kefauver was asked for his view on why opposition to the bill wilted after the Eastland-Johnston amendment was defeated.

"I think they figured we had the votes to pass it," said Kefauver. He said, too, that the recent statement by Senator Russell (D., Ga.) that the home rule bill was not a part of the issues raised by the President's civil rights program had an effect on the final Senate decision.

Senator Eastland said he had no explanation for the quick end of the fight. He said his main concern was his amendment, although he was opposed to the bill and voted against it.

Amendments Differ

Eastland presented his amendment as soon as the Senate resumed the home rule debate which had started Friday afternoon. The amendment Eastland and Johnston presented yesterday differed sharply from the one they filed Friday.

The Friday plan called for proposals to change the segregation setup to be submitted first to a referendum, with approval by act of Congress required as a final step.

Their revised plan, on which yesterday's vote was reached, would have left Congress in the same reviewing role for legislation to change the segregation pattern it would have for any other major District legislation, but require that segregation changes would take effect only if approved by District voters in a referendum.

Senator Holland (D., Fla.), a leading advocate of home rule, told the Senate he would have opposed the first Eastland-Johnston plan, but he urged approval of their new one.

He said the first plan would have taken away from the people of the District and their council any real jurisdiction over changing the racial segregation pattern.

Holland said the new plan, completely different in form, did not depart at all from the home rule idea and would help the bill. He said it would simply classify changes in the segregation system with bond issues, already subject to referendums in the bill, and with the bill itself, which would take effect only if approved by a referendum.

Kefauver Opposes It

Senator Kefauver opposed the Eastland-Johnston proposal. He said that in preparing the bill, the District Committee had tried to steer clear of the issue of segregation and nonsegregation. He said proposals were made to write a Fair Employment Practices section into the bill, and those were rejected. He said amendments of that kind would be stirred up from the other side if the Johnston-Eastland plan were adopted.

Kefauver said that theoretically every issue probably should be passed on by the people, but that no other city charter that he knew of in the country required a referendum in segregation matters.

In urging support of his amendment, Senator Eastland said "we hear a lot about majority rule, this amendment would simply provide it."

He said a "synthetic clamor" had gone up across the Nation for an end to present segregation rules in the District.

Eastland said that a lot of "big politicians" here who publicly call for the end of segregation, believe in and practice segregation for themselves and their families. He said he was impressed at the number of these politicians who send their children to private schools that draw the color line.

Permit's "Democratic Process"

He said his amendment would let the people of the District decide by democratic processes whether they want to abolish segregation and would prevent its being done by pressure from behind the scenes.

Senator Johnston, speaking for the plan, also hit hard at the home-rule plan. He said if home rule is granted "you still haven't finished, you've just begun. They'll be back here next year and the year after that" seeking national representation.

To grant that, he said, would make the District into a State, contrary to the ideas of the Founding Fathers. He suggested it would be better to move the Nation's Capital elsewhere.

Would Move Capital West

He said they moved the Capital of South Carolina to the center of the State, and he said he would like to see the Nation's Capital moved to a central location.

"Washington is over near the Atlantic Ocean," he said. "Let me tell you another reason why the Capital should be moved. If we ever have an atomic war, what would happen to Washington! Think about it!"

"If you don't continue to keep control of Washington, D. C., the Capitol of the Nation, I'm telling you here and now you're going to have a lot of headaches that you never heard of before. The minute you pass home rule, I'm here to tell you you'll have plenty of headaches."

Jerseyites "Segregate Selves"

On the segregation issue, Senator Johnston declared that in a recent trip to New Jersey he had noticed that on the playgrounds and in the streets there, "people segregated themselves."

Senator Hendrickson pointed out that the new State constitution adopted in 1947 had banned segregation in New Jersey.

Eastland commented that the New Jersey constitution had been approved by vote of the people, along the line his amendment proposed for segregation matters.

Hendrickson then asked Eastland if he regarded the home rule as one to establish a representative form of government in the District, or to set up "a true democracy where there is a referendum on every issue."

Eastland replied that "I do not want the people of the District deprived of their rights—what we seek to do here is to give the people of the District the same right to pass on the question of segregation that was accorded to the people of New Jersey."

Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) also urged approval of the Eastland-Johnston amendment.

Before he went to the floor, Senator Kefauver had held a last-minute conference on the bill in his office with leaders of District groups which have sponsored home rule.

Among those present were Finch, Sturgis Warner and Charles C. Glover 3d of the Washington Home Rule Committee; Austin L. Fickling of the Federation of Civic Associations, J. C. Turner and James William Bryan of the Democratic Central Committee, Benjamin C. Sigal and Mrs. Frances Adams of Americans for Democratic Action, and Mrs. Milton Dunn of the District League of Women Voters.

Also in the conference were Clarence M. Pierce, assistant staff director in the last Congress for the House District Home Rule Subcommittee, and A. L. Wheeler, clerk of the Senate District Committee, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee, and special counsel for the Senate Home Rule Subcommittee.

Amendment Roll Call

Following is the roll call by which the Senate paved the way for later passage—by voice vote—of the District home rule bill.

Those voting "yea" favored attaching an amendment barring any changes in Washington's segregation pattern without a referendum. The amendment was defeated 49 to 27.

The roll call follows:

Cutter 'Rescues' Sunken Yacht

The Coast Guard cutter Jonquil, a 189-foot buoy-tender, has "rescued" the 26-foot yacht We-Two, which sank Saturday night in the Potomac off Higgins Point.

The hefty cutter hoisted the yacht aboard Monday and carried it to Curtis Bay, Md., the Coast Guard announced yesterday.

The yacht's owner, Wilbur Sherwood, of the Chastleton Hotel, and a party of five were rescued Sunday, after they spent 2 hours clinging to parts of the boat that remained above the surface.

Truman's Little Rock Trip to Be Overnight

President Truman's trip to the annual reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division at Little Rock, Ark., will be an overnight affair, the White House said yesterday.

The President, a veteran of the division in World War I, will fly to Little Rock June 10 for a speech and will fly back to Washington the next day.

This excludes, officials said, any possibility that Mr. Truman might go to Des Moines, Iowa, for a Democratic Party farm conference June 12 and 13.

Panamanian Specimens Arrive at District Zoo

Washington's Zoo has received a new contingent of Panamanian residents, Dr. William Mann, its director, announced yesterday.

The additions, which arrived by air, include a Bugle bird, officially known as a troupial, two marmoset monkeys, two doves, two terrapins and a crocodile.

They are the gift of a former Navy captain, William Miller, who was stationed here during World War II, and who is now studying zoology in the Canal Zone.

Washington Calling

Waste Of Public Men

IT WILL BE a long time before this febrile Capital ceases to speculate on the tragedy of James Forrestal and what brought it about. In the course of this soul-searching, a lot has been said about the difficulties of public service in America and the hazards faced by those who devote themselves to public office.

Childs

What with Congress, the press and radio and the indifference, if not hostility, of the public, the process seems at times to resemble the test applied by certain Indian tribes. They made their captives run through a double line of braves armed with clubs, spears and other weapons, each brave doing his best to down his luckless victim.

But, as Walter Lippmann has pointed out in the perceptive comment on the end of Forrestal's service in Government, perhaps no punishment is harsher than the familiar experience of being abruptly cast aside in mid-career. The lack of continuity and rotation in office may well be, as Lippmann expressed it, the greatest of all wastes in a fantastically wasteful Government.

There is so little effort to use all of a man's capacities. The individual is typed almost as narrowly as Hollywood types its character actors. This ignores the fact that most men who have held high office possess a wide range of talents and interests.

THE NAMES of many men whose Government service was interrupted in mid-career come to mind. Just by casual recollection, without any reference to files or notes, I have put together a list that indicates the kind of waste that goes on. And it is particularly conspicuous in view of the insistent complaint by President Truman that able men will not accept public office.

Another list would include others omitted here. They have little in common except that they have done creditable service in responsible office with integrity of purpose. Some would, I suspect, run like stricken deer at the suggestion that they go back into harness; they fled from office after raising and battering experiences. In any event, here is my list:

Wilson Wyatt—former Mayor of Louisville, Housing Expediter and administrator of the National Housing Agency in 1946. Now in law practice in Louisville.

Robert P. Patterson—judge, U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Undersecretary of War under Henry L. Stimson, Secretary beginning in September, 1945. Partner in New York law firm.

Will Clayton—held responsible offices in both State and Commerce Departments. A leading advocate of the International Trade Organization, he is devoting most of his time to promoting this concept of world trade.

ROBERT M. La Follette, jr.—defeated for reelection to the Senate from Wisconsin. Coauthor of the congressional reorganization measure that was widely praised. He is now acting as Washington adviser to several large corporations.

Adolph A. Berle, jr.—Assistant Secretary of State six years, Ambassador to Brazil. Extraordinary knowledge and background covering foreign affairs and the domestic economy. Now in private law practice in New York.

Milo Perkins—the shameful way in which he was removed as director of the Board of Economic Warfare is a cardinal example of what can happen to a conscientious public servant. Has imagination and inventiveness, as witness the food stamp plan to help get "surplus" farm produce to relief families during the depression. Economic consultant for several large corporations.

Francis Biddle—first chairman, National Labor Relations Board, Solicitor General and Attorney General 1941 to '45. Lecturing and writing, author of the recently published The World's Best Hope.

William Benton—as Assistant Secretary of State, he pioneered the Voice of America through the difficult phase before it had won congressional and public support. Chairman of the board of Encyclopedia Britannica and has other extensive business interests.

Thurman Arnold—Assistant Attorney General who became the most effective and dramatic exponent of rights of small business. Partner in a Washington law firm that has provided defense for many Government employes under unfair charges of disloyalty.

These men all have political views, some of a very positive nature. But, more important, they have capacity for high office, for administration, for making policy and directing it. And so do a great many others who have had unhappy experience with the Washington buzz saw.

The President's Calling List

10 a. m.—Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senator Lucas and Representative McCormack.

11—Representatives Havenner, Welch and Miller (Calif.).

11:15 Budget Director Frank Pace.

How to Grow Polio Virus Being Studied

Los Angeles, May 31 (AP). Science is just beginning to learn how to grow the virus, or germs, that causes infantile paralysis, Dr. Kenneth F. Maxcey of Baltimore discloses.

This is the next major step toward the hoped-for development of a preventive vaccine, he said.

Meanwhile, there are no known specific means of combating epidemics of poliomyelitis except those recognized for years as helpful in curbing the spread of disease, he said. These include quarantine of known cases, maintenance of high sanitary standards and decrease of contact among children during outbreaks.

Maxcey said infantile paralysis apparently is far more widely distributed in the population than is indicated by the number of known cases. For every case in which paralysis occurs, there may be as many as 100 cases so minor that only temporary discomfort is noted. Most of these, as a result, are never specifically identified as polio.

Many Adults Immunized

In California, which had an exceptionally high number of recognized cases last year, about 75 per cent of adults seem to have acquired immunity, he said. The disease everywhere is far more prevalent among children.

Research indicates this immunity is acquired by direct contact with the disease—in other words, by a mild attack, usually unidentified as polio, occurring most often in childhood.

All evidence points to transmission of the disease by human contact, since polio does not seem to occur naturally among any animals, birds or fishes.

The virus has been found occasionally on flies, by analysis of cultures from thousands of the insects gathered during epidemics. But flies have never been established as an important carrier.

Neither has water supply, sewage disposal or milk been shown conclusively to be a dangerous source or carrier. Conditions must be simple, because polio occurs everywhere in the world, in all climates and seasons. Its prevalence is higher, however, during hot weather, he said.

Paralytic Form on Increase

Despite greatly improved sanitation methods and water supply, the paralytic form of polio seems to have increased in recent years, although percentages are hard to determine because of the number of unrecognized mild cases.

A vaccine, or an anti-biotic (an organism that fights germs by arresting their development), appears to be the best ammunition against the disease. No effective anti-biotic has been developed, but a vaccine that immunizes safely has been used on monkeys and chimpanzees.

This vaccine is not yet considered safe for humans, but may be made so when scientists are able to grow the virus readily in laboratories. Several universities, including Johns Hopkins, are doing intensive work in this field.

All 6 Walk Away After Auto Rams Into Fast Train

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 31 (AP). Luck that passeth understanding is all that kept Martinsburg from entering six names on the roll of violent deaths over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pannuty of Martinsburg and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bowers and their two sons of Jefferson County were in Pannuty's car. The Baltimore & Ohio's Washingtonian Express, bound from Washington to Cleveland at 65 miles an hour, got to the crossing at the same time.

The car crashed into the side of the train. The train came uncoupled in three places. Debris flew. The car rolled down the tracks and demolished.

But all six persons in the car walked away, none seriously injured.

Britain is making aeronautical history by training scores of women as parachutists to serve with highly mobile medical units.

The Royal Air Force is conducting a regular course for "para-medical nurses" at its parachute and glider school in Upper Heyforth, Oxfordshire. Those taking the course all are volunteers. There is a considerable waiting list. The first graduates made six practice jumps before receiving their airborne insignia—just like men attending the school.

Medical units to which the parachute-trained nurses will be assigned consists of one medical officer (a physician), two nursing orderlies and two nursing sisters. Air Marshal P. C. Livingstone, the director of medical services of the Royal Air Force, is of the opinion that the military value of his service's new "para-medical outfits" will be tremendous.

Tests just completed by the RAF indicate that first aid can be given to wounded or injured men isolated in difficult terrain—such as the crew of a disabled bomber or transport aircraft—within a few moments of the time the medical officer plummets from a rescue plane to be followed by other members of the unit.

Air Marshal Livingstone also believes that the peace-time applications of the new "para-medical units" will be almost as great. He pointed out that there have been several civil air crashes during the last decade in which medical assistance dropped to survivors immediately could have saved lives that were lost through exposure and lack of first aid.

The units will be particularly valuable in the Arctic and in inaccessible spots such as the great northern woodlands of the North American Continent.

Each unit carries 200 pounds of medical stores. Small items go along with the unit personnel in knapsacks or kit-bags during the initial jump, and heavier bundles are dropped separately by the crew of the plane from which the jump is made.

The procedure worked out by the RAF calls for the medical officer to examine his patients and the airborne nurses to administer first aid while the para-medical orderlies pitch a special lightweight tent, prepare stretchers and blanket-covered litters and make ready for any immediate operation or movement.

Miss Jacqueline Cochran, America's outstanding woman pilot, repeatedly has urged that para-medical nurse training similar to the one instituted by the Royal Air Force be started in the United States along with a program to organize women pilots, but so far her recommendations have fallen on deaf ears in Washington.

The United States has several types of aircraft such as the Fairchild "flying boxcar" which would be particularly adaptable to operations of units including nurses.

Foreigners Lost Little At Shanghai

Shanghai, May 31 (AP).—American and other foreign property survived the battle of Shanghai with relatively small damage, a survey by the Associated Press showed today.

No American, British, or French casualties were reported, though a few Chinese employes of some foreign enterprises were cut.

A wounded man earlier identified as a British subject is actually a stateless person, the British consulate reported. This man, R. P. Verenberg, shot on the street, gave a Berlin address. He was the only known foreign casualty.

The worst property damage was sustained by missions. The Nationalists removed the steeple of the Catholic Church at suburban Chipao to prevent the Communists using it as an observation post.

The Nationalists also demolished the new Catholic church at Kinkahang, east of the Whangpoo.

New Kind of Alfalfa Is Found To Flourish in Spite of Goats

Lake Success, May 31 (AP).—Northern Turkey's hungry goats have given the United States a new kind of alfalfa.

This odd discovery, where goats substituted for scientists, has been reported to the United Nations by Dr. P. V. Cardon, administrator, Agricultural Research Administration of the Agriculture Dept.

American agriculturalists are combing the world for alfalfa to resist diseases attacking American varieties.

In northern Turkey they found a single, amazing alfalfa plant in a goat pasture. It covered several square feet. It grew like Bermuda grass, which no known alfalfa had done. From a single root, runners spread, putting down roots at short intervals, and sending up alfalfa leaves at those points.

Goats grazed so closely alfalfa could not produce seed. But instead of dying, the plant developed runners which replaced seed.

This single plant was carefully dug, and nurtured during a month-long trip to the United States. Here the new alfalfa proved unadapted to this country.

But, plant breeders produced a seedless alfalfa, still like Bermuda grass, which grows well in the nurseries of several States.

"The potential value," said Dr. Cardon, "cannot be overestimated."

D. C. Banks to Get Tax Cut to 4%

Washington banks will receive a tax reduction under a ruling of the United States Court of Appeals announced yesterday.

The Appeals Court ordered local banks taxed by the District at 4 per cent of gross earnings—less interest paid depositors—instead of the present 6 per cent.

Banking officials estimated the decision would mean a savings of about $225,000 a year for national banks and about $50,000 a year for savings banks. Eight banks are involved in the decision.

Hamilton Bank Appeals

The legal snarl resulted from District Code provisions that national banks pay a 6 per cent tax and that incorporated savings banks paying interest to depositors pay only 4 per cent tax on gross earnings after deduction of interest to depositors.

In November, 1944, the Hamilton Bank filed a petition with the Board of Tax Appeals asking reversal of the District assessor's ruling that the bank could not deduct the amount paid in interest on savings accounts. The assessor was upheld by the board and the Hamilton National Bank carried the case to the United States Court of Appeals.

The Appeals Court on that occasion held that as far as savings deposits are concerned, there is no difference between national and State (District) banks. The case was returned to the Board of Tax Appeals for reconsideration.

Subsequently, the assessor decided no bank in the District qualified as "an incorporated savings bank paying interest to its depositors" and placed the savings banks in the 6 per cent tax category.

In the cases of seven savings banks, the Board of Tax Appeals reversed the assessor's ruling. These cases were appealed by the District.

The District lost in all eight cases. The Court of Appeals reversed the Board of Tax Appeal's decision against the Hamilton National Bank and affirmed the board's reversal of the assessor in cases involving the following banks:

Judge Edgerton Dissents

The Bank of Commerce & Savings, the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, the City Bank of Washington, the McLachlen Banking Corp., the Anacostia National Bank of Washington, the Industrial Bank of Washington, Inc., and the Citizens Bank of Washingtoon.

The ruling was by Judges Wilbur K. Miller, Harry E. Watkins and Henry W. Edgerton. Judge Edgerton dissented in the case of the Hamilton National Bank, but the opinion was unanimous in the other cases.

Business Outlook

Boss Now Can Talk to Workers By Wiring Plants for Sound

By J. A. Livingston

THE AMERICAN WIFE, staring into a breakfast newspaper, has a far better chance of getting a message across to her husband than has the head of a large corporation anxious to communicate with his factory workers. At least, she can get his guard down by accidentally spilling some hot coffee on him. Or she can commit the most unwifely act of all—pull down the newspaper and say, "Listen you . . ."

Livingston

The businessman in the fairly large plant is separated from his workers by almost impenetrable barriers. He's in a large office, carefully guarded by his vice presidents, lesser officials and secretaries. They're always clamoring for his time: What shall we do about the Ajax order, shall we give the 10 per cent discount? We've got a loan coming due at the bank—shall we pay it off? I hate to remind you, Mr. Simpson, but you have a two weeks' pile of correspondence. You really ought to get to it, before you make that trip to Detroit.

Add to that the constant jangle of the telephone, luncheons for the Red Cross drive, conferences with local civic leaders, dinners in an official capacity, the dates for buttering up good customers and the big-shot businessman wonders: How can he regain the personal contact of the good old days—when his company was small, when he knew most of the men by their first names, and when he was a plant man himself directly concerned with production problems?

A PHILADELPHIA company, called Muse-Art, figures it has the answer in plant broadcasting. Through plant broadcasting, the executive, right from his own office, can communicate informally with all his workers without even interrupting their work. The idea isn't new. Johnson & Johnson, world's largest manufacturer of surgical dressings, has used plant broadcasting for many years to bridge the distance between management and the workers. Ditto for the John B. Stetson & Co., hat manufacturers.

Johnson & Johnson and Stetson have developed tailormade systems for themselves. Muse-Art Co. is developing a general package, which many companies can use. Muse-Art started out as a vendor of music. It had a license from Muzak Corp. to pipe music into restaurants, hotels, offices and factories. Thomas M. Jones, general manager and a former advertising man, reasoned, "Let's use the wires already installed in the plants to help management communicate with workers."

The Muse-Art service in Philadelphia now consists of 10 minutes of rhythmic music every half hour, a musical jingle twice a day and posters. The jingles resemble singing commercials over the radio, emphasize safety, teamwork, avoiding waste, keeping tools clean and aisles clear, etc. The posters reemphasize the themes in the jingles. (Muse-Art is also preparing dramatic skits on safety, teamwork and similar themes.)

MORE THAN 100 Philadelphia companies take the service, including Collins & Aikman, Peter Paul (manufacturer of Mounds), Pioneer Suspender, Bayuk Cigar, Gotham Hosiery, SKF Industries, Fleer (chewing gum), Stetson. And Muse-Art, working with Muzak, hopes to install plant broadcasting in other cities in the country. Pittsburgh is the next stop.

The system is controlled by the management. The workers can't turn a dial like the radio and stop the sound. Therefore, broadcasts must be spaced and selected so as not to be an annoyance, an intrusion, and a source of inefficiency. The system serves for spot announcements, for calling a company executive or worker from the factory floor to office.

Stetson makes daily newscasts of marriages, deaths, engagements, births, results of bowling competition, sports news affecting company teams, changes in routine, new appointments, etc.—usually the stuff that goes into the plant house organ. Factory scuttlebut is minimized. All workers get the news affecting them simultaneously and without embroidering in the telling. Company and union officials have used the system for joint announcements.

Charles V. Molesworth, Stetson executive vice president, sums up the experience this way: "I don't know whether plant broadcasting has increased production, but I do know we couldn't put it out. The workers like it now and want it."

Steel Mill Rate Drops to 91.8 Pct.

New York, May 31 (AP).—The steady decline in steel mill operations and production will continue this week and at an accelerated pace, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today.

Mills this week will operate at 91.8 per cent of capacity, down 2.3 points from last week's rate of 94.1 and tonnage at 1,692,300 will compare with 1,734,700 last week. In recent weeks the decline has been smaller than is indicated this week.

It was the seventh straight week of declining operations in steel mills and placed tonnage at the lowest point for any regular work week since the week of July 26, 1948, when operations attained normal momentum after the captive coal mine strike in that year.

At that time the week's output was 1,678,100 tons.

While memorial day was widely observed in other lines of business and industry, the steel mills did not curtail operations for the occasion, the institute said.

New York Cotton

New York, May 31 (AP).—Cotton futures experienced a sharp setback today under pressure of liquidation, influenced by weakness in other markets and uncertainty over the outlook for the cotton industry. Final prices were at the lows for session and $1.05 to $1.65 a bale under last Friday's close.

Factors within the cotton situation to support the market were lacking. Cotton textile sales remained small and there was no evidence of aggressive trade covering against export business. New crop months sagged partly on large crop ideas and sentiment that the cotton parity may show a substantial drop in the next two months. The loan on the 1949 cotton crop will be based on the mid-July parity.

Maryland Tobacco

Baltimore, May 31 (AP).—Average prices for a fairly large variety of grades of tobacco auctioned at Southern Maryland markets showed an irregular trend today.

Both losses and gains were reported on all groups marketed, the United States Department of Agriculture and the Maryland Department of Markets said.

Few grades remained firm at quotations of the previous day. Volume of sales was comparatively light. Some warehouses completed business by noon.

Delivery to the Maryland tobacco cooperative was at 5 per cent of the baskets auctioned. The highest daily average of the season was reported on Monday, 558,452 pounds, at $35.04 per hundred pounds.

Season's net sales through May 30 reached 12,349,311 pounds, at $52.44.

Averages auction bid prices per hundred pounds on a limited number of representative United States grades were as follows:

HEAVY CROP—Good cherry-red, 65; fair cherry-red, 57; fair red, 38; low cherry red, 44.

TIPS—Fair cherry-red, 46; fair red, 31; low red, 19.50.

THIN CROP—Fine cherry-red, 68; good cherry-red, 68; fair cherry-red, 67; fair red, 62.

SECONDS—Good cherry-red, 60; fair cherry-red, 53; fair red, 43.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 31 (AP).—Wheat and rye suffered sharp setbacks in today's Board of Trade session. Other futures were under the influence of wheat, which declined as much as 5¾ cents at times, but showed considerable resistance.

Wheat was uncertain at the start, on reports of estimated bumper yields in the Southwest, and fine spring wheat prospects. Then came reports that the Kansas City cash grain market was off around 10 cents from Saturday's closing figures, and the selling wave hit.

At the finish wheat was 2⅜ to 3 cents lower; corn was 1 to 2 cents lower; oats were 1⅛ to 1½ lower; rye was 3½ to 4 cents lower; soybeans were ¼ higher to ½ lower, and lard was unchanged to 10 cents lower.

After wheat sold off around 5 cents some short covering developed which halted the decline, and there was some recovery made. Traders found that the Commodity Credit Corp. was entertaining bids but making no offers and that only a small amount of rye had been purchased since last Friday.

D. C. Clearings Set New Peak In Five Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Shining out of yesterday's cloudy financial skies was a report of record bank clearings in Washington.

Check turnover set a new all-time May record of $321,045,759, according to the Washington Clearing House Association. That's an increase of 13 per cent over the same 1948 month.

And that's not all. For the first five months this year, local clearings amounted to a record $1,536,748,738 for a gain of 4.7 per cent over the same period of 1948.

Turnover of checks is normally considered one of the best business barometers. Despite reports of slackening in the trade pace elsewhere, local trade barometers are holding up remarkably well.

Utility earnings for the first four months this year generally were well ahead of last year. Department store sales here for the first four months were 4 per cent improved, in contrast with a dip elsewhere in the Nation. The 11 biggest private employers in Washington are more than holding their own in job totals this year. Insurance sales and postal revenues again are trending upward, according to latest reports.

Bank clearings, which are a reflection of virtually all barometers, compared as follows:

January	$296,546,165	$300,050,588
February	283,991,625	251,136,377
March	334,414,022	306,815,679
April	300,751,165	322,440,133
May	321,045,759	282,060,251

BRANCH PREVIEW: The new Woodley Park branch of the American Security & Trust Co. will be open Saturday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. for a special public preview. An authentic Conestoga covered wagon will be parked near the branch at Calvert st. and Connecticut ave. The veteran of the Western plains will be manned by Treasury Department aides who will sell savings bonds in connection with the current Opportunity Drive. The Woodley Park office will open Monday for business.

NEW OFFICIAL: Douglas R. Smith, recently elected as assistant to President Bruce Baird of the National Savings & Trust Co., will assume his duties today. Smith entered the employ of the N. S. & T. in 1931 and was elevated to assistant secretary in 1944. For the past year, he has been associated with the Union Trust & Deposit Co. of Parkersburg, W. Va., as assistant vice president. Born in Canada in 1915, Smith attended Alexandria High School, Southeastern University and the American Institute of Banking. During the war he served with the Army overseas. With his wife and three daughters, he will live at Ridgelea, Warrenton, Va.

D. R. Smith

STEEL USE: Although the District of Columbia is not an industrial center, it used more finished steel in 1948 than in each of eight States. A survey in the current issue of Iron Age shows that Washington used 23,174 tons last year, more than in Arkansas, Idaho, Montana, New Hampshire, New Mexico, South Carolina, North Dakota, or Wyoming. Of the nine principal types of finished steel products, Washington used 6230 tons of structural shapes and 5839 tons of hot rolled bars.

EARNINGS: Pennsylvania Railroad Co. reported net income of $2,119,677 for the first four months this year, compared with a deficit of $8,905,862 in the same 1948 period. Others earnings statements:

Snead Rallies, Beats Palmer for PGA Crown, 3-2

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE BROOKLYN DODGERS are in a three-way tie for the lead in the National League and they're up there because Jackie Robinson has been hitting late-inning home runs and otherwise getting the big hit that wins ball games. Robinson's praise has been written frequently, if not sung, but it remained for an American League baseball man to voice perhaps the finest tribute.

"Robinson," he said, "is the Tommy Henrich of the National League."

POVICH

Dan Topping, co-owner of the New York Yankees, is bringing his golf clubs to Washington where he'll tee off on Saturday and Sunday in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament at the Army and Navy Club. Topping is no green pea as a golfer, incidentally.

He has played in the British amateur, and lasted until the late rounds. When finally he was beaten, a British golf writer took a somewhat strange view of Topping. "He has a great game off the tees, and little else," he wrote. Among Topping's "little else" are approximately 11 million dollars.

Sammy Snead never better demonstrated his attraction for golf galleries than in the PGA finals at Richmond yesterday, when he blew an 18-inch putt on one hole. Snead, more than any other golfer in history, is a man of the people. He hits the kind of shots every man in the gallery would like to hit, and misses the easy putts, just like himself.

FRANK LANE, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, this season has been crowding Bill Veeck for the headlines among big league operatives with his gag stunts. A couple of weeks ago after Veeck's Indians had been shut out in two games at Comiskey Park, Lane dug up home plate and mailed it to Veeck "so you can see what it looks like."

And the other day when Veeck announced that he was ignoring the Indians' first 29 games of the season and wos planning a new "opening-day," with ceremonies and everything, on the club's return to Cleveland, Lane again reacted smartly. "Great idea," he wired Veeck. "Your club sure has been looking bad in those 29 exhibition games."

A treat in itself at the National Celebrities Tournament, will be the golf form of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the only man extant with a "foot-in-the-bucket" golf stance. He's a long-distance hitter off the tee, but like the power hitters in his own business of baseball, he gets good distance only when he connects.

LEFTY GOMEZ, who once won a bet from the late Babe Ruth who wagered Gomez wouldn't make a hit all season, will tee off in the National Celebrities Tournament in the company of Dizzy Dean and Lefty Grove.

Gomez has been practicing daily for his tournament appearance, and if his golf game hasn't sharpened his sense of humor has. A southpaw golfer, Gomez whiffed recently on his first two attempts to get off the first tee, and then hooked his third shot. "Just like baseball," he said, "take two and hit to right."

DIZZY DEAN, an avowed golf fan, who still bemoans the fact that he didn't take up the game seriously in his youth and embark on a career as a pro, says the latter is a soft life. "What a breeze you guys have," he told Claude Harmon at last year's PGA tournament.

Harmon wouldn't agree. "You're lucky you were a pitcher, not a golf pro," he told Dean. "When we make a mistake or hit a bad shot, we're on our own. You had eight other guys to help you out of trouble."

THE ONE, ONLY and original Tallulah Bankhead who sued a shampoo manufacturer for naming his product "Tallulah," thus far has registered no objection, legal or otherwise, to another bit of commercial labeling.

A Morristown, Pa., trotting horse owner has named his 4-year-old filly "Tallulah Hanover" and is now racing her with modest profits at the nearby Rosecroft Raceway. But La Bankhead is quite unconcerned, probably on the theory that there is no great turnover in Tallulah Hanover.

BOTH THE New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox must be in a mood to congratulate themselves on one of the greatest deals that was never made.

Last week the Yankees offered Johnny Lindell and cash for Gus Zernial, the prize rookie outfielder for the Red Sox. Over the weekend. Zernial nose-dived after a fly ball and broke his collar bone. The same day, Lindell slid into second base for the Yankees and tore a knee cartilage. The two clubs wound up only with doctor bills.

Jack Pope's No-Hitter Gives Tech 5-0 Victory

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Long, lean Jack Pope of McKinley Tech yesterday pitched the first no-hit, no-run game in Interhigh playoff history as the Trainers whipped Woodrow Wilson, 5-0, in the semifinals at Griffith Stadium.

Pope had a worthy mound foe in Donald McDonald, who allowed only five hits and would have escaped without a run being scored but for five Wilson errors. Those miscues spirited Tech into the finals against Eastern Thursday in the first Interhigh game to be scheduled under the lights at the Nats' ball park.

Yesterday's win was Pope's sixth in seven games and represented only a slight improvement over his previous effort against Wilson three weeks ago, when he authored a one-hitter. The 17-year-old senior also pitched a one-hit victory over Western a month ago.

Chet Cooper, who spoiled Pope's no-hit try the last time, didn't get a chance yesterday. The 6 foot 1-inch righthander walked Cooper twice and hit him with a pitched ball the third time they faced each other. Pope walked six Tigers altogether.

He had the Wilson batters stepping in the bucket with a sidearm curve and was in trouble only in the fifth, when he filled the bases on walks with two outs. However, he disposed of Don Hall on a fly ball to escape unscathed.

In the last two innings, Pope also had a good fast ball working. With it, he struck out five of the last six Wilson batters. That ran his strikeout total to 11.

Tech scored its first run in the second inning on Johnny Passas' walk, his steal of second and Second Baseman Dick Harris' error. Skip Speaker scored in the fourth on a single, wild pitch and Shortstop Sherfy Jones' boot.

Pope and Bill Werber, who walked in the fifth, scored on errors by Third Baseman Leo Speros and Jones. Jeff Jackson's single, a fielder's choice and Speros' error gave Tech its last run in the seventh.

Parkers Win, 4-3

Maryland Park yesterday nosed out Hyattsville, 4-3, putting Maryland Park in a first-place tie with Mount Rainier in the Prince Georges County Class A League. Mount Rainier also won, 4-3, over Greenbelt yesterday, forcing a playoff between the two first-place teams for the championship.

Maryland Park's winning run was set up when Paul Heffner hit a long triple in the ninth inning with two men out. Joe Suit came up with an infield single, bringing in Heffner for the score.

Merger Ends Sugar Ray Suit

New York, May 31 (AP).—Madison Square Garden's absorption of both the Twentieth Century Sporting Club and the Tournament of Champions brought an end today to a suit over Welterweight Boxing Champion Ray Robinson.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, erstwhile head of the now defunct Twentieth Century Organization, had sued to restrain Robinson from fighting for the Tournament of Champions, formerly a rival promotion agency.

But when the suit was called for trial today before Supreme Court Justice Edward R. Koch, it was discontinued by agreement.

Braves Beat Phillies In Hitless 9th, 7-6

Philadelphia, May 31 (AP).—The Boston Braves scored the winning run in the ninth inning without a hit after overcoming a five-run deficit to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-6, today.

The victory enabled the Braves to share a two-way tie for first place in the National League.

The run that broke a 6-6 tie came when Schoolboy Rowe hit Eddie Stanky with a pitched ball to start the ninth. The Boston second baseman moved up on a sacrifice and then came a walk to Marv Rickert.

Jim Konstanty relieved Rowe and, after getting Bob Elliott, handed out passes to Jim Russell and Clint Conatser to force in the winning tally.

Bud Wilkinson Named to Coach College Stars

Chicago, May 31 (AP).—Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, mentor of Oklahoma's 1949 Sugar Bowl championship eleven, today was named head coach of the College of All-Stars for their game against the Philadelphia Eagles here the night of August 12.

The 33-year-old Wilkinson, former Minnesota guard and quarterback, thus becomes the first former All-Star player to return to the Soldier Field grid classic as a head coach.

Wilkinson called signals for the 1937 collegiate unit which defeated the Green Bay Packers, 6-0, for the first All-Star victory in the series against the National Football League champions.

Wilkinson successfully combined the best features of the single wingback and T-formation for a two-season Oklahoma record of 17 wins, 3 losses and a tie.

Furillo Homers . . .

Bums Edge Giants in 14th, 6 to 4

New York, May 31 (AP).—Carl Furillo's home run touched off a two-run fourteenth inning explosion tonight to give Brooklyn a 6-4 victory over the New York Giants in a battle for first place. As a result of the win, the Dodgers are tied with the Boston Braves for the National League lead.

After Furillo's lead-off homer in the fourteenth, Roy Campanella tripled. That finished Larry Jansen who had pitched all the way for the Giants. Jack Banta, Brooklyn relief pitcher who came into the game in the ninth, came through with his first hit of the season to score Campanella with the second run of the inning.

Jack Lohrke opened a fine batting night with a first-inning homer off starter Morris Martin. The game see-sawed back and forth until Gil Hodges' ninth-inning homer tied the score at 4-4. Then they settled down for an overtime battle.

Braves Beat Phillies In Hitless 9th, 7-6

Philadelphia, May 31 (AP).—The Boston Braves scored the winning run in the ninth inning without a hit after overcoming a five-run deficit to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-6, today.

The victory enabled the Braves to share a two-way tie for first place in the National League.

The run that broke a 6-6 tie came when Schoolboy Rowe hit Eddie Stanky with a pitched ball to start the ninth. The Boston second baseman moved up on a sacrifice and then came a walk to Marv Rickert.

Jim Konstanty relieved Rowe and, after getting Bob Elliott, handed out passes to Jim Russell and Clint Conatser to force in the winning tally.

Snead Concedes Celebrities Field a Lot—Except in Golf

RICHMOND, VA., May 31.—From White Sulphur to Washington—that's the itinerary of Sam Snead, the new PGA champion.

He'll rest up tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday and drive up to Washington Friday to practice for the Celebrities Tournament over the weekend.

"That's a pretty stiff field they got up there," grinned Snead shortly after he had defeated Johnny Palmer today. "Bing Crosby can whip me singing, Bob Hope can tell more jokes than I can, but I'll be doggone if I let them beat me at golf," he told newspapermen in the press tent.

Naturally, the new champ was thrilled over his 3 and 2 victory. "It was the greatest PGA since 1942," he beamed.

The record books show one Samuel Jackson Snead winning the PGA title that year. Sam has a .500 batting average in PGA competition.

He's been in the finals four times and has won twice.

He'll leave Washington after the Celebrities Tournament and go to Chicago, where he hopes to annex the open and bag golfdom's triple crown—the Masters, PGA and Open. SIEGEL.

121 Golfers Qualify

Middlecoff Blazes to 131 For Berth in National Open

By the United Press

Hot-shooting Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, a consistent winner on the tournament circuit, blazed a nine under par 67-64—131 over his home course at Memphis Tuesday as approximately 1250 golfers in 28 cities attempted to qualify for the U. S. Open championship at Chicago June 9-11.

His 64 tied the course record.

A total of 121 of the 162 berths in the open field were at stake

There were only two places open at Memphis and Middlecoff, the young dentist who turned to pro golf three years ago, made sure one of them would be his. He clipped three strokes off par on his first round and six more in the second. Jake Fondren of Memphis grabbed the other qualifying spot with 69, 70—139.

Big Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., a last-minute entry at Durham, led the early finishers with a 70, 67—137 over the Hope Valley Country Club course. Heafner was one of 11 pros on the regular golf circuit who originally entered the Dallas section for the sake of convenience, but requested transfers elsewhere when floods washed out a tournament stop at Forth Worth and canceled their junket to Texas.

Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., one of the 11 transfers, failed to win one of the four places at Durham but was listed as an alternate.

Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., another transfer, whipped around Philadelphia's Springhaven Club course in 72, 68—140 to lead Philadelphia's four qualifiers, including young Jimmy McHale, who shot a record 66 in the 1947 Open, and Joe Kirkwood, sr., trick shot artist. Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle was a major casualty.

Joe D. Brown, Des Moines, Iowa, pro, led 24 Iowa-Nebraska entries at Des Moines with a 70-70—140, and Amateur Max Hall of Boone, Iowa, won the other qualifying spot in a three-way playoff at 148.

Wee Bobby Cruickshank of Pittsburgh led 67 entries and six qualifiers in his section with 69-72—141.

Melvin (Chick) Harbert of Northville, Mich., put together a pair of 68's for a 136 to lead the 11 qualifiers in the Detroit section which had an odd casualty in Ray McGuire, veteran pro, who fired two holes in one on the same round—and missed qualifying by two strokes.

The Birmingham, Mich., pro popped in his first ace on the 205 yard fifth hole and his second on the 155 yard fourteenth. But he wound up with 147 and he needed 145 or better to get in.

Chuck Koesis, Al Watrous, Sam Byrd, Ed Furgol and Horton Smith were among other Detroit qualifiers.

Tribe Rooter Roosts Atop Flagpole Until Team's 1st, He Says

Cleveland, May 31 (AP).—A druggist climbed a flag pole atop his store today and vowed he wouldn't come down until the Indians are in first place.

Charles M. Lupica, 35, one of two partners in a drug store on Wade Park ave., recently became involved in a cafe argument over the Cleveland ball club's prospects for the season. Lupica contended the Tribe soon would be at the top. He agreed to stay on the pole until they were.

After winning two games from Chicago yesterday, the Indians still were in seventh place by one percentage point.

Locke Shoots 68 In Wichita Match

Wichita, Kans., May 31 (AP).—Bobby Locke, South Africa's touring pro, fired a sub-par 68 today in an exhibition match over the Wichita Country Club course.

He paired with an amateur, Ned Embry—member of the host club—for a 3 and 2 victory over two Wichita pros, Tex Consolver and Mike Murra.

Nats Open Tour Tonight In St. Louis

Special to The Washington Post.

En Route to St. Louis, May 31.—More highly respected than when they last headed west, the Nats open a series tomorrow night with the Browns, a club they've always been able to lick this season.

At least they've beaten the Browns in all five games the teams have played, and for the opener they have, fresh and ready, Pitcher Joe Haynes.

Haynes was beaten in his last start, but he was a good-looking loser, holding the White Sox to five hits before retiring in the ninth inning of a 3-1 defeat.

Good Old Days!

It was in the West last month that the Nats found the climate so salubrious and swept to nine straight wins, before losing their farewell game. They went into the hinterlands with a record of 3 mere wins against 11 losses, but rehabilitated themselves nicely.

While Manager Joe Kuhel is struggling to put an able-bodied club on the field and get his pitching squared away again, Owner Clark Griffith, in Washington, is angling for more talent.

Kuhel was in conference with Griffith before the club entrained today, and was assured that the Nats' owner is attempting to acquire (1) a right-handed hitting outfielder and (2) a seasoned relief pitcher.

Coan Still Woozy

Gil Coan's return to the Nats' line-up may be delayed for another day. The young outfielder, who whacked his skull against a concrete wall in Boston, is still a bit woozy, and Kuhel is not rushing him back into action.

The Nats' home run production slumped sharply in their own park during the invasion by the Western club, but it is expected to pick up again in St. Louis, Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit, where the fences are more inviting to the power hitters.

Kuhel's recent strategy of moving Eddie Yost back to the lead-off spot in the batting order that he held last year may be somewhat permanent, he has indicated. Yost has been hitting better in that role, and Kuhel is grateful.

Blue Steel Wins 2 at Rosecroft

$4.60, $3 and $2.40. Next time around, in the seventh race the mutuels were $3.60, $3.40 and $4.20.

In the second division of the pacing stake Royal Sue and Royal Scott, jr., each won a dash. The former took the first with the latter in a dead-heat for place. Tom Wingate's Royal Scott, jr., moved up a notch and Royal Sue faded to seventh when the same field tried it again.

The post-holiday crowd of 4536 was the smallest of the meeting at the new Oxon Hill plant. So was the mutuel handle, $148,585.

But the daily double payoff, $121.80, was the largest. Fran Hanover and Dickie June formed the lucky combination.

Mrs. Pat Todd Wins

Manchester, England, May 31 (AP).—Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., moved into the third round of the Northern Lawn Tennis Tournament today by ousting Miss H. M. Fletcher of England, 6—1, 6—3.

Masters' Champ Gets 1st Lead on 22d Hole

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., May 31.—Over the course he described as a "pitch and putt" links, Samuel Jackson Snead pitched and putted his way to the PGA championship today.

Ramming in four birdie putts on this afternoon's round, the Virginia-born Slamming Sammy brushed off the challenge of gritty Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N. C., 3 and 2, at Hermitage Country Club.

Snead thus became the first golfer in history to win the Masters and PGA the same year. The 37-year-old Hot Springs hot-shot annexed the Masters Tournament in April and now has two legs on golf's triple crown. Only the United States Open, to be played in Chicago next week, stands between Snead and the greatest golfing coup since Bobby Jones' grand slam.

Rally Does It

Snead beat the 30-year-old Palmer at the latter's own game—accuracy and the middle distance putt. Just as he had to do in the quarterfinals against Dave Douglas and in the semifinals against Jim Ferrier, Snead had to rally again to win today.

Palmer, playing in his second PGA tournament, had Snead down at the end of 16 holes this morning, but Snead squared the match on the eighteenth, took a one-up lead on the twenty-second and kept the advantage the rest of the way, closing out Palmer on the thirty-fourth hole, which was halved in par fours.

Snead's second PGA championship—he won in Atlantic City in 1942—brought him $3500 and made him the year's leading money winner. He's earned $12,610.83, supplanting Lloyd Mangrum in the take-home-pay department. Mangrum, beaten by Palmer in the semifinals here yesterday, has earned $11,457 this year, $1000 more than Palmer, the third place man in the financial league, has pocketed.

Johnny Trails

When Snead canned a tricky 6-foot putt on the 17-yard twenty-second hole this afternoon to move into a command he never relinquished, it was the first time Palmer had trailed in six matches, but this time the muffin-faced sharpshooter from Tarheelia couldn't do anything about it.

Palmer's only victory in the afternoon came on the twenty-seventh hole, a long, 530-yard test which Snead plays with a driver and two-iron. today, however, Sam used a wood for his second shot and hit a "Texas leaguer with a loop on it" and the ball caught a trap to the left of the green. Palmer dropped in a putt of about 7 feet for a birdie four, but that only served to reduce Snead's lead to two holes.

Snead went three up on the thirty-first hole, a 171-yard test, by holing out from nine feet for a birdie deuce. The next two holes were halved in par fours and when Palmer, putting boldly now because of necessity ,missed by inches a 20-foot putt on the thirty-fourth,

11-Year-Old Scores by 1½ Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 31.—Mrs. J. D. Scoleman's Boston Man registered his third victory in four starts here by taking the Harpers Ferry Purse, featuring the Tuesday program.

The grand old 11-year-old horse displayed his stretch punch and won going away by a length and a half over W. I. Jones' Grand Actress. Four lengths back of the place came Teaville Farms Kitty Kilts to be third in a field of eight.

Jockey Harold Young ma piloted Boston Man over the 6½ furlongs in 1:21 4/5. The track was fast and the skies clear and an estimated crowd of 2500 backers of Boston Man, collected a rather uninque across the board pay off of $2.80, $3.20 and $2.20.

Grand Actress, fresh from a victory at Garden State Park, went to the front at the break and opened a gap. Kitty Kilts, Abiel and Fast Slave were closest while Youngsma was allowing Boston Man to run on his own courage. Fast Slave weakened along the back stretch and the front order remained Grand Actress, Kitty Kilts and Abiel. being eased out Boston Man was for clear racing room at this stage.

Leaving the far turn, Grand Actress drew out and Boston Man backers were beginning to have some apprehension. However, the old guy began to move and the handwriting was on the wall. He slipped past Kitty Kilts and went on to collar Grand Actress. He was opening a daylight gap at the end.

Double Pays $11.60

The daily double paid a mere $11.60 after a pair of heavily backed favorites were successful in the first and second races. Dr. H. B. Langdon's Trigger Moose fired the first shot and scampered home at $4.60 under Apprentice John Regalbuto's handling. M. I. Brooks' Sunny South, paying $4.20 led all the way in the second event.

Jockey Freddie Kratz, who celebrated his twenty-eighth birthday last week, came through with another of his thrilling rides, winning the third event with J. A. Rowe's Country Miss. He brought the 10-year-old daughter of Mate from last position to tak ethe event to the tune of a $12.40 mutuel. J. Schwebel's Dark Mischief was second with C. P. Chenoweth's Auspicious third in the field of eight. The winner was clocked in 1:24 3/5 for the 6½ furlongs.

Note to Redskins: Van Buren Finally Has Been Caught

Philadelphia, May 31 (AP).—Steve Van Buren has been mousetrapped for one of the few times in his football career—and it wasn't on the gridiron.

The Philadelphia Eagles' star halfback appeared at a luncheon today with his left hand in a cast. He explained he cut a tendon while attempting to move a mouse trap beneath a radiator at his home.

Snead Beats Palmer, 3-2, For 2d Title

the thirty-first PGA championship was history.

This morning, Palmer was in the driver's seat for the first 16 holes. Johnny went out in 33 against Snead's 35 and turned two up. Spraying his tee shots and wild with his approaches, Palmer lost the next two holes and the match was squared.

Palmer, however, knocked in a 12-foot job on the fourteenth to go to the front again, and went two up on the long, uphill sixteenth when Snead's second shot caught the limbs of a tree while Palmer was safely on in two and down in two putts for his par.

It was Palmer's turn to get wild now and he did, on the next two holes. He scuffed his drive and flubbed his second on the seventeenth while Snead hit a magnificent iron shot to be on the green, 454 yards from the tee, in two Sam dropped in his 4-foot putt.

On the homecoming hole, a 175-yarder guarded by trees on the left and little else, Palmer was short and trapped. Snead was on, 20 feet from the cup. Sam holed out in two for his par while Palmer's out was par and two-putted to square the match, that was as close as he came from then on in, Snead was six under par for the day, Palmer three.

Snead's Title March, Match by Match

Richmond, Va., May 31 (AP).—Here's how Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., won the championship of the thirty-first annual Professional Golfers Association tournament:

Qualified with score of 137 on rounds of 69 and 68.

First round: Defeated Jack Burke, jr., White Plains, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Second round: Defeated Henry Ramson, St. Andrews, Ill., 3 and 1.

Third round: Defeated Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., 1 up.

Quarterfinal round: Defeated Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., 4 and 3.

Semifinal round: Defeated Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, 3 and 2.

Final round: Defeated Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., 3 and 2.

51 Golfers Seek Open Berths Here Today

Jim Ferrier, Hill in Test Of 36 Holes

Forty pro golfers, including several of the Nation's best, and 11 amateurs will compete for 1949 National Open qualifying berths in the Middle Atlantic section qualifying round at Chevy Chase Country Club today.

The test wil be 36 holes of medal play over the 6635-yard, par 69 course. Only the 9 lowest scorers will advance to the National Open meet at Chicago's Medinah Country Club next week.

Topping the list of entries is Ray Wade Hill, pro from Shreveport, La. Hill, virtually unknown in big time golf, won the PGA tourney medal in Richmond last week with a six-under-par 136 for 36 holes. Hill left his Shreveport position a month ago.

Other pros who will be competing include: 1947 PGA Champ Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, Jimmy Thomson of New York City, Eric Monti of Los Angeles, George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.

Among the lesser known pros who are expected to give the name stars a stiff fight for the qualifying spots are Walter Romans of Baltimore, Md.; Buck White of Greenwood, Miss.; Jack Isaacs of Langley Field, Va., and Al Houghton of Washington's Prince Georges Club.

Topping the list of 11 amateurs who might give the big-timers plenty of trouble over the rugged Chevy Chase layout are Walter Hagen, jr., of Richmond's Hermitage Club; Desmond Sullivan of Essex Falls, N. J., and Howard Savage, jr., of Clarksville, Tenn.

The big pros were transferred to this section when the Colonial Invitational meet in Fort Worth was canceled. Previously they had been assigned to qualify at Dallas.

Riggs, Segura Advance In Pro Tennis Tourney

London, May 31 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of Chicago eliminated Esteban Gimeno of Spain, 6—2, 6—4, in the first round of the world professional lawn tennis championships at Wembley Arena today.

Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador also advanced to the second round with a 6—0, 6—3 victory over Derek Bocquet of Britain.

Meyer Fines Him $300

Pirates' Pitcher Bob Chesnes Finds 'Temper, Temper' Costly

Pittsburgh, May 31 (AP).—It cost Pitcher Bob Chesnes $300 today to learn that Manager Billy Meyer is boss.

The colorful, sophomore Pittsburgh Pirate hurler was fined that amount for "insubordination and display of temper."

Chesnes' peevishness—with gestures—was displayed yesterday before 38,089 Memorial Day fans at Forbes Field. He entered the ninth inning of the doubleheader nightcap owning a comfortable 8-4 lead over the Chicago Cubs.

Then the Cubs got hot. Two Cub runs clattered across the plate with two out. Meyer stepped from the Pirate dugout to wave in Reliefer Bob Muncrief. Now Chesnes got hot.

The young righthander tossed the ball with an angry gesture over his shoulder. He stalked past Meyer.

Saved the Game

Muncrief saved the game 8-6 for Chesnes. But nothing could save that fine. The usually mild-mannered Meyer still was burning today. Said he:

"I demand respect and obedience on my ball club. No player can get away with that stuff." He said he hoped the disciplinary action would sweeten Chesnes' disposition.

Chesnes was not present at the Pirate business offices when the fine was announced. And he wasn't talking when he was reached by telephone at his home before the team left for Boston.

Meyer said this was the first fine he has levied since he became a major league manager last year. His technique in lifting the Pirates from last place in 1947 to fourth in 1948 won his "manager of the year" honors.

Fans Like Chesnes

It also won pennant consideration this year for the Pirates from many baseball soothsayers. Chesnes, a real star last year with 14 wins and six losses, was expected to be a key man in the Bucs' 1949 hopes.

But the Pirates currently are in last place—and Chesnes has been bitterly disappointed at his inability to "get going." He won three and lost one but has appeared in only six games as a pitcher. He's been underweight and plagued with blisters and a rash on his pitching hand.

The Bucs bought Chesnes from the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League. He exudes color. His cock mannerisms on the field made him the darling of Pirate fans last year.

Chandler Calls Routine Meeting

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 31 (U.P.).—Major league baseball's four-member executive council met at the offices of Commissioner A. B. Chandler today, but the commissioner declared the meeting was just "a routine quarterly get-together."

Meeting with Chandler were Ford Frick, National League president; William Harridge, American League president; William O. DeWitt, St. Louis Browns president, and Frank McKinney, Pittsburgh Pirates president.

4 Traffic Awards Given to District

Four top-flight national safety awards were presented to the City of Washington yesterday during a ceremony in the District Building.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, presented a bronze plaque to John Russell Young, president of the Board of District Commissioners, signalizing the city's winning of the grand award in the council's annual National Traffic Safety Contest.

City officials also received two other awards from the Safety Council for the city's 1948 safety record. One was the first-place award in a contest among cities of a half million population and the other a special award for outstanding reductions in the motor vehicle death record.

Dearborn said the city record was a "grand achievement" and noted that this was the second time he had presented a top award to Young for Washington traffic safety.

Police Chief John D. Holstrom of Berkeley, Calif., a member of the executive committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, presented the association's first achievement award for outstanding traffic law enforcement to Major Robert J. Barrett, Washington's police superintendent.

Holstrom praised Washington for its "remarkable compliance by citizens and visitors to traffic rules and regulations." He said this indicated a sound enforcement program by Major Barrett and his department.

Young declared the awards were the result of "real work—hard work" by members of city departments, the courts, the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, the Junior Board of Commerce and the Washington Trucking Association.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, who presided at the meeting, cited last year's 67 traffic fatalities here. Even though this number was about one-third of the national fatality rate, "that is just 67 too many," he said, urging continued efforts to improve safety records.

2 Years for Auto Theft

Ray R. Hiner, 18, of 108 5th ave., Takoma Park, Md. yesterday was sentenced in Montgomery County Circuit Court to two years in the Maryland House of Correction for larceny of an automobile. Police testified the youth broke into a Silver Spring garage last November 13 and stole a 1949 Ford.

Race Action Held Up to D. C. Board

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) yesterday told the District Commissioners they "cannot evade the responsibility" for the votes of five members of the Recreation Board on racial segregation in District playgrounds.

In a letter to the Board of Commissioners, which he sent also to President Truman, Klein wrote, "There is no real difference between the power which your board has to instruct Mr. (Walter) Fowler (budget officer) and the power which your board has to make its wishes known to the four members appointed by your board. . . . The votes of the four appointed members are as representative of your desires as is Mr. Fowler's vote."

"This is because each of these four members is as much subject to the ultimate power of your board as is Mr. Fowler, by virtue of your board's power to remove any or all of them at any time and without assigning any reason for the removal," Klein wrote.

Klein said he was "not now advocating or even suggesting" that the Commissioners remove any member of the Recreation Board.

The four public members of the Recreation Board are Harry S. Wender, chairman, James E. Schwab, Mrs. Andrew Saul and Mrs. Alice C. Hunter.

Klein also wrote Wender that "there can be no half measures—compulsory racial segregation must be eliminated in the board's administration of all public activities, programs and facilities . . .

Klein also called on C. Melvin Sharpe, acting Board of Education president, to instruct its representative on the Recreation Board to vote for abolition of racial segregation.

Confession Read At Murder Trial Of Ex-Postman

The confession of Earl E. Hatcher, 21, former mail carrier of 2105 Maryland ave. ne., was read to a District Court jury yesterday as Hatcher's trial on second-degree murder charges arising from the shooting of a fellow trolley car passenger, November 17, 1946, opened before Federal Judge Edward M. Curran.

The confession, as read by Assistant United States Attorney Grace Stiles, told how Hatcher shot George Janey, 34, of 1230 Wylie st. ne., after, it was alleged, the latter bumped Hatcher and then followed him to the rear of the car with "both hands in his pockets."

New Guerilla Attack Near Konitsa Reported

Athens, May 31 (U.P.).—Athens newspapers reported today that guerillas have opened a large-scale attack north of Konitsa and that airplanes have gone to the aid of government troops.

The attack reportedly began last night in the Grammos Mountains, where the rebels scored successes early in April only to be pushed back later into small pockets along the Albanian frontier.

State Officials Meet With Rayburn in Effort to Reach Compromise in Tidelands Dispute

By The Associated Press

A move to end the long-standing tidelands dispute between the States and Federal Government got under way yesterday at a special meeting called by Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) in the Capitol.

The attorneys general of California, Louisiana and Texas and other officials attended the closed session. Rayburn said no agreement was reached.

Only those individuals backing State ownership to the valuable oil-bearing tidelands attended the opening meeting.

They will gather again today, however, and be joined by Attorney General Tom Clark, Secretary of the Interior Krug and Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

The two Cabinet members support the Government's claim to ownership of the tidelands, and O'Mahoney heads the Senate committee which handles legislation dealing with the subject.

"There was no agreement of any kind reached today," Rayburn said after the meeting.

"I wouldn't be able to guess whether we will come up with an agreement later, but I am hopeful. I hope we can get something passed this session and get rid of this thing. I'm getting tired."

Attorneys General Fred Howser of California, Bolivar Kemp of Louisiana and Price Daniel of Texas were supported by Hall Hammond, the attorney general of Maryland, and Walter Johnson, former attorney general of Nebraska.

Others taking part in the conference included Bascom Giles, land commissioner of Texas; Robert Lee Bobbitt of San Antonio and Laredo, representing the Texas State bar's tidelands committee; Everett Mattoon, deputy attorney general of California and Leander Perez of Plaque Parish, a Louisiana political leader.

The group did not discuss the idea of a compact among oil-producing States as suggested by some people, Rayburn said. Under that proposal the States would recognize the Federal Government's paramount rights over tidelands, but the States would control the property except in times of emergency and would receive all moneys brought in from oil production.

Bill for Prevention Of Payless Paydays Reported to Senate

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday reported out the second deficiency bill which will prevent payless paydays for additional Federal workers if it's promptly approved. Funds provided in the bill were made retroactive to March 1.

OHE: The Office of the Housing Expediter would get $2,500,000 for May and June in the bill. It requested three million dollars. The amount allowed, if approved, will slow down hiring.

POSTOFFICE was given $205,700,000, a 25-million-dollar cut. Most of the money will be used to pay the salaries of clerks, carriers, and other postal employes. The department is running short of funds to meet its big payroll.

LABOR: Its Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights was given $50,000. This is $2600 less than it asked for. Bureau employes will miss their second payday this week.

NATIONAL MEDIATION BOARD is another "broke" agency. It was given $74,500, the full amount it requested. The Housing and Home Finance Agency was denied the $75,000 it requested to pay salaries.

These were among other salary items approved:

Office of Education, $110,000, a reduction of $6625; Public Health Service, $570,300, a cut of $87,700; National Gallery of Art, $107,500, the full amount requested; Coast and Geodetic Survey, $257,000, a reduction of $68,000; Weather Bureau, $1,450,000, a slash of $108,000; salaries and expenses of United States marshals, $150,000, the full amount requested; Internal Revenue Bureau, $17,275,000, a reduction of $725,000, and Treasury's Bureau of Disbursement, $1,500,000, a cut of $64,700.

VET PROMOTIONS: The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday okayed the O'Conor bill to give veterans who are postal employes credit toward automatic promotions for time served in the military services. The bill is opposed by both the Postoffice Department and the Civil Service Commission.

Employes who were in the postal service and who entered the military service were given credit toward promotions for their armed services when they returned to their jobs. The bill approved would give promotion credit to veterans who entered the postal service after military service.

Veterans in the classified service and other branches of Government are all set to demand similar benefits if the O'Conor bill becomes law. After World War I, a similar bill was approved for postal workers. The House Civil Service Committee will hold hearings Friday on the veterans' promotion credit bills.

RETIREMENT: The Senate committee postponed action on the Johnston bill to pay pensions to the widows of retired employes without reducing the annuities of such employes as the law now requires. Several Senators suggested that male employes who wish to assign survivorship benefits to their wives be required to pay an additional 1 per cent of their salaries into the civil service retirement fund. The Administration opposes the bill.

The committee approved: the nomination of Harrison Parkman to be Postoffice's purchasing agent for another term; a Johnston bill to take census of handicapped people; the nominations of 500-odd postmasters, and the Murray bill to allow full-time Federal workers to take part-time Census jobs during next year's general census.

MARITIME: General Philip Fleming will be sworn in next Monday as chairman of the Maritime Commission. Federal Works employes gave him a farewell party yesterday. Fleming will take with him these three FWA employes: Barney Mullady and William Smith of the Information office, and Leona Kempainen, his secretary.

Alfred G. Vigderman has resigned as staff director of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee. He's slated to get an appointment in the executive branch, perhaps as a member of the new War Claims Commission. . . . Joseph Volpe, jr., has been appointed general counsel of the Atomic Energy Commission to succeed Adrian S. Fisher who transferred to the State Department to be its legal adviser. . . . John Mayfield is the new personnel officer for the Secretary of Defense. He succeeds Leon Wheeless who moved up a notch. . . . David Lynn, the Capitol architect, would have his expense allowance raised from $1500 to $2800 under a Senate bill.

Ihlder Offers 20-Year Plan For Clearing Slums Here

Presents Sparkman With Program for Building 16,000 Dwelling Units

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

A 20-year plan for Washington slum clearance, envisioning construction of possibly 16,000 low-income housing units, has been presented to Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.).

The sweeping program to eventually rid the city of all its slums and provide replacement housing was drafted by John Ihlder, executive officer of National Capital Housing Authority, it was learned last night.

Ihlder estimated the cost of the 16,000 low-income dwellings at from $112,000,000 to $138,000,000. The units could be financed, he said, by a five to six million dollar annual Federal contribution and a District government tax exemption on the properties.

Senator Sparkman said he had requested Ihlder's report for background, preliminary to calling public hearings before his Senate Banking Subcommittee.

The Sparkman hearings are intended to make Washington a pilot test of the Nation's slum clearance and public housing program under the pending housing bill.

The Senator emphasized that he will seek similar local housing suggestions from other District agencies and private builders.

Ihlder proposed a 5500 public housing program here over the next three years, stating that a NCHA waiting list of 18,000 low-income families, including 5000 veterans, spells out "at least that need."

"At the end of the three-year period," Ihlder stressed, "we should take stock of the situation and see to what extent the displaced population (those evicted from razed slums) is provided for by proper housing."

"Outside Estimate"

Ihlder arrived at his long-range figure of 16,000 needed low-income housing, admittedly an "outside estimate," by the following reasoning:

Of his estimated 40,000 "unfit or grossly overcrowded' dwellings in the District, 25,000 of these units might be razed in a comprehensive slum rehabilitation program.

Five thousand persons displaced from the 25,000 razed units would be rehoused in "a private competitive market." About 4000 other displaced persons probably would move out of the city or not need the assistance of a public agency, thus leaving 16,000 dwellings to be constructed as replacements.

Rents Emphasized

Ihlder emphasized that how much of this housing would be financed by the government would depend on the performance of private enterprise and rents charged "in accordance with the incomes of those displaced persons."

The NCHA official estimated the cost of removing the Washington slums at 100 million dollars, "much of which, however, would be recovered in the sale of the cleared sites by the District Redevelopment Land Agency," he said.

Of the 40,000 substandard dwellings here, Ihlder said, he believed enforcement of a stricter housing code would prevent the razing of 150,000 units and owners should be "compelled" to remove about 5000 dwellings, leaving 20,000 units to be acquired and cleared at public expense.

Offers "Direct" Methods

Ihlder told Sparkman, in response to a series of questions, that Washington's "slumitis" should be attacked by three "direct" methods which are "supplementary to each other."

1. Enactment and enforcement of a housing code based upon the police power.

2. Implementation of redevelopment legislation. (The Land Agency was set up three years ago under the District Slum Clearance Act, but has thus far been denied funds by Congress.)

3. Funds and legislation to permit NCHA to proceed with public housing.

In Hospital

Bowie Doing Fairly Well, Doctors Say

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, of Prince Georges County, was in "fairly good condition" at Providence Hospital last night, the hospital reported.

According to friends, he was stricken with a heart attack Sunday night while visiting a friend near Marlboro.

When he "developed a pain in his chest and turned ashen gray," he was rushed by ambulance to the hospital. His brother, Dr. Andrew K. Bowie, was summoned.

Recently he and James J. Laughlin, Washington attorney, have been quarreling in connection with the county grand jury investigation of gambling.

Bowie has issued a body attachment against Laughlin calling for his reappearance before the grand jury, while Laughlin has sued Bowie and F. Bowie Addison, grand jury foreman, for $258,275, charging slander.

Laughlin, reached by telephone, said his original subpena for Bowie expired 20 days after it was issued, so a new one was obtained yesterday. If it is possible, a deputy United States Marshal will serve the new subpena, Laughlin added.

If Bowie's illness should prove serious and drawn out, Circuit Court judges would be required to name a substitute State's Attorney. The assistant State's Attorney, Hervey Machen, is sharply circumscribed by law, and cannot for example, deal directly with a grand jury.

Theft Wave Laid to Alleged Dope Addict

A 26-year-old man, who police said was an admitted morphine addict, yesterday was charged with 37 cases of house-breaking since March 15, 1948, when he was released on parole from Lorton Reformatory.

Lieut. Aubrey Tolson, head of the general assignment squad, said the man, John Henry Brooks, of 1615 New Hampshire ave. nw., told him he used the money from his thefts to buy dope.

Brooks was first arrested May 17 after a wrist watch he was wearing was traced to a home at 2131 P st. nw., that had been burglarized. Given a hearing on this charge before U. S. Commissioner Cyril Lawrence, he was released on bond and his case continued until May 26.

The day before his hearing was scheduled Brooks was caught fleeing an apartment at 1000 Perry st. ne., after he had been surprised by the occupant, police said.

At the hearing the next day Brooks was held for the grand jury, this time without bond.

Lieut. Tolson said police were questioning Brooks in connection with a number of other robberies in the District.

Cash Stolen From Store, Homes, Dance Studio

Two homes, a store, a dance studio and two schools were entered over the Memorial Day weekend, police reported.

Morris Gold, 40, of 1428 Kenilworth ave. ne., told police that sometime Monday night thieves took $700 in bills from his first-floor bedroom. Gold operates Gold's Market at that address.

First-day issues and other stamps valued at a total of $300 were reported by Joseph Beck, taken from his second-floor bedroom at 15 6th st. se.

Thieves who entered the Dy-Dee Wash, 60 Canal st. sw., stole $129 in bills, the manager, Leland A. Cline, told police. Cline said the thieves broke a window and took the money from a cabinet on the first floor.

Thieves who apparently were planning a Memorial Day picnic for a sizable group of friends broke into the Washington Vocational School, O st. between 1st and North Capitol st. nw., and took 30 dozen eggs, six 30-pound cases of cheese and 9 pounds of sandwich meat.

In another school break-in, thieves who entered the Douglass Simmons School, 1st and Pierce sts. nw., ransacked teachers' desks in eight classroom, but took nothing.

In another burglary reported to police yesterday afternoon, thieves broke into the Arthur Murray Dance Studio, 1106 Connecticut ave. nw., and took $910 in bills from an unlocked safe.

Gaming Raid Gun Seizure Is Revealed

1 of 2 Was Loaded At Headquarters Of 'Snags' Lewis, Court Is Informed

Two guns, one of them loaded, were seized in the March raid on the Bladensburg headquarters of indicted gambler William (Snags) Lewis, it was testified in District Court yesterday.

Deputy Marshal Francis McCathran made the disclosure as arguments to quash the Governments case against Lewis and 13 others continued before Judge Edward M. Curran.

Defense attorneys claim their clients were illegally arrested for three reasons:

1. A Government search warrant for Mrs. Sadie Stanton, proprietor of Lewis' headquarters at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, was illegal.

2. A Government arrest warrant for a man identified only as "Frankie" did not give the Government the right to arrest anyone but "Frankie."

3. Government agents did not witness the commission of a felony in the Lewis houses and, therefore, had no right to arrest Lewis and the others and search them on those grounds.

The guns, number slips, money, adding machines and gambling equipment, and two cases of printed cards bearing the legend "We always pay with a smile," were seized, McCathran said.

Judge Curran took the motions under advisement. His decision is expected this week.

Meanwhile, before Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, similar arguments were heard in the case of Frederick Whiteoak, 1504 Oates st. ne., and Attilio Acalotti, both indicted gamblers.

In this case the Government claims that even if its search warrants for Whiteoak was illegal, the Government had a right to search his premises incidental to his arrest.

Judge Schweinhaut took under advisement an argument from Whiteoak's lawyer, Charles E. Ford, that the Government must have a legal search warrant.

His decision also is expected this week.

Custody Trial

Case 'Bound To Break 2 Hearts'

Judge Edward A. Tamm yesterday disqualified himself in a case that is "bound to break two hearts," no matter how it is decided.

Two couples are fighting in District Court for custody of 10-month-old David Richard Mangum.

They are his real parents, Katie and Raymond Mangum, of Berwyn, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hoover, of 1716 Capital ave. ne.

The custody trial began last week. Yesterday, Attorney Dorsey K. Offutt, representing the Mangums, charged that Judge Tamm was showing "predisposition" to favor the Hoovers by not requiring them to have the infant in court at all times.

Judge Explains Decision

After a bench conference, Judge Tamm announced he would not hear the case further and would certify it for reassignment to another judge.

Later, Judge Tamm told a reporter why he had disqualified himself.

"Mr. Offutt," he said, indicated that Mrs. Mangum felt that the court by not requiring the respondents to have the baby in court at all times indicated some predisposition to favor the Hoovers.

Papers Reported Signed

"Accordingly, I advised counsel that in every case of this kind, the court was bound to break two hearts regardless of the decision, and under the circumstances, the court would prefer that the case be heard by another judge so that the natural mother would not have any feeling of prejudice on the part of the judge."

The Mangums are alleged to have signed papers last January agreeing to adoption of their child by the Hoovers. Mrs. Mangum has admitted signing the papers, but has said she thought they were for only a temporary adoption.

'Freedom Fair' Fund Job Is Made a Private Task

Senate Committee Votes $1,500,000 Provided Equal Sum Is Raised Elsewhere

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday laid financing of the city's sesquicentennial celebration squarely in the laps of private fund raisers.

The full committee, in reporting out the second deficiency supply bill, agreed to allocate up to $1,500,000 in Federal money contingent upon an equal amount being raised privately.

The deficiency bill carried $1,759,863 in District items, including $38,600 to set up the administrative machinery for the 2 per cent District sales tax which goes into effect August 1.

$3,000,000 Was Asked

The Sesquicentennial Commission, strongly backed by President Truman and a bipartisan group in the Senate, had urged an outright three million dollars appropriation to plan and construct buildings for the "Freedom Fair."

Supporters had stressed to the Appropriations Committee that admission ticket taxes would net more than enough to repay the three-million-dollar grant to the Treasury.

The House had earlier turned thumbs down on any Federal advance for the city celebration.

The Senate committee action was met with surprise and disappointment downtown.

Boykin Sees No Chance

Edward Boykin, executive director of the Sesquicentennial Commission, said: "As I see it the Senate action pretty much ends all chances for the 'Freedoom Fair.'" He added that he did not see how $1,500,000 or a much smaller amount could be raised locally to insure an equal Federal advance.

"Why the Greater National Capital Committee has great difficulty raising $80,000 each year," said Boykin, adding, "We do not even have enough funds now to raise funds."

Other approved funds to tide over 13 different city government departments and services until July 1, represent $203,475 more than the House voted last month in the same supply bill.

Allotment for Assessor

The District items are:

1. Assessor's Office: $38,600 for personnel and equipment to set up the sales tax division.

2. District Rent Control Administration: $26,175 for salaries and expenses to carry the office from March 31 to July 1. The rent act previously was due to expire at the end of March.

3. Police Department: $75,000 to start the Fourteenth Precinct Station at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne.

4. Public schools: $82,000 to meet increased heating and electricity operating costs.

Gallinger Funds

5. Gallinger Hospital: $250,000 for operating expenses and $57,500 for a new crematorium.

6. Health Department: $110,000 to remodel the Gales School, Massachusetts ave. and G st. nw., for expanded clinical services. It will permit vacating the present clinic in the area which is at 11 D st. nw.

7. Department of Corrections: $85,000 for operating expenses and $17,950 to purchase a 45-ton replacement locomotive from the Army for Lorton Reformatory.

Public Welfare Provisions

8. Public Welfare: $30,550 for repairs to the kitchen at the Home for the Aged and Infirm. St. Elizabeths Hospital was granted its requested $816,000 to meet salary increases and a recent rate hike for District patients.

9. Public Works: $75,000 to instill an elevator at the Central Garage to permit use of its fourth and fifth floors.

10. Washington Aqueduct: $130,700 for incresed operating expenses.

11. Claims and judgments: $57,188 for pending judgments against the District Government.

12. District Employes Compensation: $15,000.

13. National Zoological Park: $36,248 for increased operating expenses.

School Cadets' Competitive Drill Starts

Washington's High School Cadet Corps opened its sixty-second annual drill in Griffith Stadium yesterday with only 14 companies competing from 10 white high schools, compared to 18 companies last year.

The slim ranks of the Cadet Corps were evident despite a six-point program to increase enlistments, initiated last October by the Board of Education.

One school — McKinley—didn't take part at all in the Griffith Stadium drilling yesterday because it couldn't muster the 25-man minimum complement for a company. (Established company strength is 58 men).

Another school—Bell Vocational—was forced to merge its two companies into one when 15 members were reported absent yesterday.

Central High School will parade at this morning's concluding drill starting at 9 a. m., with only one company, having merged its B and C companies several weeks ago.

Awards to the winning white school company will be made at 2:30 p. m., following an exhibition platoon drill and battalion parade by Western High School cadets, and a "distinguished noncommissioned officer" competition, beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Eighteen companies from four Negro high schools will compete in drills on Thursday and Friday at Griffith Stadium, with awards to be presented Friday afternoon. Col. James H. Robinson, senior Negro officer in the United States Army, will officially review the marching cadets Friday, with Wesley Brown, first Negro midshipman to be graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy, as honor guest.

The Negro high schools, which have never had the same problem of enlistments as the white schools, now have a total cadet membership of "about 1000," according to Col. Henry O. Atwood, head of military science and tactics in Negro schools, who said enrollments had remained about the same for three years.

Total membership in the white cadet corps was estimated at about 725 yesterday by Lieut. Col. William E. Barkman, head of the program. Last year the corps had 872 members.

Judge, 91, to Retire

Dog Pound Inquiry Won By Ruhland

The operations of the District Pound will be checked and photographed by Health Department inspectors as the result of complaints of "unhygienic, cruel practices."

The District Commissioners authorized the Health Department to make such inspections after Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, reported several complaints were received.

Dr. Ruhland said last night the complaints charged dogs were "kept in filthy kennels" and that the "disposal method was brutal."

Among the complaints was one from Dr. Eugene F. Mullin, veterinarian, who testified before a Senate subcommittee on a controversial bill authorizing local medical institutions to use unclaimed pound dogs.

Dr. Mullin, at that time, submitted a sworn affidavit that dogs at the pound were dragged to the death chamber and dropped into a 5-foot pit. He declared the "writhing, frightened mass of dogs" was then gassed for 20 minutes.

Frank B. Marks, poundmaster, denied the cruelty charges before the committee.

Another complaint was made by the District Medical Society, Dr. Ruhland said. He said the charges have been referred to the Health Department's Bureau of Public Health Engineering, but the inspection has been delayed because of the movement of the unit from the Municipal Center to the Central Library Building.

Forms, Basis Of Sales Tax, Being Printed

District officials yesterday ordered the printing of applications for registry certificates which all merchants will be required to obtain by August 1 when the sales tax becomes effective.

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent said the forms will be completed within a week or 10 days and will be placed at several points around the city. The applications will be coded and become the basis for the entire tax collection procedure, Dent said.

Arrangements are being made to rent electrical business machines to process the applications.

Meanwhile, Dent and Allan F. Brooke, assistant chief of the Income Tax Division, who is expected to be named head of the sales tax unit, have begun drafting a pamphlet of regulations clarifying the sales tax program.

As the first step toward this the two are scheduling meetings with various business groups to discuss specific problems. Representatives of the Hotel Association of Washington and the Washington Restaurant Association will meet in Dent's office today at 10 a. m. to discuss collecting the tax on meals.

On Thursday representatives of the National Capital Group of Controllers will meet with the two officials to clarify department store collections. On Friday, Graphic Arts Association spokesmen will confer with the officials.

Safeway Store Bandit Flees When Employe Gives Him Slip

A hold-up man, believed to be the one who successfully held up two Washington Safeway stores, yesterday was frightened away from the Safeway Store at 34th st. and Rhode Island ave. in Mount Rainier, Md.

Store Manager William M. Lynn, 1801 E st. ne., who had just opened the store, was assorting produce and had left the back door open.

The hold-up man entered and had locked the door when James E. Mulcahey, 4614 R st. ne., who works in another nearby Safeway, knocked on the door to borrow some report slips.

The man threatened him with a .45 automatic and herded him to the wall. About that time, another employe of the store arrived for work. The hold-up man told Mulcahey to let him in.

As Phillip Bouccuccio, 1530 Kearney st. ne., entered, he also was threatened with the gun, but Mulcahey took advantage of the opportunity to slip out of the store door and run.

The holdup man also fled down the alley toward 35th st. where he had parked his two-tone blue sedan with North Carolina tags. Claude Rogers, 1526 North Carolina ave. ne., working nearby, told police the man had driven around the corner several times before parking the car.

John C. Wise, Mount Rainier police chief, said he believed the man was the one who had robbed Safeway stores in Washington in a similar manner. The man was described as 5 feet 6 inches to 5 feet 9 inches, 135 pounds, about 28 years old, with a pimply face. He was wearing green sunglasses and a dark brown leather jacket.

100 Air Tourists Come to Capital In Forty Planes

One hundred aerial tourists from Portland, Oreg., arrived here yesterday in 40 private planes, and were luncheon guests of Oregon members of Congress.

They were welcomed by Senators Cordon and Morse. Secretary of Air W. Stuart Symington spoke.

On their arrival at Erco Field in nearby Riverdale, Md., the fliers' leader, L. S. White, received a key to the city from Commissioner John R. Young of the District of Columbia.

White said the group would break up here, most of its members planning to visit different parts of the country before returning home.

Cheating in Exams Brings Retesting at Georgetown U.

A fully unsatisfying experience was being wound up at Georgetown University yesterday.

The first persons to be not fully satisfied were members of the university's examining committee. They ordered reexaminations in three freshman courses.

The next persons who were unhappy were the freshmen who had to retake the examinations.

Unhappiest of all, perhaps, were the freshmen who had to take the second examinations after some of them paid out as much as $20 for stolen test sheets of the first examinations.

Georgetown University officials were silent on any but their own dissatisfaction.

The Rev. Charles L. Coolahan, dean of studies of the university's College of Arts and Sciences, would state only that the examining committee is "not fully satisfied with results of three examinations" (English 2, French 2, and French 4, taken by about 500 university students).

He announced reexaminations had been ordered and indicated the incident was closed.

The reexaminations, which began yesterday, are slated to be completed by the end of the academic term on Friday.

One student said a number of students paid $20 for copies of a difficult English test, only to learn that their professors had been giving them all the clews up to the $64 question as to what the examinations would contain.

Thief Outsmarts Quiz Kid Champ

A visiting Illinois Quiz Kid, who brought with him to show relatives the $100 bond he won last week on the Quiz Kid radio program, was outsmarted yesterday by a thief.

Gurrie Rhoads, 12, of Western Springs, Ill., told police his wallet—containing the bond and $12 in cash—was stolen after he laid it on the front step of 4808 Nebraska ave. nw., when he stopped to play with a dog.

The youngster is visiting here on an expense-paid trip he won as the Cook County (Ill.) spelling champion, according to his great-aunt, Mrs. Nellie E. Fletcher, of the Nebraska ave. address.

Rites Friday

Earl F. Ward, Air Traffic Expert, Dies

Earl F. Ward, 52, of 314 Franklin st., Alexandria, a pioneer in air traffic control, died Monday in Chicago of a heart ailment.

Mr. Ward

Mr. Ward was nearing completion of a plan to coordinate landing activities at major airports in the Chicago area.

A native of Indianapolis, he had resigned as head of the Interdepartmental Air Traffic Control Board in 1945 because of illness, but took over the job for the city of Chicago six months ago.

Flew in Marine Corps

Active in aviation since its infancy, he was a Marine Corps pilot from 1917 to 1922 and later barnstormed about the country until 1927, when he became one of the first air mail pilots, working the Cleveland-Newark run.

He organized the Interstate Airlines in 1928, later worked for the predecessors of American Airlines, and in 1929 became vice president in charge of operations for American Airlines.

In 1935 he was commissioned by the major airlines to work out regulations for traffic control of planes flying by instruments. When the Government took over this function a year later he was appointed to administer the program and remained with the Civil Aeronautics Administration until his retirement in 1945.

Funeral Rites Friday

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Naona Ward; three children, John and George, 2-year-old twins, and Terence, 9 months, and a sister, Mrs. Paul C. Long, of Burbank, Calif. A former wife, Mrs. Ethel B. Ward, and a married daughter, Mrs. Donald Nahrgang, live in Norfolk, Va.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 1 p.m. at the chapel in Arlington Cemetery.

Fernando de Los Rios

New York, May 31 (AP).—Fernando de Los Rios, 70, former cabinet officer in the Spanish Republican Government and Ambassador from that nation to the United States, died today.

Fire Damages Dresses

A fire in a ground-floor trash compartment of the National Press Building, 14th and F sts. nw., about noon yesterday caused an estimated $3000 or more smoke damage to clothing in an adjoining storeroom of Elaine's dress shop, located in the building.

Mrs. Edward N. Dingley, jr

Mrs. Edward Nelson Dingley, jr., 40, wife of Capt. Dingley, USNR, electronics engineer of the Navy Department, died yesterday at Arlington Hospital after a short illness.

She was born in San Antonio, Tex., the former Celene Du Puy, and came to Washington as a child. She was the daughter of the late Ada Lee Orme Du Puy, national president of the League of American Pen Women, and William Atherton Du Puy, author and journalist.

Surviving are her husband, who lives at 4508 N. 18th st., Arlington, and two daughters, Patricia Orme Bingley and Linda Bell Dingley.

Private funeral services will be held Thursday at Arlington Cemetery.

Joseph P. Brantley

Joseph P. Brantley, 60, retired auditor for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, died yesterday at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mr. Brantley, who lived in Chevy Chase, Md., during his Government service, moved to Florida with his wife after his retirement last year. He had planned to return to Washington shortly before his death.

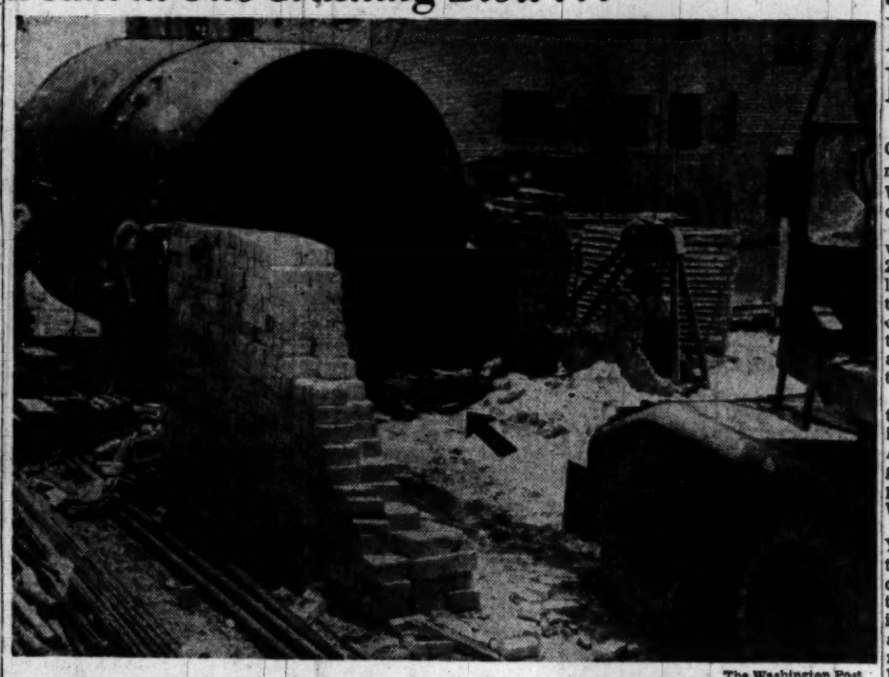
Born in Wartrace, Tenn., he first came to Washington in 1918 to begin Government work with the Maritime Commission of the Department of Commerce.

Mr. Brantley was a member of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and the Chevy Chase Masonic Lodge No. 42.

He is survived by his wife, Florence L. Brantley, his son, Joseph Brantley, jr., of Richmond, Va., and two brothers, Floyd Brantley, Nashville, Tenn., and Bruce Brantley, Shelbyville, Tenn.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, Md. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Death in One Crushing Blow . . .



The Washington Post

WORKMAN IS VICTIM—The body of William E. Bane, jr., (arrow), of Falls Church, Va., lies between the "clam bucket" (right) of a crane and the 20,000-gallon oil storage tank (left). The heavy scoop crushed him to death against the tank

Worker Crushed to Death Between Scoop and Oil Tank

A 23-year-old oiler on a construction crane was crushed to death about 12:15 p.m. yesterday when his head was caught between a scoop and a 20,000-gallon oil tank.

Bane

He is William Ernest Bane, jr., of 112 Lawrence dr., Falls Church, Va. Bane was employed as an oiler by the Old Dominion Hoisting Service, of 1047 31st st. nw.

He was working with a crane crew on a 365-unit housing project, Southern Hills, at 4th and Chesapeake sts. se., at the time of the accident.

Police who investigated said Bane was standing between the crane and the 12-foot-high storage tank when the crane boom was brought into position to push the storage tank off an access road in the project.

Police said the crane was being operated by A. S. Mattingly, 2433 Perry st. ne. They said the scoop or "clam bucket," swinging loose on the boom, caught Bane, crushing him into the tank.

He was pronounced dead on the scene by Dr. F. R. Hook, of Casualty Hospital at 12:40 p. m.

Friends said Bane had come to the Washington area from his native Christiansburg, Va., about two years ago. They said he had received a medical discharge from the Navy during the war after serving several months.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Bane, and their 10-month-old daughter, Cynthia Fay; a sister, Mrs. Ann Wallace of Pulaski, Va., and a brother, Howard Bane of Christiansburg.

Bane's body was taken to Pearson's Funeral Home in Falls Church before removal today to Christiansburg for burial Thursday or Friday.

Morris E. Allen

Morris E. Allen, 53, a mailer for the National Publishing Co. for 29 years, died last Friday of a heart attack at his home, 1439 Girard st. nw. He had been suffering from a heart condition for about two years.

Mr. Allen

Born in Washashington, Mr. Allen attended schools here and was a veteran of World War I, when he served in the Engineer Corps. He was a member of Mailers Union Local No. 29.

Surviving are his wife, the former Edith Cozzens Colburn; two brothers, Frank T. Allen and George Allen, and a sister, Mrs. Robert Claggett.

These step-children also survive: Mrs. Margaret Kutz, East Riverdale, Md.; Mrs. Dorothy Payne, Brentwood, Md.; Mrs. Evelyn Lewis of Washington, Mrs. Marian Boyd, Mrs. Mary Ellen Morgan and Richard Jamesson, both of Takoma Park, Md.

Services will be held at 10 a. m. today at Chambers Southeast funeral Home, 317 11th st. se., with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Funeral Set For Col. Wylie; Died in Poland

Funeral services for Lieut. Col. Andrew Wylie, USMCR, who was drowned in the Oder River, Poland, December 26, 1945, will be at 2 p. m. Thursday in St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Colonel Wylie died while on duty as naval attache in Poland. He was drowned reconnoitering a damaged bridge to determine if it could be crossed safely during a journey from Stettin to Warsaw. He was 49.

His body was not recovered until several months later, after it was disclosed a tugboat captain had buried it near the river's shore.

A native Washingtonian, he lived most of his life at Thomas Circle, in the house where he was born. He attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and Yale University.

Colonel Wylie served in five major offensives in World War I as a field artillery officer. For liaison work with the French and Belgian armies he was awarded the Belgian Croix de Guerre with Palm. He was one of the first to enter Brussels after its liberation and served for a time as acting head of the American Military Mission there.

He remained in Europe after the war, first with the Hoover Food Relief Commission and then with the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune. He returned to this country in 1919. He was associated with the real estate firm of Glover & Flather here for a time and later established his own office.

Dr. Christopher Roberts

Dr. Christopher Roberts, 52, former Commerce Department official, died of a heart attack in Vevey, Switzerland, last Friday, according to word received here yesterday.

During World War II Dr. Roberts was first associated with the Department of Commerce in the Foreign Trade Statistics Division of the Bureau of the Census in New York City.

He came to Washington with the Office of Lend-Lease Administration and later was with the Middle East Division of the Foreign Economic Administration.

His final appointment in the Department of Commerce was as chief of the Trade Statistics Division. He left in 1946 to become economic adviser to the American military government in Berlin.

An authority and lecturer on economics in the field of international trade, Dr. Roberts was born in Newark, N. J., and received a B. S. degree at Haverford College and a Ph.D. degree at Harvard.

Miss Gracie S. Knight

Private funeral services for Miss Gracie S. Knight, 84, of 34 W. Baltimore st., Kensington, Md., a resident of Washington and Montgomery County, Md., for 75 years, will be held today at her home. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Miss Knight died Monday at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md., after an illness of two months.

Born in Bridgeton, N. J., she was the daughter of the late Franklin L. Knight, D.D., Episcopal minister who was assistant rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Washington, and Mrs. Lavinia Dorsey Knight.

Mrs. Mary Dryden

Starke, Fla., May 31 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mary Dan McQuage Dryden, 53, of Starke and formerly of Arlington, Va., died Saturday in a Starke hospital after an illness of two months. Funeral services were held today, in Salisbury, N. C., her former home.

Mrs. Dryden had lived in Starke for the past three years. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

J. A. Butler, Newspaper Editor, Dies

Jerome A. Butler, 49, former Chicago and New York newspaperman, died Monday at George Washington University Hospital of cancer.

Mr. Butler

Mr. Butler, who lived at 2012 N. Oakland st., Arlington, had been a copy editor on the Times-Herald for the past two years.

A veteran of two years service with the Army Engineers, he suffered mustard gas poisoning in France during World War I.

He was on the staff of the New York Herald Tribune's Paris edition from 1936 to 1940, at one time city editor. He served as city editor of the New York Daily News in 1940, and New York Sun in 1941, and joined Aviation News magazine as news editor from 1943 to 1945.

For the next two years he was bureau manager for the Chicago Journal of Commerce here and also was correspondent for the London Mirror. He then became Washington correspondent for the Hearst papers for a year, before joining the Times-Herald staff.

Before his Paris experience he had been associated with papers in St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

A native of Ruskin, Mo., he attended the University of Missouri. He was a member of the White House Correspondents Association, National Press Club and Overseas Writers Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Francella McWilliams Butler, whom he married in Paris in 1939, and a daughter, Annie, 8.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p. m. at W. W. Chambers funeral home, 3072 M st. nw.

Hits 'Bargain Basement' Rates for Nation's Soldiers

Bradley Calls on Women to Back Service Pay Bill

By Genevieve Reynolds

GEN. OMAR N. BRADLEY, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, yesterday lashed out at the Government's parsimony in offering bargain basement pay to the armed services.

"Bargain personnel seldom produces a bargain security. Yet our government clings to the theory that it can deal forever in basement prices on the talents of men," he told some 500 members and guests attending the Political Study Club's fiftieth anniversary breakfast at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Army Chief of Staff termed the service pay issue now before Congress of "vital importance to the future security of the United States" and called upon the women of the Nation to support the revi- Government clings to the theory provide up to date pay incentives.

"For while your armed forces are not starving for the want of butter and eggs," he declared, "failure to provide persuasive career incentives is in danger of reducing us to an army of second raters."

Asks Women's Aid

Expressing concern over failure to convince Congress of the need for up-to-date pay incentives in the Armed Forces, the general admitted that he was calling upon the women to come to his aid.

"If this be a violation of the etiquette for petitioning Congress, then I ask that you ascribe it to faulty flanking tactics," he explained. "For soldiers are taught to press their advantage long before they are taught their Washington manners."

General Bradley warned that if the Army is to be forever outbid for the services of outstanding men," we shall entrust our security future to rejects content to make their way in a steady job at steady pay." Then he emphasized, "An army so handicapped in peacetime cannot hope to produce the Marshalls and Eisenhowers it needs in war."

Quality of Officers

Army Chief of Staff Bradley pointed out that a bill introduced at this session of Congress is the first overhaul of military pay scales in 41 years. He said that the bill sought to replace with equity and justice the contradictions and inequities that have developed in military pay, providing incentive increases at executive levels.

The House recently rejected the measure that would have added around 406 million dollars to the armed services pay roll.

According to General Bradley, while success in business is revered as achievement, success in the Army is noisily condemned as un-American and un-democratic. "It is time we reject the cheap emotionalism that panders to the appetites of those in hunt of the services as a whipping boy," he emphasized. "It is time we acknowledge that leadership in the armed forces is a virtue that benefits the soldier as well as the nation he serves. For if we are honestly concerned for the welfare of the American soldier, our first consideration should be for the quality of men who command him. It is the competence of this leadership and the quality of this command that may readily spell the difference between his life and death in battle."

Assailing the "self-proclaimed champions of the American GI," the Army Chief of Staff declared that in their constant efforts to drive a wedge between officers and men they are doing the GI his greatest disservice.

"Our only hope for a military establishment that will safeguard the dignity, protect the rights, and give expression to the human needs of men lies in the recruitment of officers and leaders with the intelligence and compassion to fulfill those wants," he concluded. "Again, I submit, these are the men whom we deny with bargain basement incentives."

The predominantly feminine audience gave the Army Chief of Staff an ovation when he declared "the American people have created their military establishment in the image of their own Nation. It is an institution founded upon equal rights and upon freedom of opportunity. It is an institution that has permitted me—as the son of a country schoolteacher—to quit my 17-cent-an hour job on the railroad to compete for a commission and eventually to succeed General Eisenhower as the Army's Chief of Staff."

Honor Guests

Guests of honor, in addition to General Bradley, were Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador; the Governor of Alaska and Mrs. Ernest H. Gruening, and Mrs. Bradley.

Featured on the program was a pageant depicting the 50-year history of the club, written by Mrs. Wallace Streeter, club historian. Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields served as narrator, pointing out that the club was organized in 1899 with 12 members at the home of Mrs. Emily Smith, 12th and N sts. nw. She said that it was organized as a suffrage club.

She recalled that during World War I membership became so depleted that in May, 1918, the club considered disbanding. But the seven members present voted to continue. Now incorporated, the club has a membership of 400 and a waiting list of 40.

Participating in the pageant were Mrs. David H. Kincheloe, portraying the militant suffragettes; Miss Luella Chase, representing the reorganization of the club; Mrs. Arthur La Forte, playing the role of the club's incorporation.

Others taking parts included Mrs. John J. Darby, War Bonds and Stamps; Mrs. Henry Gordon Clay, Red Cross, and Mrs. John Lucker, United Nations.

Mrs. Theophilous J. Morgan, president, presided. Mrs. Benjamin Soule Gantz presented the honored guests; Miss Lillian Chenoweth, announced the musical numbers.

Among the past presidents present were Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, Mrs. W. W. Sloan, Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, Mrs. Gertrude Parks.

Cure Delinquency by Teaching Respect for Law, Carroll Says

"A CRUTCH never cured a broken leg" George L. Carwomen's safety committee of the Women's Safety Committee of the American Automobile Association "to get at the grass roots" of juvenile delinquency.

Reminding the members of the committee that a doctor doesn't stop worrying about bubonic plague if there is one case in the United States, he said no one should cease concern about juvenile delinquency if there is one youngster who doesn't follow law and order. Mr. Carroll was guest speaker at the women's safety Committee luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

The speaker, who as a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reviews case reports of young people, told the committee members that 70 per cent of persons arrested for auto thefts in 1949 were under 25 years of age.

Delinquency Invited

"Every time a woman leaves her ignition key in the car to rush to the grocery store, she is inviting a youngster to delinquency," he said.

Mr. Carroll asked what kind of example a father was giving his child when he called up a friend to "fix" a parking ticket as his 8-year-old son listened while playing with his electric train? Or, Mr. Carroll continued, the father who tried to "wheedle out of income tax?" A child couldn't buy a better lesson in escaping the law than those two examples in his own home, he stated.

Teach your children that in the United States there is a body of laws which, in order to enjoy true freedom, a citizen must respect and obey, Mr. Carroll advised. "We take our children to the pediatrician, but we don't feed them vitamins of the spirit. We must teach our children that the law of the land springs from the natural law, the law of God, or it's no go," he said.

Parents "Too Busy"

Mr. Carroll told of a four-member gang of which the youngest was 14 years old and the oldest 17 years whose parents were "too busy" to supervise their children's training.

Another example Mr. Carroll gave was that of a 3-year-old girl in Seattle, Wash., who was drunk in one room while her 5-year-old brother was sweeping broken bottles in another room, and the mother was "out drunk."

Mr. Carroll was introduced by the chairman of the safety council committee, Mrs. George C. Thorpe.

INDIA'S new Ambassador Mme. Pandit and her daughter, Rita, are greeted by the South African Ambassador and Mrs. Harry T. Andrews at the Union Day celebration at the Embassy last evening. Several hundred guests, including heads of a great many foreign missions here, attended the colorful diplomatic fete

Washington Society Salutes South Africa on Union Day

By Marie McNair

UNION DAY in South Africa was celebrated here yesterday. The South African Ambassador and Mrs. Harry Andrews flew the gold, white and blue flag over the embassy doorway and invited several hundred guests to tip glasses in salute.

The embassy garden was in full bloom, with crimson roses climbing over the trellis; delicate shell pink ones rambling over the wall, and beds of pansies below. On the terrace a bar had been set up and there was another in the dining room. There, over plates of lobster, salads, mousses and strawberry ice cream and cakes, everybody met before saying their adieux.

All the requisites for a perfect party were at hand. There was the hostess, lovely in pale orchid crepe with fan back pleats in her skirt and baby orchids filling in the low decolletage. There was the jovial Ambassador, and their schoolgirl daughter, Lydia, in a turquoise and white print frock.

There were Gaieux, who knows everyone, to call the names of new arrivals, and Cole at the front door summoning and dispatching the cars.

All the Chiefs of Mission who were in town attended the fete; a wide circle of the hosts' personal friends and members of the embassy staff and their wives made them welcome.

I saw the Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffmann, sprinting across the street in the face of two-way traffic, and the Nicaraguan Ambassador, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa. Former Ambassador to the Netherlands, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, and Mrs. Hornbeck came early, to go on to Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling's cocktail party for the new U. S. Ambassador to Moscow, Admiral Alan Kirk, and Mrs. Kirk.

Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, was there, wearing a hip length brocade jacket over a pencil slim skirt. Mme. Pandit, the new Indian Ambassador, wrapped in a sari of varying shades of blue, had come from the American Newspaper Women's Club tea in her honor, accompanied by her daughter, Rita.

The dean of the diplomatic corps, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, who lives just up the street, was there with Mme. de Morgenstierne, she in a navy blue costume.

Mrs. James E. Webb, wife of the Undersecretary of State, made a brief call, reported that her husband was still at his desk.

Holcombs There

"I wish I were back there this minute," said Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, wife of General Holcomb, former U. S. Minister to South Africa, who came up with the General from their home in St. Mary's County, just for the party.

"It was just a year ago today," she reminisced, "that we arrived in New York." Mrs. Holcomb, who suffers from sinus and arthritis, found the climate of South Africa just what the doctor ordered.

Others there yesterday were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, with Mrs. Carlos del Mar; the Leslie Biffles, General John Chapman, head of the Australian Military Mission, and Mrs. Chapman; the New Zealand Ambassador, Sir Carl Berendsen, with Lady Berendsen; the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila, the Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic, and the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro.

New Jewels

Said "how-de-do" to the Commercial Counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. Dreux, Gen. and Mrs. John N. Greely and Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip. Exchanged greetings with the Ray Muirs, Mrs. Conger Pratt, wearing a gay new scarlet hat; and Mrs. Morris Caffritz, wearing her new jewels—a turquoise necklace surrounded by diamonds, dropping from a diamond necklace.

Mrs. J. William Fulbright chatted with friends on the porch. So did Mrs. George Thorpe, and Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, who brought with her Dr. and Mrs. Abe Ravin—both M. D.'s who are on their way from Denver to the American Medical Association conference in Atlantic City. Col. Leigh Wade who is leaving soon for his post as Air Attache at our legation in Athens, was there with Mrs. Wade and her sister, Mrs. John Shugrue.

Then there were the Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, Mrs. George Allen, Mr. and Mrs. James Souby, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves, Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador; the Netherlands envoy and Mme. van Kleffens; the Swedish Ambassador and Mme. Boheman; Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Fred Roy, Mrs. Parker West, wearing white lilacs for a hat; Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, the British Minister and Lady Hoyer Millar, and Anis Azer, Minister of Egypt.

U. S. Interest In India Wins Pandit Praise

The friendly interest of the United States is greatly treasured in India, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Indian Ambassador to the United States, told members of the American Newspaper Women's Club yesterday afternoon.

Guest of honor at a tea held at the Clubhouse, the first woman ambassador to the United States said that many people in this country had expressed surprise and concern about India's return to Commonwealth status. She explained that the Indians had fought against injustice and not people, and that they had no quarrel with the British people.

She expressed the belief that the freedom of India would be worthwhile only if it led to freedom in other countries, too, and said she would like to see more strenuous activity on the part of women toward peace. There must be complete freedom in the world in order to have peace, she said.

Speaking about the equality women share with men in India, Mme. Pandit said, "There again you can see the hands of Gandhi" and explained that it was Gandhi who asked the women to share in the responsibilities of the struggle for freedom.

Gandhi's Son There

Receiving with Mme. Pandit and Miss Grace McGerr, club president, was Mahatma Gandhi's son, Manilal Gandhi who is visiting this country. Editor of "Indian Opinion" in Natal, South Africa, Mr. Gandhi has been here for several weeks as an unofficial observer at the United Nations. Speaking informally at the tea, he expressed happiness over a resolution passed recently at the UN concerning the problems of the Indian population in South Africa, and the fact that the United States had supported it.

The dark side of American life he found to be the treatment of the Negroes in this country, but said there was a bright side, too, the faith in and regard for the ideas and ideals of his famous father. If Americans have so much faith . . . in his ideas and ideals," he said, "they will try to imbibe the same spirit and follow in his footsteps and, therefore, make a real contribution to peace and happiness."

Among the guests present were Lady Berendsen, wife of the Ambassador of New Zealand; Mme. Abdul Rahim, wife of the Egyptian Ambassador; Mme. Ricardo J. Alfaro, wife of the chief Panamanian delegate to the UN.

President, Mrs. Truman Feted at Barkley Dinner

PRESIDENT AND MRS. TRUMAN were guests of honor at a dinner last evening given by Vice President Alben Barkley at the Carlton Hotel.

Bouquets of pink and white carnations, snapdragon and white bachelor buttons decorated the tables in the Carlton Room. Guests were seated at tables of 8 except for the President's table at which there were 10. In all there were over 80 guests including Cabinet officers, members of the White House staff and other friends of the President.

Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, the Vice President's daughter, who serves as his official hostess, wore a gown of silver over grey taffeta embroidered with pink and silver sequins. Mrs. Douglas MacArthuh, jr., another one of the Vice President's daughters, wore a purple taffeta off-the-shoulder gown with a pleated flounce at the bottom of the wide skirt. She arrived with her father, and Mrs. George Sloan, who wore a flame chiffon gown, with a stole over her bare shoulders.

The dinner was postponed from Monday, May 23, owing to the death of former Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Vice President Barkley paid tribute to his chief as a man who "never lost the common touch."

Mr. Truman, in a return toast, lauded the 71-year-old Kentucky veteran as "one of our great men."

After dinner, the guests were entertained by Cardini, the magician, and by Evelyn Tyner, Washington pianist.

Other guests present last night were Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson—she is a bouffant grey lace gown; Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder, and Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley. Mrs. Snyder wore cocoa-colored lace, and Mrs. Bradley's gown was cream lace.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark were there, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Clifford, Senator and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Senator and Mrs. Scott Lucas, Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle with his wife, who wore green lace; Speaker Sam Rayburn and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

Officials There

Mrs. George Mesta wore a silver brocade gown and Mrs. Harry Vaughan, who was there with General Vaughan, was in black crepe. Mrs. Severett Salstonstall wore a gown of periwinkle blue.

Senator and Mrs. Kenneth Wherry were there, as were Mrs. H. Mitchell Palmer who came with Herbert A. May, Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington and Mrs. Symington, Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius A. Krug, Associate Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, and ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman and Mrs. Hoffman.

Mrs. Stanley Woodward, wearing a green organdy dress with matching taffeta cape, was there with her husband as was Mrs. Eben Ayres, whose gown was of white crepe.

Miss Berle to Wed

Miss Alice Bishop Berle, daughter of former Assistant Secretary of State, Adolph A. Berle, jr., and Mrs. Berle, will be married to Clan Crawford, jr., of Cleveland, on June 18. The ceremony will be held in the garden of Konkapot, summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Berle at Great Barrington, Mass. Mr. Berle is a former Ambassador to Brazil.

Cravens.

Mrs. Robert Thomas Milner, whose marriage took place yesterday morning in Sherman, Tex., is the former Miss Katherine Ann Moore, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Boude C. Moore of Arlington, Va. Mr. Milner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Milner of Altus, Okla. The bride's father, a former missionary in Japan, performed the ceremony at the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Parties To Fete Latin-American Law Group

A group of distinguished lawyers of the Inter-American Bar Association from South America will arrive today by plane to spend several days in Washington.

They will be received by President Truman on Thursday at 3:15 at the White House and that afternoon Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris will entertain for them at cocktails.

On Friday afternoon the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina will be hosts at a reception in honor of the visitors.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson and members of the Supreme Court will greet the group on Thursday and they will be entertained at luncheon in the Supreme Court building.

Speaker Rayburn To Attend Guild's Front Page Ball

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn will be among the distinguished guests of the Washington Newspaper Guild Thursday night at the Shoreham, when the group holds its first Front Page Ball.

The Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and Mrs. Cyrus Ching and the Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board and Mrs. Paul M. Herzog also have accepted invitations for the fete. Miss Harriet Griffiths, reporter of The Evening Star, will reign as Queen of the Ball.

Sails Today

Mrs. Harry K. Hickey sails from New York today for a month in France.

During her trip she will visit St. Lo to see the new hospital being built there by American Aid to France. Mrs. Hickey is chairman of the Washington unit of the organization.

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

TWO of the group of more than 80 who joined President and Mrs. Truman at dinner at the Carlton Hotel last night were Mrs. George Mesta (left) and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, wife of the Undersecretary of Commerce. The dinner was given in honor of the President and his wife by Vice President Alben Barkley, whose daughter, Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, served as hostess.

Walkers, Headed for Uruguay, Honored at Dominican Party

By Norma Lanum

HANDSOME William W. Walker, who has just been named first Secretary to the U. S. Embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, and Mrs. Walker were guests in whose honor the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen entertained during cocktail hours yesterday.

Petite Mrs. Walker wore a Navy dress with a lace bodice, and her large brimmed pink hat was trimmed with a band of spring flowers. The hostess was lovely in a gown of Navy crepe.

The Walkers, all set to leave soon for service in El Salvador, were notified just before coming to the party that they were being sent instead to Uruguay. Both assignments would, of course, offer the popular State Department pair and their two young daughters an enviable climate. But still the shift in plans demands some wardrobe juggling on the part of Mrs. Walker.

Bill Walker's mother, Mrs. Calvin Walker of Asheville, N. C., attended the party. Around the last of this month the Walkers will leave the Capital for a vacation in Asheville, N. C., and then go to Mrs. Walker's home in Jacksonville, Fla.

Most of the party guests lingered on the horseshoe balcony which leads into the maple-wooded terrace at the 16th st. embassy. Among them were Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George V. Allen, Dean Rusk, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Daniels, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Willard L. Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. John Peurifoy, and Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan.

Oliver P. Newman, four years a D. C. Commissioner in President Wilsons' Administration, was there also. A former Roosevelt-appointed foreign officer in the Dominican Republic, he now makes his home there. He's just in Washington for a spring vacation.

From Embassy Row came Senora Trujilo de Ruiz, sister of Dominican President Trujillo, Nicaraguan Military Attache and Senora de Rodriguez, and the Second Secretary of the Panamanian Embassy, Francisco Pardini.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Sensible Successful Business Woman, 32, Curtly Rejects Attentions From Man She Loves Because Her Brother's Mentally Ill

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a sensible successful business woman, 32 years old. A fine young man, 30, a fellow worker, is in love with me and I with him; but I feel that his attentions should be discouraged, even though I deeply desire marriage to him, and a home and children.

My brother has been a patient in a mental hospital for several years, incurably insane, and for this reason I push the thought of marriage from me, feeling that it would be unjust to visit such trouble on one I love deeply and sincerely.

When this man—I'll call him Fred—tries to be friendly and kind, I deliberately act curt and seem to freeze up, or tremble in his very presence. This has been going on for six months, as he tries over and over to assure me of his love; and my associates, not knowing my problem, think I am being cruel and tend to take his side.

She's Worried Sick About the Situation

I DON'T want to hurt Fred's career, but for economic reasons I cannot change to another job and we are thrown together constantly. I am sick with worry and unhappiness about the situation, and the strain is affecting my work, which I always enjoyed before.

Am I handling the matter correctly? Or should I encourage his attentions, be happy with him, and try at a later date to delicately explain the problem to him? What is best for both of us? Please help me clear the air. V. L.

She Rationalizes Frightened Reflex

DEAR V. L.: It seems to me your attitude towards Fred is pretty neurotic, a backing-away from the idea of giving your heart and then being rejected.

I think you behave as you do involuntarily, on an uncontrollable impulse of childish unreasoning fear, and not with clear altruistic intent to discourage his suit; and then try to justify your actions to yourself by saying loftily that you don't want to link your brother's problem to the man you love.

As for your brother's illness, it may be called incurable by some, and possibly he may never recover. Yet if he had been given preventive treatment in time it might be another story. Or if the best psychiatric therapy were generously available to him even now, and he had a spark of faith in God's healing power, wherewith to assist the specialist's help, he might be restored to health of mind.

She Is Burdened by Worry Complex

I MAKE that point with sincere conviction because you need to know it. Much of your recent sick anxiety is caused by accelerated self-identification with your brother's plight. You feel, or fear, that your temperament and tendencies are kin to his; and this theory spawns two other worries, namely:

(1) You wonder when or if you will break "hopelessly" as he has done. (2) You have a fixated notion that if people knew of your brother's condition, they would immediately look for and "see" symptomatic peculiarities in you, too. Isn't this true?

You were cradled in the same disturbances that cracked the foundations of his health, yes; and presumably you've been racked by tensions and terrors like those which overtaxed his spirit; but obviously your margin of endurance is greater, for ostensibly you've kept a normal pace, even though your soul is torn with distress.

Which is to say, you are emotionally sick, but not psychotic, as your brother is; nor are you in danger of getting worse, unless you let yourself drift blindly into increasing confusion of thought. For advice: recognize your defensive behavior as a sick tendency and get specialist help in taking redemptive inventory. Liebman's "Peace of Mind" (Simon & Schuster) and Sanford's "The Healing Light" (Macalaster Park Publishers) are loving guides to that undertaking. M. H.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

With great gratitude, I remember my grandmother saying when my mother was after me to wash, "Oh, Alice, let him alone. That's just good clean dirt."

We in America always seem to be washing. In general, such a habit may be a pretty good thing. Even if it is not as important for health reasons as we think, it does look nicer. But perhaps we overemphasize cleanliness.

If children's hands are reasonably clean when they come to the table, should we make an issue of the fact that there is a ring of dirt above the wrist? If they have been barefoot all day and are very tired, will a reasonable amount of dirt on feet and legs be too serious—especially if the sheets need to be washed, anyway?

These may not be very popular questions with most mothers. It's respectable to be clean and if one's children aren't what will the neighbors think? But they're questions that are worth thinking about. What do you think?

Guard Your Precious Skin And Hair Against Old Sol

By Peggy Preston

THE SUNNING season is upon us, bringing with it a familiar mixture of joys and woes. For King Sol, in his wily manner, has sprinkled the sands with pitfalls designed for the unsuspecting bather who ventures forth in search of sun and pleasure.

A nasty case of sunburn is the most common—and dangerous—of these pitfalls. But there are others as well. And the summer vacationer who would be happy and handsome at the end of a trip, might keep in mind these little dangers:

Saltwater can wreck havoc on complexion and hair. Cocoa butter applied to face, neck and shoulders before and after a plunge in the ocean or pool will work wonders for your skin, and go far in protecting it from the drying effects of too much brine. Hair should be shampooed as often as possible during a vacation. Don't depend on the cleansing action of a shower alone, or you will come home with a headful of stiff, unruly hair that will take weeks to recondition again.

Keep Head Covered

A further precaution for your hair is a bandaha or light, beach hat. A little sun can be a wonderful thing for your precious locks, but 10 minutes a day will do the trick far better than a day-long dose.

Sun glasses will give eyes protection and help prevent tiny wrinkles. But they too can be harmful if used constantly. If worn indoors, for instance, dark glasses can seriously damage vision. For sun bathing, or strolling in the midday hours, select a pair of glasses with groupd, ray-filtering lenses. They will cost more than the ordinary variety, but your eyes deserve the best you can give them.

If you are over 25 you will be wise to protect your face from too much sun. Let the rest of your body burn to a crisp brown, if you wish, but don't be over-enthusiastic about tanning your face to the same degree. Too much sun can temporarily age the face by accentuating expression lines. To achieve the same effect of tanning use a make-up base in a deep shade. A cosmetic of this type is available in either cream or liquid form.

Oils Not Miraculous

Suntan oils are the best bet in protecting your body from disastrous burns. However, don't make the mistake of so many, and depend on them to work miracles. All the cream concoctions in the world will not help the person who is foolish enough to tempt King Sol for several hours at a stretch.

If you use restraint and intelligence in sun bathing, oils and creams can help give you a painless, becoming tan. A tan acquired in conjunction with such oils generally results in a more attractive skin tone than one obtained without such an ungent.

An oil is generally preferable to a cream in that it is easier to apply, and will cover more of the exposed skin.

Last, but not least, choose your beach wardrobe with an eye to protection, as well as beauty. Remember to include handy, comfortable sandals, to protect your feet from hot sands; a robe or cape to cover shoulders and upper arms, the areas that are most often damaged by burning blisters; several bandanas for your hair, and a wide-brimmed sun hat.

For Slimmer Hips

By Ida Jean Kain

NO ROOM for argument, the slightest excess in calories pads the hips—and, worse luck, hips are not measurably affected by diet. Alas, even without the addition of calories, hips can spread.

To tone the back hip muscle, swing the leg up to an angle past 45 degrees. That sounds rugged, but it needn't be. You can easily swing to the right angle from a lying-down position, and that takes most of the work out of the exercise.

POSITION: Lying on side on floor, legs straight down, one arm out in front of chest to act as a brace.

MOVEMENT—Holding the under leg still, swing top leg up in front and away out in back, swinging past the 45-degree angle in each direction. Swing rhythmically and freely for 10 counts, relax, change sides, repeat. Work up to 20 swings with each leg.

POSITION—Lying on side on floor, one arm out in front as brace, both knees bent toward chest.

MOVEMENT—Shoot alternate legs straight down, vigorously returning to chest. Six counts on one side, roll over to other side and repeat. Later, increase the count if you feel better for exercising. Overfatigue the following day is a sign of too much exercise.

With sitting, hips tend to spread just below the waist. Rolling fixes that.

POSITION—Lie on back on floor, hands clasping knees and hugging them to chest.

MOVEMENT—Roll over to one side, back across the hip spread to the other side. Roll on.

Ask Anne — About Removing Drain Flies

Can you give me any suggestion regarding the eradication of drain flies from our house? K. C.

The eggs and larvae which develop into drain flies adhere to the deposit on the inside of drains around the trap. Because of the difficulty of killing them in this inaccessible spot, the best defense against them is to spray the walls of the kitchen and bath room with 5 per cent DDT so that a residue is deposited on the walls. This way, there will be enough DDT deposit on the walls for several months to kill the flies when they light there. In time the entire infestation will be killed. Be sure not to spray DDT where food will come in contact with it.

Is there any way to remove hair dye from white nylon uniforms? C. N.

You can probably bleach the stains out by using one of the dye or color remover products sold under various trade names where dyes are sold. If the stains are in small spots, dissolve 2 teaspoons of the remover in a pint of water and dip or sponge the stain into it. Or, you can dampen the stain, sprinkle the remover powder onto it and rub it between the fingers. Rinse quickly. If the stain is large, prepare a solution of the remover and water in proportions indicated above and dip the entire garment into it. Rinse thoroughly.

I would like to contribute this information for people interested in quilting. The frames may be obtained from the retail store of a large mail order house here in Washington. They are the folding type and can be stored in the average closet. O. W. S.

Can you tell me where I might locate an alcohol burner to use with a chafing dish? The dish is part copper and part brass, the holder designed with a bracelet type space for the burner which is 2¾ inches in diameter. The burner rises approximately 3 inches from the table and 3 inches below the pan. C. B. D.

Possibly, after arduous checking of junk shops or antique shops, you can find a burner that will fit in this chafing dish. Or perhaps a metal worker could fashion a burner for you that would fill the bill. Consult with some of the firms listed under "Platers" in the yellow section of the telephone book. Some of these make a specialty of restoring antiques.

May I offer a suggestion to W.F.M. who was worried about the laundering of nylon curtains? I had four pairs of panel curtains made of rejected parachute cloth which I bought in 1944 and used up to last year. I found in washing them that, for some unknown reason, any wrinkle or crease put in them while wet (such as from wringing them out) was practically impossible to iron out. In fact, some were still faintly visible, even after four years. Once I got the knack, they were the simplest things to launder. I washed them in successive soapy waters by merely dipping them up and down (one curtain in the tub at a time only, to avoid wrinkling) and never, never wrung them out, hanging them on the line dripping wet and gently shaping them once or twice as the water dried from them to smooth them. They dried in a half hour. I found the best way for mine was to press them dry or nearly dry with a warm iron. H. W. B.

New SHORT HAIR STYLES call for this New WAVING METHOD

It's Spray-a-Wave

Gives you the fresh, new wave every week that the new, short hair styles require

NOT A LACQUER — Not a wave-set, either. Hair stays soft and naturally lustrous. Never makes hair stiff or sticky.

NOT A PERMANENT — No indeed! Better than a permanent for the new short hair styles, because you can cut off the end curls as fast as they grow out—re-wave for pennies!

No question about it—permanent waves are too old-fashioned for the new short hair styles! Now you wave only the ends of your hair—cut them off fast as they grow out. So instead of a permanent, you want and need a fresh, new wave every week. SPRAY-A-WAVE gives it to you for pennies—not dollars! In minutes—not hours!

SPRAY-A-WAVE—the amazing new protein discovery—is chemically like hair. That's why it gives hair more body—added strength and sheen—transforms it in minutes into naturally-lovely curls that brush into a soft, gleaming, long-lasting wave.

Here's All You Do

1. Put up your hair, with pins or curlers, as you choose.
2. Spray on SPRAY-A-WAVE lightly from its flexible sprayer bottle.
3. When hair dries, simply brush out the springy, naturally-lovely curls and arrange in a deep, soft, natural wave that lasts from shampoo to shampoo.

Buy it! Try it!

Is there a paint or gilt that would help brighten metal floor lamps? I should like to make them look as much like the original bronze color as possible. H. M.

There is a bronze paint which can be applied to metals. Before this is applied, the lamp base should be gone over thoroughly with steel wool or emery paper to remove any rust or loose particles. When smooth, wipe clean with a cloth dampened with turpentine. Dry thoroughly before painting.

In cleaning and protecting asphalt tile in my kitchen, I am at a loss to know what is the most effective product or process to use in accomplishing this chore. Soap and water, as well as wax pastes are, so I understand, not indorsed for this purpose. G. R. P.

Oil and grease are destructive to asphalt tile so that is the reason some waxes and soaps should not be used on it. However, it is all right to wash the tile with a mild soap followed by complete rinsing to remove all traces of soap. When thoroughly dry it can be polished by using a non-rubbing, water emulsion type of wax. Immediately wiping up spilled liquids and keeping the floor protected at all times with wax will do much to reduce the number of washing necessary. There is also a plastic preparation, sold in housewares departments, recommended for use on asphalt tile now.

One on the Aisle—

Cocteau 'Eagle' Here on Screen

By Richard L. Coe

"EAGLE WITH TWO HEADS," at the Little, is an elegant and woolly fairy tale from Jean Cocteau, the French poet most recently celebrated for his "Beauty and the Beast" and "The Eternal Return."

By one of those wild chances of fate, it arrives in town along with baseball's Bankhead, the lady who played Cocteau's drama in its ill-fated American stage production. At the National, it was called "Eagle Rampant," but it changed its name to a literal translation for Broadway, becoming "The Eagle Has Two Heads," from "L'Aigle a Deux Tetes."

Like Cocteau's other films, this is frankly a romantic stew, an adult fairy tale, a whimsy not to be taken literally. It's a refreshing dip into a never-never land which I enjoyed immensely, though I wouldn't presume to say that it makes any sense or that it's not full-blown and pretentious as all getout.

Be that as it may "Eagle With Two Heads" is true to itself. Its queen is the way we've all been taught that queens are in the grand manner, beautiful, shrewd, all for love. Her husband was killed on their wedding night and for 10 dismal years she's draped her face in veils, mooned distractedly to her late spouse and kept herself aloof from The Peepul.

This creates a revolutionary party, which employs a handsome young poet who looks like a twin of the Queen's late husband to break into the palace and murder the queen. He breaks in okay, but it's love, love, love. The two figure out all sorts of schemes, too, involved for this humble peasant, to break the palace intrigue with a coup d'etat, but in the end they say the hell with it. The poet takes poison, kills the queen and they die separated by a stunning staircase with the band outside playing a national anthem, strangely like the one Verdi wrote for Egypt.

All this is such frankly rococo nonsense that at the National's performance with Tallulah, my wife lapped it up the way I suppose one should. Cocteau, from his stories about "Eagle," seems to have considered this as something to fit the Bernhardt period, fruity, flamboyant, fin-de-siecle.

"EAGLE WITH TWO HEADS." Vog Films release produced, written and directed by Jean Cocteau. Art direction by Christian Berard. Music by Georges Auric. Photographed by Christian Matras. English subtitles by Noel Meadow.

THE CAST

The Queen	Edwige Feuillere
Edith de Berg	Sylvia Monfort
Stanislas	Jean Marais
Feliz de Willenstein	Jean Debucourt
Count de Foehm	Jacques Varennes
Tony	Abdallah
Rudy	Gilles Quant
Genia	Maurice Nasil
Adams	Edward Stirling

Berard Art Direction

The Cocteau caprice is abetted no end by the elegant art direction of the late Christian Berard, the Parisian scholar and designer whose sets for "The Madwoman of Chaillot" were imported for the New York production. Berard's uncanny sense of supplying the precise quality of Graustark elan for Cocteau's whimsy engulfs this picture, just as Cocteau's emphasis on setting has done in the past.

The roles are all bewitchingly played. Miss Feuillere, whose resemblance to The Tallulah is sometimes striking, has the beauty and grace to make you accept her as that most unlikely of mortals, a queen. Jean Marais, without whom no Cocteau film would be complete, brings his sulky charm into focus as the death-dealing lover. These two played their roles on the Paris stage.

You'll enjoy Sylvia Monfort's wickedly conniving lady-in-waiting. Edward Stirling, who runs that English company in Paris, appears as an English-speaking servidor whose tongue gives the picture one more bizarre touch.

It's easy to see why Tallulah had such tough sledding with "Eagle" and you're amused to find that her 21-minute speech in Act I takes up only roughly about 10, which is an eon in a movie. Don't try to make any sense out of "Eagle." That way madness lies.

ROYAL ROMANCE: The Queen has erected a trapeze bar in her throne room and The Poet, who has come to murder her, finds her a surprisingly pleasant gal. All this happens in the Little's "Eagle With Two Heads," with Edwige Feuillere and Jean Marais in the leading roles of Jean Cocteau's script

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Their many friends here and in Hollywood are saddened by the separation of the Elliott Nugents, after 27 years of marriage. Nugent, the gifted actor-playwright-director-producer, was engaged to his Norma while he was appearing with the Lunts on Broadway. The happy couple was presented to Laurette Taylor, who was told: "Elliott and Norma are engaged to be married. Isn't it wonderful?" . . . "Wonderful?" replied Miss Taylor, who had suffered marital discord, then turned to the couple and asked: "Which one of you will give in first?"

The company which insured the life of Tom Hetgen, author of "Mr. Roberts," is investigating his death to determine whether it was suicide or accidental—because the policy had a double indemnity clause in case of accident . . . President Dutra of Brazil presented a portrait-plaque of himself to Nelson Rockefeller . . . A group of eminent painters and art critics met in N. Y. recently to organize a protest against Representative Dondero's attack on modern art on the floor of Congress . . . Jean LaGuardia, daughter of the late mayor, will start working next week as chief librarian of Station WABS.

This is how Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., came to run for Congress: A reporter saw him as one of the mourners at the funeral of Representative Sol Bloom and asked him: "Mr. Roosevelt, are you planning to run for Bloom's place in Congress?" Roosevelt replied that this was an inappropriate time and place to ask such a question . . . The reporter then telephoned the political reporter of his paper, who immediately telephoned Alexander Rose of the Liberal Party and asked: "Alex, are you planning to run FDR jr., for Bloom's place?" . . . "It's a good idea," said Rose, who then met with Roosevelt and with Bob Blaikie, the anti-Tammany leader, and the Roosevelt candidacy began.

U. S. Sues Group For Price-Fixing in Building Materials

The Government yesterday filed a civil antitrust suit against a large group at Cleveland on charges of unlawful price-fixing for building materials.

Attorney General Clark announced the action named 14 building materials companies and one individual.

The individual was identified as Harry A. Du Broy. He was described by the Justice Department as "long active in Cleveland building industry circles."

The suit, the announcement said, alleges that Du Broy has been publishing and distributing a price list on "hard building material" sold in the Cleveland area, and that this list has provided a means for fixing and maintaining prices.

Hard building material includes about 90 items, exclusive of lumber and millwork, used in home construction.

GIs Pulling Out Of Korea Fast, Observers Say

Seoul, Korea, May 31 (U.P.).—Top American officials refused to comment today on reports that the withdrawal of United States troops from South Korea will be in full swing by mid-June and probably completed by the end of July.

But GIs made no secret of the withdrawal.

Competent observers said an advance contingent of about 2000 already have sailed from Inchon for home. These observers said the American Army Transport General Collins left Inchon yesterday with 500 men aboard.

On the first of May it was estimated 8000 U. S. troops were in South Korea. It is expected that several hundred officers and men, known as the Korean Military Advisory Group, will remain with the Korean army.

$1200 in Silverware Stolen in Alexandria

Theft of silverware valued at more than $1200 from the home of Arthur H. Bryant, wealthy Alexandria manufacturer, 501 Oronoco st., Alexandria, was reported yesterday by Alexandria police.

According to police, an intruder gained entrance at the Bryant home by smashing glass in a door.

Missing when the theft was discovered, about 8 a. m. yesterday, were a six-piece silver tea service valued at $750 and a silver coffee urn valued at $500.

GODFREY SHOW COMING JUNE 4

Tickets are now on sale at The Washington Post, Fairway Sports Shop and the Sport Center for the Arthur Godfrey Show, which will be at the National Guard Armory on Saturday, June 4, at 8:30 p. m.

Celebrities appearing on the Godfrey show include Jane Russell and Bob Hope.

The Post is sponsoring the show to raise funds to aid Attorney General Tom Clark's drive against juvenile delinquency.

Reserved seats for the Godfrey show are $5, $4, $3, $2; unreserved balcony seats are $1. Mail orders, with checks and self-addressed envelopes, should be sent to The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Senators Back White House's Old Exterior

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday renewed its demand that the present exterior of the White House be preserved in remodeling the mansion.

Approved for the second time by the committee was a $5,400,000 appropriation for the White House rebuilding job. The money was contained in the second deficiency appropriation bill, which now goes to the Senate floor for action.

Earlier conflict with House leaders over the remodeling plan had sidetracked the appropriation from the first deficiency bill.

New Building Urged

House Appropriations Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) had urged from-ground-up replacement of the central part of the White House. He said the structure should be replaced entirely with a steel and marble building to make it last longer.

The plan urged by the Senate committee calls for rebuilding the interior around a steel frame, keeping the present sandstone exterior walls but putting in a new foundation for these walls.

In its report on the bill, the Senate committee said, "It is the sense of the committee that the proposed work will be carried out without change of the present architectural appearance of the exterior of the Executive Mansion or the interior of its main floor."

The committee pointed out that it had included the provisions earlier recommended for handling the building contracts. The general contract is to be awarded on a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee basis, with competitive bidding on the amount of the fee.

Provisos Are Explained

Subcontracts are to be fixed price and awarded by competitive bidding, except that the contract for underpinning the outside walls can be a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract.

The provisos were included, the committee's report said, because the committee "feels that there are many contractors in our country who will be proud to bid on and do the work of modernizing for future generations of our citizens this historic mansion of which we are all so proud and which we want to maintain as a home for our President and a shrine for our people."

Board to Visit Prince Georges School Sites

Proposed sites for new Prince Georges County schools to be built under an expected $10,650,000 program, and sites on which new schools are being built, will be inspected today by Prince Georges County commissioners.

The tour will start at 9 a. m. at the 29-acre tract on Silver Hill rd., between Marlboro pk. and Suitland rd., which is proposed as site for a senior-junior high school to serve the southern end of the county.

Other sites to be visited include: the 15-acre tract at Reed st. and Addison Chapel rd. in Chapel Oaks, on which the county-wide Fairmont Heights Negro junior-senior high school is being built; the 28-acre tract off Tilden st. in rear of the Sunnybrook subdivision of Bladensburg, where a vocational center is under construction and where a new junior-senior high school is projected for the central portion of the county; the 30-acre tract on the old Christian Heurich property on Colesville rd., where a senior high school to serve the western part of the county from Mt. Rainier to Greenbelt is planned; a 10-acre tract at University lane and New Hampshire ave. in the planned community projected for the old McCormick-Goodhart estate; and a 7-acre tract in rear of Mt. Rainier High School at the end of 34th st., where a new elementary school for the Mt. Rainier-Brentwood area is planned.

After the inspection, a meeting between the county board of education and the commissioners is planned, at which building plans will be discussed, it was said.

At their meeting yesterday, the commissioners signed antisubversive oaths required of all elected and appointed officials of Maryland and directed that all county employes sign the oaths.

Miss Bergman's Italian Friend Getting Divorce

Rome, May 31 (AP).—Italian film producer Roberto Rossellini's lawyer said today Rossellini is getting a divorce.

Rossellini and Hollywood star Ingrid Bergman are making a film together on the remote Mediterranean island of Stromboli, and rumors of a romance between them have persisted despite a recent statement by Miss Bergman that she is not planning to divorce her husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

The lawyer, Gino Sotis, said he had been in Vienna aranging Rossellini's divorce, but added: "A marriage between him and Miss Bergman is excluded, however."

Rossellini has been separated from his wife for two years.

Warren Appointed To Optometry Board

District Commissioners yesterday appointed Dr. George T. Warren to a three-year term on the Board of Optometry beginning today. He replaces Dr. Joseph Wagenheim.

The city heads also reappointed Dr. Rex B. Sheley to a three-year term, beginning today. The appointments were made on the recommendation of the District Optometric Association.

Church Quits Baptist Talks Over Dogma

San Francisco, May 31 (AP).—The Northern Baptist Convention opened its business sessions today after delegates from one church walked out in dissension over doctrine.

The Twenty-third Avenue Baptist Church of Oakland, Calif., withdrew yesterday from the convention and announced its adherence to the Conservative Baptist group. The action climaxed an argument about the dogma of the Virgin Birth.

The Rev. Guy Archer Weniger led his church's delegates from the hall. They charged that representation at the convention was based on money contributed and opposed the "Milwaukee Declaration of Denominational Cooperation," adopted at last year's convention.

The declaration involves the acceptance of missionaries who do not believe in the doctrine of the Virgin Birth, the Rev. Mr. Weniger said.

The 2000 delegates last night heard Dr. Warner R. Cole denounce communism, self-indulgence and "the aggressive advance of the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical empire."

Dr. Cole is pastor of the Convent Baptist Church of Detroit and a member of the board of managers of the Baptist Home Mission Society.

Presbyterians in South Back Working With North

Montreat, N. C., May 31 (AP).—Southern Presbyterians today indorsed greater cooperation with the Northern denomination with a view to ending their division.

The assembly approved by an overwhelming show of hands a report and recommendation of the committee on interchurch relations.

This committee urged joint meetings on all levels between the Southern Church and the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. (North).

Speaker after speaker, however, argued that such "cooperation" would amount to prounion propaganda and would, in fact, be "fraternization." These speakers contended a "moratorium" had been placed on agitation for reunion by hte 1948 assembly.

650 Arlington Homes Darkened As Power Fails

A power line failure in Arlington County blacked out 650 homes in the Arna Valley Apartments and the Shirlington Shopping Center for nearly an hour last night, Virginia Electric and Power Co. officials reported.

The failure, officials said, was caused by a broken primary circuit span near Four Mile Run drive. Cause of the failure was not immediately determined, they said.

Child Injured In Plunge From 2d Floor Window

A 20-month-old child suffered a possible ruptured spleen yesterday when he fell into the yard of his home from a second-story window.

The child, James Washington, son of Mrs. June Washington, 2517 F st. nw., pushed open a window screen on the second floor, his mother told police, and fell about 20 feet.

The boy was treated at Emergency Hospital and later admitted to Children's Hospital.

Court Orders Friday School for Moslems

Pittsburgh, May 31 (AP).—An Allegheny County Court judge today ruled that Moslem children must attend school on Friday and cited the Koran to prove his point.

Judge Blair F. Gunther turned down an appeal from a $2 fine imposed on Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson Bey for violating the State compulsory attendance laws.

The Beys contended Friday was a holy day, according to their faith, and refused to send their two sons to grade school.

Judge Gunther read the Koran—the Moslem Bible—and announced he found nothing in it that ruled Friday an objectionable day for going to school.

$30 Theft Is Charged To Man Paid $25,000

Ripley, W. Va., May 31 (AP).—A man who told police he receives a $25,000-a-year salary waived a hearing today on a $30 theft charge.

State police identified the man as Robert Pinns, 40, of Chicago, general sales manager of the Imperial Lighting Products Co., Greensburg, Pa.

Police said Pinns was charged with taking the money from the cash register of a filling station here while his car was being serviced.

Mother Walks 20 Miles For a Medical Checkup

New Orleans, May 31 (AP).—A mother of four blistered her heels today as she walked 20 miles for a medical checkup.

"I've been doing this since about the first of the year," said Mrs. Amelia Brendon, 41. "I never had any money, so I walked."

In all, Mrs. Brendon said she has trudged the 20 miles from Barataria to New Orleans 12 times. An operation last November makes the trips necessary.

"And I walked back every time, too," she added.

Now it appears she won't have to walk to the hospital any more. A social service agency is investigating her case.

Truman Names ECA Deputy

President Truman today nominated William C. Foster, former Undersecretary of Commerce, to be the No. 2 man in administering Marshall Plan aid to Europe.

If confirmed by the Senate, Foster will succeed Howard Bruce as chief deputy to Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

Bruce has resigned but is staying on until Hoffman completes a tour of Europe.

Foster, 52, quit as Undersecretary of Commerce a year ago. He has served since as deputy special United States representative in Europe under Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Milton Katz, now general counsel to Harriman in Paris, was named to succeed Foster as deputy to Harriman.

40,000 Women Jam N. Y. Stadium For Radio Fete

New York, May 31 (AP).—The huge stadium where Babe Ruth played held a new kind of crowd today: more than 40,000 women who flocked in to pay homage to Mary Margaret McBride of the radio.

It was her fifteenth anniversary on the air. Hundreds of women—most of them middle-aged—were waiting when the gates of Yankee Stadium opened early this morning. All morning they streamed to the stadium.

The two-hour program was star-studded, with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Morton Downey and Lawrence Tibbett among the special guests. There were dozens of stage and radio stars, some hundred or more famous authors, musicians and others.

Poet Asks Elimination Of Curves (In Road)

The following communication has been received from G. A. Fisher of 1442 Spring rd. nw. (who recently confessed to me, "I don't make a lick of sense in prose; that's why I usually write verse"):

"I wisht you wood tell your friend George Keneipp or whoever is in charge of that particklar presinkt that thur is a bad traffik hazzurd in Rock Creek Park.

"I hafta take that way home, and under normal condishuns I kin do a right fair job of giving full time 'n attenshun to my driving.

"But just as cars is rounding that curve in front of where Root 240 takes up outten the holler, they is a gang of Female whammy! My frunt tire bangs up against the curb and likes to knock my branes out.

"I have been a student of nachur too long to suggest that they go to up-rootin' the beauties of Rock Creek Park. But I think Keneipp and his gang could do something to'ards taking the curve outta the road at this particklar place."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

We're leaving for a visit to Italy Saturday, and wonder if you'd help us take along to our nephew there some information about track and field records.

He runs the 1000 meters in 3 minutes 18.1 seconds, and the 1500 meters in 4 minutes and 7 seconds. He would like to know what the record times are for the 800, 1000, 1500 and 3000 meters, and I don't know where to find this information, as I'm not much of a sports fan.

Mrs. A. B. Comotto
409 Ridge rd. se.

Dear Mrs. Comotto:

My Information Please Almanac lists these records for the distances you inquire about: 800 meters—1 minute 46.6 seconds; 1000 meters—2 minutes 21.4 seconds; 1500 meters—3 minutes 43 seconds; 3000 meters—8 minutes 1.2 seconds.

Tell your nephew not to fret too much about trying to equal those marks. They were set by world champions, and for every world champion there must be millions of us who aren't that good. Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three neat, bright, playful kittens, 2 months old." (Emerson 9028.)

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

Pvt. Robert L. Kaercher, stationed at Walter Reed, called Capital Airlines to ask the price of an Aircoach ticket to Pittsburgh.

He thought that the voice at the other end said "$8.32," which made everything jim-dandy, because his bankroll stood at $8.60

But when Bob showed up at the Statler office to pick up his ticket, he discovered that there had been a mistake. The correct price was $8.63—three cents more than he had.

Mary Jane White of 1110 Mount Vernon blvd., Alexandria, Va., on the other side of the counter, supplied the missing 3 cents. Private Kaercher thanked her, and took off for Pittsburgh.

In a couple of days, in came a letter from the grateful GI. It contained three pennies, plus the thanks of a poet:

"I decided to fly home, because I was blue; I phoned and they said it was $8.32. I had $8.60 and was full of glee; until I was told it was $8.63. But a nice young lady heard of my plight, and gave me the 3 cents so I'd make the flight. Mary Jane, I convey my sincere appreciation; for helping me in an embarrassing situation."

ADD SIGNS

Ruth Sadler of 6810 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, Md., reports that there's a sign in the Samber Food Store window on Mount Pleasant st. which reads:

"If you can't stop, smile as you pass by."

BY THE WAY—

Isn't this exactly the kind of weather you were wishing for five months ago?

MOVE TO THE REAR PLEASE

Richard Joyce of 2107 S st. nw. is mildly perplexed by those stories about the arrest of sidewalk photographers who violate a local law which says that "one mustn't stand in the same place for more than five minutes." Quips Dick:

"Do you think we ought to tell Capital Transit about that law?"

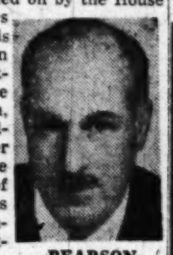
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Odlum's White House 'In' Amazes

By Drew Pearson

One of the most important and amazing aspects of the congressional furore over B-36s probably won't be touched on by the House Armed Services Committee. It is the manner in which ingratiating, likable Floyd Odlum, son of a Michigan preacher who became the barefoot boy of Wall Street, has become a gentleman of backstage importance in the Truman Administration.



PEARSON

Also important is the manner in which Odlum has sucked various big corporations under his control, sometimes by buying up directors.

Yet Floyd Odlum was called to the White House not long ago and offered the job of chairman of the National Security Resources Board, the vitally important job for which the Senate recently turned down former Gov. Mon Wallgren of Washington. It has also been reported that Odlum is now being considered as Secretary of Commerce.

Just how Odlum worked his way into White House graces is not definitely known—but his campaign contributions may be one clew to the mystery.

Furthermore, Odlum's friends have a habit of reaching into the Government and pulling wires to get his men appointed to key positions. For instance, Curtis Calder, head of the giant Electric Bond & Share (long dominated by Odlum), has now been offered the post of Secretary of the Army—which controls the Army engineers, who in turn control the Government's big power dams. These big dams, of course, vitally affect Electric Bond & Share.

Again, Odlum forces have been maneuvering behind the scenes to have Richard Patterson, now Ambassador to Guatemala, transferred to be Ambassador to Argentina. Reason: Patterson is a director of one of Odlum's subholding corporations. Odlum's Electric Bond & Share invested 37 million dollars in Argentine utility companies. Therefore, Odlum wants someone in the American Embassy in Buenos Aires to cope with President Peron, who has already taken them over.

In SEC files is significant data regarding the powerful gentleman who pulls wires backstage in the Truman Administration. Those files show how Odlum acquired the Chatham Phenix Allied Corp. for his Atlas Corp.

Odlum's Atlas Corp. got Chatham Phenix Allied Corp. for only $8,367,300, which money was actually advanced to Odlum by the Chatham Phenix Bank, and when the deal was all finished in 1933, the stockholders, as usual, came out on the hairy end of the lollypop. They got $15.31 for stock which had cost them $27.

Again SEC records show how Odlum, in 1930, managed to absorb the All America General Corp. into his own Atlas Corp.

Politics and B-36?

This columnist, after exhaustive research, has come to the conclusion that Odlum's financial godfathering of the Truman campaign and his attorney's fees to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson had absolutely nothing to do with purchases of the B-36 from Odlum's Consolidated Vultee Aircraft. The switch to B-36s was decided by a board of officers after months of research, readjustment and flying. Politics had nothing to do with it.

However, the backstage operations of Floyd Odlum are highly important and will continue to be important. The American public has a right to know about them. The American public also has a right to know about the myth built up around the Army and Navy, that men with Wall Street backgrounds are best qualified to operate the Army and Navy. The most dangerous thing about some of these gentlemen is that their backgrounds undermine public confidence in national defense.

Hatchets Buried

Folks in Louisiana take their politics seriously, which is why Louisiana Senators and Representatives have the reputation of being the "feudin'est and fightin'est" delegation in Congress.

However, believe it or not, Louisiana's entire delegation of two Senators and eight Congressmen sat down at a harmony dinner the other night as tame and peaceful as a get-together of Eagle Scouts. Not a single epithet was hurled during the entire evening.

To top it off, those two embattled campaigners and erstwhile foes—Representative Jim Morrison and Gov. Earl Long—sat at opposite ends of the banquet table beaming happily at each other. The dinner was given by Representative Henry Larcade in honor of Governor Long.

Earl Long and Morrison, who threw the book at each other in two turbulent gubernatorial campaigns, acted like a couple of long-separated fraternity brothers. Two other antagonists—Senator Russell Long and Representative Overton Brooks—also performed like Alphonse and Gaston.
